CAPONE PLEAS OF GUILTY MAY LIGHTEN TERM

Gang King Bows to Mass of U. S. Evidence on His Crimes.

ADMITS HE VIOLATED TAX AND DRY LAWS

Possible Sentence to 34 Years May Be Cut Because of Trial Avoidance.

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Alphonse Capone, scarfaced czar of Chicago's gangs, pleaded guilty to three Federal indictments today, surrendering in a three-minute Federal Court hearing.

Two indictments charging him with evading income taxes and another accusing Capone and 68 others of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws were read in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court. After each indictment the burly gangster meekly said "guilty." On a defense motion, the court deferred sentence until June 30.

Fifteen minutes after he had entered the Federal Court Building, Capone was gone, escorted through the crowds by a squad of police, a monarch stripped of his realm, still the object of almost unparelleled curiosity. Thousands jammed the streets outside the Federal Building, rushed from one entrance to another in the hope of catching a glimpse of the notorious Capone, and tried to "crash" the closely guarded doors of the courtroom.

Pleas Spell Abdication.

In throwing himself on the mercy of the court, Capone became subject to a possible 34 years' imprisonment and a $90,000 fine. Maximum sentence on the liquor conspiracy count was two years. A 32 year sentence was possible under the two income tax indictments, but precedent would indicate a much lighter sentence.

The longest sentence for income tax evasion on a plea of guilty has been two years. Of Capone's henchmen who have been brought to trial on such charges, two who pleaded guilty received sentences of eighteen months and a year and a day; two who fought the charges were sentenced to five and three years, respectively.

For Capone the hearing was a severe blow, the certain abdication for a time at least of the throne he has held for ten years. With the exception of a year spent in a Philadelphia jail for carrying concealed weapons and a Federal sentence of six months, still under appeal, for contempt of court, Capone had gone his way, working to the head of his own gang and then wiping out the others, almost unmolested by the law.

Agents Called "Untouchables."

He had achieved a world-wide reputation for the ruthless way he ruled the underworld, and the many audacious murders supposedly executed by his corps of gunmen. Tonight the talk concerned Capone's successor. It was two weeks before sentence was to be passed, possibly longer before he actually goes to prison, but Capone was spoken of already as out of the way.

"Will Johnny Torrio come back?" was a question frequently heard, referring to the man who taught Capone the ways of Chicago's underworld and then fled with several bullet wounds in his body, leaving the field to Capone.

To Government authorities the day was the crowning achievement in the drive against gangdom. Back of it was the work of a score of agents of the Intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, piling up the mass of evidence on Capone's income; the work of a group of young prohibition agents known as "untouchables" who supplied information leading to the prohibition conspiracy indictment alleging 5,000 separate offenses.

District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson telephoned Attorney General Mitchell at Washington to tell him the good news. Johnson said he planned to go to Springfield tomorrow to discuss the Government victory with President Hoover.

"Hopes All Are Satisfied."

Capone said he "hoped everybody was satisfied," sighed and ducked through the crowd under the protection of city and Federal officers.

The guilty plea was not entirely unexpected, since Capone's followers who had made that plea had fared from two to four years better than those who chose to fight the charges.

The most frequently heard report around the Federal building was that he would be sentenced to two and a half years on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently, but Federal authorities refused to discuss the reports.

Disposal of the criminal charge against Capone does not alter the

More Definite Regrets Asked of Italy by Pope

Vatican City, June 16 (A.P.).—In its recent note to the Italian government the Vatican was understood to have asked for a more definite form of regrets over anticlerical violence and assurance that there will be no repetition of such incidents.

In its first note the Vatican requested a formal apology within 24 hours, but as negotiations progressed it was believed that Pope Pius was willing to make certain concessions. However, it appeared today the Vatican regarded the regrets expressed in the Italian communications as too mild and is urging something more formal.

Navy Wins Crew Title With Last-Mile Spurt

College Regatta Brings Stunning Upset With Cornell Beaten 1¾ Lengths—Washington Third, California Fourth—Syracuse Jayvees Score.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16.—Way off in the distance only faintly visible through the screen of rain a spectral rowboat, as long as a street car and as narrow as a nickel's worth of salt in one of the same, came sliding down the Hudson River on the Poughkeepsie water front this evening to win the varsity race of the Poughkeepsie regatta for the United States Naval Academy.

There was great wonder and excitement about this, because the Navy crew had lost to Columbia and Harvard earlier in the season, and everybody who claims to be anybody at all in the inner circle of this obscure sport had thought of the Navy's 1931 crew as just one of those entrants which was making the best of an off-year. Cornell had been expected to win and Syracuse and Columbia were regarded as the crews most likely to do the serious pushing.

But, after the nine shells had covered the shake-down mile and the weaker crews had spent their first stylish dash and fallen back, the Navy ship was skimming along second only to the boat from the University of Washington and showing such steady strength that a gentleman who had drawn the Navy in a $5 hat-pool began to fan his pockets for the little scrap of paper which he had offered to trade for one of the blanks a few minutes before.

The Navy never took back after that and when the leaders vanished behind the big stone piers of the railroad bridge at the 3-mile point the Midshipmen had closed up the small remaining margin of open water between their bow and Washington's stern. The Annapolis kids licked the Western crew in the next quarter of a mile, shoving their own bow definitely into the lead, despite a strong challenge from the Cornell outfit, which had saved something and was now taking advantage of Washington's fatigue.

Cornell also passed Washington, but

119 POLICE SHIFTED IN DRASTIC SHAKE-UP

Three Inspection Districts Created; Ten Promotions Are Announced.

Transfer of 119 policemen, in one of the most drastic shake-ups in the history of the Washington force, was announced yesterday by Superintendent Henry G. Pratt, closely following earlier orders promoting ten policemen and creating three inspection districts covering the city.

The reassignments, marshaling Washington's available police personnel along lines of military efficiency, conform in the main with predictions made several weeks ago in The Post. They will become effective July 1.

The hand of Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Police Commissioner, is seen in the reorganization, which is calculated to place the Capital's guardians of the peace in a better position to cope with a major crime problem.

The transfers between precincts, and from precincts to the headquarters staff, affecting a number of officers who have taken a prominent role in the war against crime, liquor and gaming interests, were announced a few hours after Maj. Pratt had made public a broad schedule of promotions, and the plan for regrouping precincts on the "inspection district" basis.

Elevation of Capt. Frank S. W. Burke, of the First Precinct, to inspectorship, with temporary rank and pay of assistant superintendent, and command of the detective bureau, was outstanding among the promotions listed.

Capt. Burke succeeds to the office now held by Inspector W. S. Shelby, who will be assigned to duty as executive officer of the department, under the superintendent.

Capt. Ogden T. Davis, of the Second Precinct, also was made inspector. Succeeding to the vacancy created by the retirement of Inspector William H. Harrison, he will be placed in charge of the new Third inspection district. Inspectors Louis J. Stoll and Albert J. Headly are to command the others.

Lieuts. John E. Bowers and Frank M. Dent were elevated to the rank of captain, the former to command the Fourteenth Precinct, succeeding Capt. Charles M. Bremerman, who retires, and the latter to command the Eleventh Precinct, taking the vacancy of captain created by the retirement of Capt. John M. Walsh, of the Fifth Precinct.

Sergts. Harvey G. Callahan, in charge of the police school, and Thomas McGrath were made lieutenants. Privates Walter T. Storm, William L. Pasour and Lawrence R. Beall were raised to the rank of sergeant. Private James L. Kelly, who supervised installation of the police radio system, was assigned to special serv-

CABINET OF AUSTRIA QUITS IN BANK ROW

Criticism Following Loan by Foreign Firms Blamed; Populace Stirred.

Vienna, June 16 (A.P.).—The resignation of the Austrian cabinet today, in the midst of negotiations with foreign creditors of the Austrian Bank Creditanstalt, caused a stir in the ranks of the people tonight.

The resignation came as a result of criticism by some members of the cabinet of the government's action in securing financial credit assistance for the Creditanstalt.

Franz Winkler, minister of interior, resigned earlier in the day from the cabinet as a protest against the government's action in securing $80,000,000 in foreign loans to clear up the bank's affairs. Winkler insisted the government was forfeiting its ability to seek any other credits for state purposes.

The loans also were opposed by the Pan-German party and the Socialists.

A prediction was made tonight that Vice Chancellor Johann Schober would not appear on the new cabinet slate when one is formed.

It was believed the new cabinet would be headed by Dr. Otto Ender, present chancellor.

Motion to Quash Venire Is Beaten

Man in Virginia Again Goes on Trial in Slaying of Two Raiders.

Boydston, Va., June 16 (A.P.).—A defense motion to quash a Greensville County venire was overruled today at the opening of the new trial for Garland Smith, 24-year-old North Carolinian, twice convicted in connection with the ambush slaying in 1929 of two officers returning from a raid on a still.

Smith went on trial today in Mecklenburg County Circuit Court on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Bernard Puryear. He was convicted at the former trial, over a year ago, and sentenced to death, but the Supreme Court granted a new trial. He is now under a twenty-year imprisonment sentence for conviction in the slaying of Mack Tuck, Clarksville chief of police and companion of Puryear during the still raid.

The motion to quash the Greensville County venire was made by defense counsel on the grounds that the order for the change was issued in the absence of the accused.

Spain Says Pius Ignored Plea To Recall Expelled Primate

Cabinet Note Declares Continued Stay of Cardinal Segura in Country Would Be Dangerous; Pope Orders Protest Filed Against Ouster.

Madrid, June 16 (A.P.).—The Spanish cabinet, in a note made public after its session tonight, said it had ordered the expulsion of Cardinal Primate Pedro Segura from Spain after a request to the Holy See to remove him remained unanswered.

The note also said the government believed that the continued stay of the cardinal in Spain would be "dangerous."

Cardinal Segura crossed the Spanish border at Hendaye, France, this morning after an all-night ride through Spain.

In its note tonight the cabinet said:

"Because of the publication of the pastoral letter by the cardinal primate, directed to other primates on the occasion of the proclamation of the republic, the government, believing the continued stay of the cardinal in Spain to be dangerous, asked the Holy See to remove Pedro Segura from his archbishop's seat at Toledo.

"A little after the government dispatched the note the cardinal abandoned Spanish territory spontaneously, going to Rome, and returning some days later to Spain, without giving previous knowledge to any civil or ecclesiastical authority. The cardinal entered Roncesvalles Pass the night of June 11, remaining in hiding three days, during which the government was unaware of his hiding place.

"The government was waiting to receive a reply from the Holy See

SCARED BOY, 7, LISPS STORY OF HIT-RUN DEATH

Companion Hurled Into Bushes by "Big Black Car," Police Told.

SUSPECT IN KILLING WAS UNDER ARREST

Alleged Speeder Claims That Dented Fender Caused by Hitting Fence.

A story lisped out by a frightened 7-year-old Silver Hill, Md., boy last night led to the finding of the body of his 8-year-old schoolmate, William Settler, in a clump of bushes 15 feet off Good Hope road near Thirtieth street southeast.

The Settler boy, who had been dead several hours, apparently was th victim of a hit-and-run drivr, whose automobile struck the youth as he trudged home from classes at the Stanton School with William Von Garrel bout 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Last night at the Eleventh Precinct the Von Garrel child gave police the only account they have of the tragedy, a story of a speeding car that lurched from its path, caught one of the children on its fender and hurled him out of sight of the roadway.

Suspect Held for Inquiry.

From the Von Garrel boy's description of the vehicle, "a big black car with yellow wire wheels," police were holding Charles E. Derby, 53 years old, First street near Brandywine street southeast. Derby, driving a friend's car, had been arrested for speeding and failure to exhibit a registration card, about a mile from the scene of the acciden in the late afternoon.

Discovery of the body was delayed until dusk due to the delay of the police in learning of the accident. The Von Garrel child, a blue-eyed lad who has a slight impediment in his speech, stammered out last night that he was so dazed by the accident he didn't know what to do or where to go.

He said he saw his chum struck by the speeding car, but didn't see him fall in the bushes. For a while he wandered up and down the road calling to him, he said. Later he met 11-year-old Albert Havenner, also of Silver Hill, and told him about it.

Albert went back to the spot and searched for about an hour, he told police. He found nothing, but, returning home, told his older brother, J. L. Havenner, who is 23 years old, of the strange tale brought to him by 7-year-old William von Garrel.

Civilians Aid Police Search.

The older Havenner youth was convinced there was something to the story. He went to a police booth on Good Hope road and solicited the aid of Policeman J. W. Kidwell. The Havenner youth, with Policeman Kidwell, N. L. Lucas, of 3220 G street southeast, and several other civilians, returned to the spot and conducted a systematic search.

About 7:30 Mr. Lucas discovered the prostrate form of the Settler lad in the brush where it apparently had been flung by the passing car.

Policeman Hayes, of the Eleventh Precinct, who arrested Derby, said the man was traveling about 35 miles an hour when he picked him up near Fifteenth street and Alabama avenue southeast. Derby had been unable to make collateral, and was

BRUENING WINS FIGHT AGAINST EXTRA SESSION

Discussion of Unpopular Tax Decrees Beaten by Threat to Resign.

PREFER NEW LEVY TO CABINET CHANGES

Chancellor Is Free to Seek Cuts in Reparations Until October.

Berlin, June 16 (A.P.).—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening again today demonstrated his iron grip on the reins of authority. Despite deep and widespread discontent aroused by the government's latest emergency decrees, the Council of Elders of the Reichstag decided not to convoke Parliament or even the ways and means committee to discuss these unpopular measures.

Bruening told the party leaders flatly and repeatedly that he and his whole cabinet would resign if either the Reichstag or the committee were convoked.

After many hours of uncertainty and intraparty deliberation, the Reichstag decided it would be easier to swallow the bitter medicine of the economy decrees than to take on themselves responsibility for unseating the government at this time.

Social Democrats in Martyr Role.

While it was the Peoples' party which brought on the crisis last week by demanding a shake-up of the cabinet and the convocation of the Reichstag, it was the Social Democrats who played the martyr role in today's restoration of peace.

The emergency decrees, slashing unemployment benefits and civil service salaries, hit members of this party perhaps more than any other section of the public, and the dilemma faced by the party leaders was painful in the extreme.

If they bowed to Bruening's insistence that the decrees take effect July 1 without tampering by the Reichstag, they risked the wrath of their own followers.

Outstanding Victory for Bruening.

On the other hand, if they defied the chancellor and his government resigned, a reactionary government of the right or the turmoil of a new election loomed ahead.

As the Socialist president of the Reichstag, Paul Loebe, expressed it, an election could be expected only to "radicalize the masses" at the expense of all moderate parties.

For Bruening, on the other hand, it was an outstanding victory. He is now free to bend all his energies on the difficult and delicate task of furthering reparations negotiations without fear of complications in the Reichstag until at least October 13, when Parliament is scheduled to meet again.

Two Marines Are Slain By Rebels in Nicaragua

(Associated Press.)

Two marines were reported to the Navy Department yesterday to have been killed in an engagement with insurgents in Nicaragua. They were Lieut. Lester E. Power, of Calistoga, Calif., whose widow, Mrs. Mary Jane Power, lives at Quantico, Va., and Sergt. William E. McGhee, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Beauty Beat Parents, Death Probe Reveals

Prosecutor, Clinging to Belief Starr Faithfull Was Murdered, Again Quizzes Relatives; Believes Two Hunted Men Hold Key to Mystery.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Along half a hundred new trails the State today pursued clews to the mysterious death a week ago of Starr Faithfull, beautiful young Greenwich Village girl. At Mineola her mother, sister and step-father were questioned lengthily again for intimate facts of her troubled life.

The Nassau County district attorney's office was a beehive of activity. Prosecutor Elvin Edwards, adhering to his belief the 25-year-old beauty was murdered, pressed his search for two men with whom Starr told her mother she spent a part of the day before her disappearance.

Edwards described the men as Jack Greenway and Bruce Winston. "These men," he declared, "are highly important. If we can find them and learn where Miss Faithfull was the day before she disappeared, we'll have the mystery solved, I believe."

He emphasized they were sought merely for questioning. Starr had said she was with them in the apartment of Harry Stoner, an artist. Stoner said they had not been there.

A statement was issued in Boston by Alexander Whiteside, an attorney, in behalf of former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, of the Massachusetts city, declaring that Peters had no evidence to give in the inquiry.

"Mr. Edwards knows Mr. Peters has no information to give and never has approached him about the case," Mr. Whiteside asserted.

"This girl was a distant cousin of Mr. Peters' wife," he said. "Mr. Peters has told me that never in his life did he have any improper relations with her in any way whatsoever."

District Attorney Edwards said he attached great importance to the report of Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, of Bellevue Hospital, noted toxicologist, that the girl was under the influence of a sleeping potion when she met death by drowning in the surf at Long Beach. Her body was found there last Monday by a beachcomber. Edwards intended, he said, to try to find where the girl got the drug. Detectives visited every drug store in Long Beach today in an effort to find the source.

Detectives also visited a score of bungalows at the resort, some of them unoccupied. Late last night the prosecutor inspected some of these dwellings. In only one was anything like a clew found, he said. It was a newspaper, dated a week ago Friday, the day of Starr's disappearance and was the only evidence the cottage had been occupied in many days. The paper was opened upon a living room table. The cottage stands not far from where Starr's body was imbedded in the shifting sands.

Stanley E. Faithfull, the girl's stepfather, today reiterated his belief Starr was murdered. When asked if he had any idea who killed her, he said: "Absolutely none."

Tucker Faithfull today was quoted by District Attorney Edwards as saying, after long questioning:

"I'm not sorry for Starr's death. She's happier. Every one is happier."

Frazer Is Given Chair For Woman's Murder

The automobile shown in the background is the one in which William M. Frazer (left) passed through Washington with the body of Mrs. Phoebe Stader. It was shown in court as he consulted counsel.

Condemned Man Tells of Stop in Capital With Corpse in Car.

Elizabeth, N. J., June 16 (U.P.).—William B. Frazer was convicted tonight and sentenced to die in the electric chair the week of July 27 for the murder of his sweetheart, Mrs. Phoebe Stader.

It was one of the swiftest trials ever held in this State, and Alexander Simpson, Frazer's chief counsel, indicated he would ask for an appeal. The jury was selected in 23 minutes yesterday. The prosecution offered two witnesses and rested.

The State accused Frazer of killing Mrs. Stader and taking her body to Virginia. The woman was shot while she and Frazer were driving to their Rahway homes from a tryst at Walden, N. Y. His defense was that he accidentally shot her in reaching for a rifle to defend himself against men he believed were bandits.

Frazer testified in his own defense, telling how he related the entire affair to his cousin, Ira Jensen, who advised him either to turn himself over to police or to commit suicide. He decided on suicide, drove in his car with Jensen to some dense woods

BRITAIN'S POLITICAL CRISIS PROVES JOKE

Proposal Threatening Life of MacDonald Ministry Held Out of Order.

London, June 16 (A.P.).—The mother of parliaments today uproariously laughed off the political crisis that had threatened to overthrow the Labor government.

With the House of Commons all set for a big debate and a critical vote late tonight, the presiding officer ruled the whole show out of order.

Days and nights of anxious negotiations, conducted under the threat of a general election, terminated in an anticlimax. For a moment Parliament was dazed. Then puckish David Lloyd George started the chuckling from his place in the Liberal benches.

Ramsay MacDonald, grave chief of the ruling Laborites, joined in.

Laughter spread to the opposition Conservative benches which had hoped for a definite break-up of the Liberal and Labor alliance and soon the whole chamber was rocking with laughter over the fiasco of Great Britain's latest political crisis.

A Liberal amendment to Chancellor Philip Snowden's land tax proposals was declared out of order on a technical point of procedure. The amendment altered the basis of assessment for the proposed land tax but the clause of the finance bill which it sought to amend deals not with the basis of assessment but with the question of relief from the tax.

After commons had its laugh over this unexpected turn in events, humdrum parliamentary business proceeded while disappointed visitors filed out of the galleries, from which many had hoped to see the government in its death struggle.

In effect today's events constituted another reprieve for the Labor government; but inasmuch as it lives and thrives on reprieves, Prime Minister MacDonald and his colleagues were eminently satisfied at the outcome.

The Liberals also were pleased with the result of the pressure they exerted on the government over the issue of "double taxation" under Mr. Snowden's land-tax proposals. They considered they had scored a triumph.

COOLIDGE MAY TAKE STUMP FOR HOOVER

Marion Speech Is Regarded as Indicating Plan to Aid Campaign.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The familiar Yankee accent of Calvin Coolidge, coming over the radio from Marion, Ohio, yesterday afternoon, led friends of President Herbert Hoover here to speculate on what part the sage of Northampton might play in the 1932 campaign.

In introducing President Hoover at the dedication of the Harding Memorial, former President Coolidge praised his "patience, courage and ability," and called upon all Americans to support him in these difficult days.

"The people have known," he said, "that whatever could be done for their benefit and relief President Hoover would do."

The expectation is that, in 1932 Mr. Coolidge will take to the stump and become the star spellbinder for President Hoover. That his services will be sought and will be appreciated goes without saying, not only because Coolidge still has a tremendous influence, but because outstanding orators are going to be needed by the Republicans in 1932.

In the 1928 campaign, the two men who were regarded as the "aces" of the Hoover oratorical forces were Charles Evans Hughes, of New York, and Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho. Now Mr. Hughes is the Chief Justice of the United States and therefore must remain mute so far as politics are concerned. As for Senator Borah, nobody can say now just what he will do, although if past performances mean anything, he will be regular when the time comes. However, nobody expects him to be as inspired as he was in 1928.

Thus, the value of Calvin Coolidge as a campaign orator becomes apparent.

That Coolidge still has a tremendous following is evident from the frequent booms for him, the many movements to put him in the White House again. A recent poll by The Post showed that a number of Republican delegates to the Kan-

Detroit Will Request Ford To Share Part of Dole Cost

Public Welfare Head Asks Motor Company in Letter What to Do With 3,000 of Its Idle Employes Now Aided by City.

Detroit, Mich., June 16 (A.P.).—The City of Detroit tonight was preparing to ask the Ford Motor Co. to assume a portion of the $1,500,000 monthly municipal dole expense.

Indications of this intention were forthcoming from Mayor Frank Murphy's office, when Thomas E. Dolan, superintendent of public welfare, submitted to the mayor a letter in which he asked the Ford company where the city should send 3,000 former Ford employes who, he said, are receiving municipal doles. In the letter Dolan called the Ford company's attention to the statement of Harry H. Bennett, its service director, that the company cared for its own welfare cases.

Dolan's letter and an investigation now being made by the police department are an aftermath of Bennett's charge that the city had paid dole to 329 persons who actually were employed at the Ford factory at the time, and that other fraud is extensive. Patrick J. O'Grady, superintendent of police, today was given photostatic copies of Ford pay roll sheets on which the names of these persons appeared. Mayor Murphy last week demanded these records to substantiate Bennett's charges.

The mayor frequently has spoken of the city's expense in paying doles to former employes of concerns, like the Ford Motor Co., which operate in suburbs and pay no municipal taxes. The controversy flared into the open last week with Bennett's charges, which followed discovery of a $207,000 embezzlement in the welfare department.

HOOVER EXTOLS HARDING, FLAYS HIS BETRAYERS

Late President Warmly Lauded in Dedication Rites at Tomb.

COOLIDGE ALSO PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEMORY

Wreaths Laid on Memorial; Chief Executive Reviews Columbus Parade.

Columbus, Ohio, June 16 (A.P.).—President Herbert Hoover's special train was rushing northwestward tonight across Ohio toward Illinois, closing a busy day in Ohio for the Nation's Chief Executive. Tomorrow Mr. Hoover will rededicate the reconstructed tomb of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Ill.

The President spent five busy hours in the Buckeye State today, under ideal weather conditions. First he dedicated the Harding Memorial Tomb at Marion and then he came to Columbus, where he reviewed a parade of the Ohio G. A. R.

When the parade ended, Mr. Hoover was escorted to the rotunda of the State Capitol, where he shook the hands of the reception committee, members of the Ohio General Assembly and several hundred citizens.

Hoover Cheered by Throng.

After spending a few minutes in Gov. White's office, the President returned to the railroad station. The streets were banked deep with cheering citizens as the caravan passed. In the President's car were President and Mrs. Hoover, Gov. White and the First Lady of Ohio, his daughter, Miss Mary White; Allan Hoover and three secret service men.

Marion, Ohio, June 16 (A.P.).—Beside the stately marble memorial to Warren G. Harding, President Hoover today hallowed his name and memory with a denunciation of those who betrayed his trust.

Mr. Hoover leveled his accusation and official condemnation of those "low men" who betrayed their friend and country, in dedicating the memorial of the twenty-ninth President.

Calvin Coolidge, successor of Warren Harding, and a host of those called to official life by the late President, joined in the simple ceremony before a vast throng of citizens on the broad grounds surrounding the memorial on the edge of Marion. Mr. Coolidge accepted the memorial on behalf of the Nation.

Place Wreaths on Tombs.

Almost in the shadow of the weeping willow watching over the tomb of Harding, the President and Mr. Coolidge declared their tributes to the public service of their former chief.

Intent silence held the audience as Mr. Hoover, who served in the scandal-seared official family of the late President, raised his accusing voice. As the President concluded, the male chorus sang Mr. Harding's favorite hymn, "The End of a Perfect Day."

As the hymn was sung, the President and Mr. Coolidge placed wreaths on the tombs of the late President and Mrs. Harding.

"Warren Harding," said the President in a low voice, "had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he trusted, by men whom he believed were his devoted friends.

"It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their stanch and loyal friend but they had betrayed their country. That was the tragedy of the life of Warren Harding.

Greatest Crime of All.

"There are disloyalties and there are crimes which shock our sensibilities, which may bring suffering upon those who are touched by their immediate results. But there is no disloyalty and no crime in all the category of human weaknesses which compares with the failure of probity in the conduct of public trust. Monetary loss or even the shock to moral sensibilities is perhaps a passing thing, but the breaking down of the faith of a people in the honesty of their Government and in the integrity of their institutions, the lowering of respect for the standards of honor which prevail in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never atone.

"Those acts never touched the character of Warren Harding."

Mr. Hoover recalled his own journey

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States with Warren Harding on his fatal trip to Alaska eight years ago.

"We came to know," he said, "that here was a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment. We saw him gradually weaken not only from physical exhaustion, but from mental anxiety."

Coolidges Greet Hoovers.

Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge met the President and Mrs. Hoover on the platform erected beside the memorial. The President shook hands as he met his predecessor upon his arrival.

Mr. Coolidge introduced President Hoover, and spoke of "his patience and ability" in leading the Nation in this period.

Marion, which eight years ago basked in the Nation's limelight as the unofficial Capital, welcomed warmly again American officialdom to its quiet, tree-lined streets. Flags waved from almost every building and marked the route from the station to the memorial.

Many of those who were called to Marion by Warren Harding as he composed his official party were here again. Harry S. New, of Indiana, who served as Postmaster General under Harding, came here with President Hoover.

Charles G. Dawes, Ambassador to Great Britain, who was Mr. Harding's director of the budget, met the presidential party at the station.

Daugherty Among Spectators.

Harry M. Daugherty, intimate of Harding and his Attorney General, was seated about three rows back on the center of the platform. He retired shortly after Harding's death.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader and colleague of Harding in the Senate, and Postmaster General Brown, who comes from Ohio, also accompanied the presidential party here.

Gov. White of Ohio, with Senators Fess and Bulkley, of this State, welcomed the President upon his arrival.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, former senator from New Jersey and chairman of the Harding Memorial Association, tendered the memorial to Calvin Coolidge on behalf of the association. The memorial, a circular structure with marble columns, was built from subscriptions from the people.

Most of the route through the city to the memorial was lined by people who applauded frequently both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Coolidge as their separate cars passed.

Warmly Praise Harding.

Both the President and former President lauded the personal qualities of Warren Harding and as fellow workers with him paid tribute to his efforts as leader of the Nation in the trying postwar period.

"It would be difficult," Mr. Coolidge said, "to find any peace-time period of a little over two years when so much that was beneficial was accomplished as during his administration."

"President Harding had experience and ability, courage and patience, combined with a generous toleration and cheerful optimism that inspired confidence. He understood the people and people understood him. In composing a situation, in pacifying men, he was a master."

Daugherty Praises Orations at Tomb

Harding Cabinet Member Lauds Tributes Paid Dead President.

Marion, Ohio, June 17 (A.P.).—Without mentioning any of the Harding Memorial dedication addresses specifically, Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney General in the Harding Cabinet, tonight said, "I thoroughly approve of the orations made here today by the distinguished speakers.

"Their fine tributes to President Harding form a fitting climax to the work of the Harding Memorial Association and reflect honor on themselves, their country and its future."

Mr. Daugherty, a trustee of the memorial association, played a part in early plans for the dedication. Following failure to have the memorial dedicated last year, Mr. Daugherty introduced a resolution adopted by the trustees to drop the matter pending definite word from Washington. The resolution declared it was an injustice to the memory of Harding to "importune any one in high authority to do honor to his memory."

COOLIDGE AID SEEN IN 1932 CAMPAIGN

sas City convention are still in favor of nominating him for another term.

Mr. Coolidge, however, put at rest any talk of his running again when he recently said:

"If President Hoover can't be elected in 1932, then no Republican can be elected."

A strong party man, Mr. Coolidge has never hesitated to do his part when called upon. In the last congressional campaign he tried to swing Massachusetts to his friend, William H. Butler, but the Democratic tide was too strong, and Marcus H. Coolidge, a Democrat, was elected to the United States Senate.

Criticized for Silence in 1928.

In the 1928 presidential campaign Mr. Coolidge was frequently criticized because he did not say something favorable about Herbert Hoover. Dr. Hubert Work, then chairman of the Republican national committee, even went to the White House and importuned him to make a couple of speeches for Mr. Hoover. That, of course, was early in the campaign, when Gov. Alfred E. Smith had the Republican workers somewhat terrified.

Toward the end, President Coolidge made it clear that he held Mr. Hoover in high regard and was anxious to have him elected, but by that time the voters were "set" anyway.

According to men who were close to him at the time, there were two reasons why Mr. Coolidge refrained from taking too active a part in the campaign. First, he was thoroughly convinced from the time that the conventions were held that Herbert Hoover would be elected. Secondly, remembering how Theodore Roosevelt put William Howard Taft in the White House and then split with him over appointments, he felt that Hoover would rather think that he had been elected on his own merits and without the aid of the occupant of the White House.

Republicans here yesterday admitted that it was a bit early to be speculating on campaign orators, but then, they pointed out, this is an early starting campaign. All of them regard President Hoover's trip to the Midwest as the opening of his campaign for reelection.

Text of Hoover Address At Harding Memorial

The text of the President's address dedicating the Harding Memorial follows:

We are assembled here to dedicate the tomb of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States. This beautiful monument, erected by the voluntary subscriptions of the people, symbolizes their respect for his memory. It has been their response with tender remembrance to a kindly and gentle spirit. As future years come and go each of them will be marked by gatherings here of his friends and the people of a grateful democracy, for democracy has ever paid respect and tribute to those who have given her service.

Warren G. Harding came from the people. Born just at the close of the Civil War, it became his responsibility to lead the republic in a period of reconstruction from aother great war in which our democracy had again demonstrated its unalterable resolve to withstand encroachment upon its independence and to deserve the respect of the world.

Great as are the problems of the conflict, the burdens of statesmanship are equally difficult in the rehabilitation of social and economic life after the disclosation of war. Above all, the burden is heavy in composing the hates and prejudices which smoulder and threaten long after the formal documents of peace are signed.

Country in Turmoil After War.

As the aftermath of war our national finances were disorganized, taxes overwhelming, agriculture and business were prostrate, and unemployment widespread. Our country was torn with injustices to those racial groups of our own citizens descended from the enemy nations. Violent bitterness had arisen over the treaty of Versailles.

These evil spirits aroused by war, augmented by inestimable losses, deep animosities, the dislocations of industry, the vast unemployment in a world still armed and arming, confronted Warren G. Harding. He brought to the office of President a long experience in public affairs, together with the character and spirit of which the republic was then in need. His was a mind and character fitted for a task where the one transcendent need was the healing quality of gentleness and friendliness. It was his mission to compose prejudices and conflicts at home, to lessen the threats of renewed wars through the world. He succeeded in those tasks. When in two years he died, new peace treaties had been made in terms which won the support of our people; tranquillity had been restored at home; employment had been renewed and a long period of prosperity had begun.

And he succeeded further. The Washington arms conference for the reduction and limitation of battleships identified his administration with the first step in history toward the disarmament of the world. That step was accompanied by the momentous treaties which restored good will among the nations bordering upon the Pacific Ocean and gave to all the world inestimable blessings of peace and security.

Other Constructive Acts Pointed Out.

The new and changing problems of later years have not obscured the many other constructive acts of his administration. The reorganization and reduction of the public debt, the reduction in taxation, the creation of the budget system, the better organization of industry and employment, new services to agriculture, the establishment of a permanent system of care for disabled veterans and their dependents—are, but some of the enlightened measures which he inspired and advanced.

But this is neither the time nor the place in historic retrospect to catalogue his many services to our country. They will be recorded and gratefully remembered by his countrymen.

Our thoughts today turn to the man himself. My first meeting with Warren Harding ever lingers in my memory. It was during the war and in a time of the greatest strain and anxiety. Late one evening the then Senator Harding, whom I had never met, came to my office. When he was announced there flashed into my mind the thought that here was come complaint or a request for some appointment. Instead the senator said simply, "I have not come to get anything. I just want you to know that if you wish the help of a friend, telephone me what you want. I am here to serve and to help." That statement, I came to learn, was typical of him. I refer to it now because it reveals the nature of the man.

Showed Strain on Last Trip.

I was one of those who accompanied the late President on his fateful trip across the continent and to Alaska. He had wished to learn from the people their needs and to translate to them his own aspirations. Those who were his companions on that journey realized full well that he had overstrained even his robust strength in the gigantic task which confronted him during the previous two years. And we came also to know that here was a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment. We saw him gradually weaken, not only from physical exhaustion, but from mental anxiety. Warren Harding had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted, by men whom he had believed were his devoted friends. It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their stanch and loyal friend but they had betrayed their country. That was the tragedy of the life of Warren Harding.

There are disloyalties and there are crimes which shock our sensibilities, which may bring suffering upon those who are touched by their immediate results. But there is no disloyalty and no crime in all the category of human weaknesses which compares with the failure of probity in the conduct of public trust. Monetary loss or even the shock to the moral sensibilities is perhaps a passing thing, but the breaking down of the faith of a people in the honesty of their government and in the integrity of their institutions, the lowering of respect for the standards of honor which prevail in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never atone.

Had "Delicate Sense of Honor."

Warren Harding gave his life in worthy accomplishment for his country. He was a man of delicate sense of honor, of sympathetic heart, of transcendent gentleness of soul—who reached out for friendship, who gave of it loyalty and generously in his every thought and deed. He was a man of passionate patriotism. He was a man of deep religious feeling. He was devoted to his fellow men. No revelation of his character can equal that of his own words just before his death. They were a part of his last public statement. I quote:

"We need less of sectarianism, less of denominationalism, less of fanatical zeal and its exactions, and more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practice, and a new and abiding consecration and reverence for God. I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood. * * * We do rise to heights at times when we look for the good rather than the evil in others, and give consideration to the views of all. The inherent love of fellowship is banding men together, and when envy and suspicion are vanquished, fraternity records a triumph and brotherhood brings new blessings to men and to peoples. * * * Christ was the prince of peace, and we who seek to render his name glorious must move in the ways of peace and brotherhood and loving service."

He gave his life in that spirit, and in that spirit we pay tribute to his memory.

LAVAL LAUDS BRIAND IN ATTACK BY FOES

Premier Indorses Foreign Policy; Confidence Is Voted Cabinet.

Paris, June 16 (A.P.).—Thanks to the intervention of Premier Laval, Aristide Briand, France's veteran foreign minister, today weathered another bitter attack on his foreign policy in the Chamber of Deputies. It was the third assault within a fortnight.

Except for an "all that you say is false," at his chief critic, Deputy Franklin-Bouillon, Briand himself did not take part in the debate.

Premier Laval reminded the deputies that it would be most dangerous to seek a new line-up in the chamber at a moment when France's foreign policy demanded tact and adroitness more than ever. He defended Briand's conduct of his office and said that the foreign minister's policy was that of the entire government.

Promote Frontier Security.

The government, Laval said, has neglected nothing that would promote the security of the French frontier.

"All those who have given their confidence to the government are partisans of peace," he said. "France has made generous overtures toward peace and no suspicion can be lodged against them. I demand a vote of confidence for the men at my side."

The premier carried the day by a majority of 43 for his second cabinet. The majority was later increased to 51 when the formal vote was taken on the text of the motion sponsored by the government.

Vote Confirms Cabinet.

Laval has been in power for five months. His first cabinet resigned as a matter of form Saturday when President Paul Doumer took over the office from President Gaston Doumergue. The new president asked Premier Laval to continue in office and the premier immediately presented the complete list of members of his former cabinet as the slate for his new one. This cabinet is now confirmed by the chamber.

In his inaugural message, read to the senate and chamber of deputies this afternoon, President Doumer said the problems hinging upon settlement of war debts and the execution of the peace treaties must be solved by frankness and good faith among the nations.

SEA YIELDS BODIES OF 77 SHIP VICTIMS

One That of Outing Vessel's Captain Who Was Soon to Be Retired.

Nantes, France, June 16 (A.P.).—Seventy-seven victims of the 450 believed to have been drowned in the sinking of the excursion boat St. Philbert had been accounted for tonight, but not all of them have been identified. The bodies of two men were washed ashore this afternoon, where three others were found in the morning.

One of the two washed up this afternoon was that of Capt. Ollive, of the ill-fated steamer. He was 52 years old and ready to retire from active service when he took command of the boat for Sunday's excursion by special request.

A supply of coffins has been rushed to the shore, in which the bodies are placed as soon as they are recovered. Coast guards and police have been detailed to assist in the search for the bodies along the beach.

City and department officials were preparing today for a collective funeral on Thursday at St. Peter's Cathedral. Afterward, it was understood, the families and relatives of the victims will inter their own loved ones.

A group of relatives of the victims became angered when army officers refused to admit visitors to the mortuary chapel unless relationship to some of the victims was established. This routine took time and some of the crowd threatened to storm the doors.

Byrd's Radio Operator In Line for Citizenship

Carl O. Peterson, radio operator with Rear Admiral Byrd's South Pole expedition, is on his way to becoming an American citizen. The commissioner of naturalization, Raymond F. Crist, yesterday forwarded to New York papers in the case which had been sent to Washington for minor corrections.

Peterson, a Norwegian, created considerable comment while the Byrd expedition was at "Little America" by applying by radio for his final citizenship papers. Commissioner Crist at the time ruled that no such petition may come from outside the United States. Peterson, on his return to this country, was advised it would be necessary for him to complete his legal residence before he could get his final papers. The time has now expired.

SPRINGFIELD FILLED FOR LINCOLN RITES

Hotels Crowded as Hoover Nears City to Dedicate War Chief's Tomb.

Springfield, Ill., June 16 (A.P.).—Holding Illinois' most sacred possession, the body of the martyred Emancipator, the tomb of Abraham Lincoln tonight was under guard to keep its newness untouched for the dedicating hand of President Herbert Hoover tomorrow.

All hotels in the city were filled tonight, and turning guests away, in a great ingathering that drew from a dozen Midwestern States.

Legislators opening the last week of the Fifty-seventh General Assembly worked at full speed so as to have ample time to greet the Chief Executive at a joint session to be held in the State Arsenal shortly after his train arrives tomorrow morning. In deference to President Hoover's wishes all of them are to meet him and grasp his hand.

While the President is occupied at the joint session, which will be devoid of set speeches, Mrs. Hoover will review 500 Springfield Girl Scouts from whom she will receive the wreath to place on Lincoln's Tomb.

As President Hoover turned his course toward Illinois the fact was recalled that just 70 years ago last February Abraham Lincoln delivered his farewell address here from the back of a train and headed eastward to the White House, the Civil War and martyrdom.

Tonight word was received naming the members of the President's official party. It includes, besides President and Mrs. Hoover, their son, Allan; Secretary of the Interior Robert Lamont, Postmaster General Walter Brown and Mrs. Brown, Private Secretaries Lawrence Richey and Theodore G. Joslin, Assistant Secretary of Labor; R. Carl White, Col. Campbell B. Hodges and Capt. Charles R. Train, military and naval aids; Capt. Joel T. Boone, private physician; Ambassador and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, and Senator and Mrs. Otis F. Glenn.

Relief Continued In Drought States

Red Cross Aid to 38,545 Families Includes New Regions Menaced.

(Associated Press.)

Red Cross officials said yesterday 38,545 families still were receiving aid in drought stricken States.

Two of the Northwestern States already threatened with crop destruction from lack of rainfall this year are on the list. They are Montana and North Dakota. Ten chapters are engaged in relief work in the former State.

Moisture shortages have been reported for Idaho, Washington and Oregon also, but Red Cross officials said they had received no new requests for assistance.

Information as to the number of States in which relief work was proceeding was not forthcoming from the organization. Pending the fiscal year-end financial statement due at the end of this month, no estimate was available of the amount of unexpended funds left from the $18,000,000 the organization devoted to drought relief during the winter and spring.

WARRANTLESS RAID CASE NOT PUSHED

Federal Attorney Refuses to Prosecute Baroni, Arrested Twice.

The second visit the "Four Horsemen" made to Frank Baroni, on Ninth street near D street northwest, did not get by in Police Court yesterday. Assistant United States Attorney Frank Adams refused to issue papers against Baroni and the charge against him was dropped.

Baroni was taken in one of the warrantless raids. The first time he was arrested, the case got by the preliminary test in Police Court and trial of the charge of permitting gaming is still pending. The police arrested Baroni half an hour after he had been arraigned in Police Court on the first arrest.

The decision of the assistant United States attorney was that there was insufficient evidence against Baroni. Baroni was first arrested June 3.

At the same time that Baroni was freed of the second charge, Police Court officers announced that the cases against Steve John Nichols, Thomas W. Simon, Joseph Lewis and Frank O. Davis, calendared for today, have been reassigned and will not be heard until next week.

A motion to suppress the evidence against the men because of lack of a warrant by the arresting officers was overruled by Judge Isaac R. Hitt.

Civic Groups Plan To Hold Play Day

District Officials Will Be Guests Tomorrow at Marshall Hall.

A Play Day, sponsored jointly by the Federation of Citizens Association and the Parent-Teacher Congress, will be held tomorrow at Marshall Hall, with District and school officials as guests of honor.

Among the guests will be Sol Bloom, director of the Geroge Washington Bicentennial Commission; Dr. Lloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, and chairman of the District bicentennial committee; Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner; Dr. Frank W. Ballou, head of the school system; Stephen Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, and others.

The District playground department will send eight playground directors to supervise the games to be held at the resort, and music will be given by a select high school band under the direction of Capt. Ludwig E. Monoly. Community singing will be under the leadership of William R. Schmucker. Thomas J. Llewellyn is general chairman of the joint committee of the two organizations.

Moccasin Routs Farmer.

Corinth, Miss., June 16 (U.P.).—When Charlie Kemp, farmer, was driving to town he felt something squeezing his ankle. It was a large highland moccasin. Kemp jumped out of the car, losing the snake in midair.

Achievements of Harding Outstanding, Says Coolidge

Former President Coolidge spoke as follows at the dedication of the Harding Memorial at Marion, Ohio, yesterday:

Mr. President and My Fellow Citizens:

In behalf of the Harding Memorial Association I formally accept this stately monument erected to the memory of Warren Gamaliel Harding, the twenty-ninth President of the United States. It is fittingly located in the city where he so long made his home, among the neighbors and friends whom he loved and who loved him. In his absence his fondest thoughts constantly turned in this direction. Here above all other places he would wish his last resting place to be located, where he has found peace in surroundings that will be a constant reminder of him. In the future years not even a stranger could approach this shrine without some sense of that charming cordiality that could not be described but was always felt by all who came in contact with him.

His social graces, however, were only an appropriate setting for a strong and rugged personality. He was not taken from obscurity and raised by fate to the White House. He won his place in public life step by step. For years a newspaper publisher and editor, meantime a State senator, a lieutenant governor, a United States senator, chairman of the National Republican convention in 1916—this was the solid and substantial groundwork of experience in public service by which he fitted himself for the office of President of this Republic. Nor was he unknown to the people. He had ranged far and wide as the principal speaker at many banquets and the orator of the day on many public occasions. To whatever position he was called he demonstrated his power by work done.

Time Calls Right Men.

It often has been remarked that when a particular crisis in human affairs has required a certain type of ability to meet it the right man has appeared. Whether this is because the times call the man or because there are latent powers in all of us which give those who become charged with responsibility the ability to respond by rising above themselves, it is impossible to decide. Perhaps it is enough to know that when the world has a work to do some one appears who is able to do it.

It seems as though President Harding was preeminently fitted to serve the country in the disturbed and distraught period following the war. He had experience and ability, courage and patience, combined with a generous toleration and cheerful optimism that inspired confidence. He had a natural gift of expression which he had developed into an art. He understood the people and the people understood him. In composing a situation, in pacifying men he was a master.

Those qualities which were so much needed in our own country and in the world he brought to the presidential office. When he began his term our domestic situation was chaotic. Credit was over extended. Commodity prices had experienced a perpendicular decline. Unemployment was extensive. Agriculture was prostrate. The national debt was enormous. War taxes prevailed. Government expenses were heavy. All kinds of business were in distress.

Foreign Relations Precarious.

Our foreign relations were precarious. We had rejected the treaty of Versailles but we had not made peace. We were engaged in building the greatest navy in the world. The islands in the Pacific Ocean were a source of friction. Europe looked on us with suspicion.

To deal with these problems President Harding summoned the Congress and kept it in session for nearly two years. The credit stringency was relieved by reviving the War Finance Corporation. Our markets were protected by enacting an emergency tariff law. Labor was protected by restricting immigration. A Budget Bureau was established and a system of rigid economy was adopted. To discharge our obligations to ex-service men the Veterans Bureau was organized. A new internal revenue law reduced taxes hundreds of millions of dollars annually. A permanent tariff bill gave protection to our markets in harmony with the new conditions of world trade. Surplus war materials and treasury assets were converted into cash to pay expenses and reduce debts. Several billions of short term governmental obligations were paid or refunded. The shipping business and the railroad administration were put in the way of liquidation.

While these measures were being adopted for our domestic benefit settlements of even greater magnitude were being made in the foreign field. Peace treaties were negotiated with those with whom we had been at war. A long standing difference with Colombia was generously composed. Diplomatic relations were resumed with Mexico. A commission was appointed under authority of the Congress to negotiate a settlement of our foreign debts under which an agreement was speedily made with Great Britain.

Race for Armaments.

In spite of a universally genuine desire for peace the world was engaging in a competitive race in armaments which was a source of expense and suspicion. To relieve humanity from this increasing menace President Harding called the historic Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments. A preliminary treaty was drafted for the present and future settlement of differences among the many international interests in the Pacific Ocean. The British and Japanese alliance was terminated. The five great maritime powers then entered into a solemn covenant limiting most of the different types of warships in respect to number, tonnage and armaments. When that treaty was signed it marked an epoch in history.

Such in barest outline are some of the policies adopted under the leadership of President Harding for the restoration of the United States and the pacification of the world. Under this benign influence trade revived and a better international understanding prevailed. He would be the last to claim all the credit for these accomplishments. He had the loyal and patriotic cooperation of public men within and without his own party. All he could do through governmental agencies was to proceed in harmony with sound economic laws which would strengthen and support the recuperative power of the people in working out their own business revival. He had the advantage, too, of the deeply interested and watchful care of a wife who was ever devoted to his welfare and shared with him his burdens. No record of his work would satisfy him which failed to recognize the helpful influence of Mrs. Harding, who sleeps here by his side.

For Era of Good Understanding.

Frequently he asserted that he desired his administration to be an era of good understanding. Conflicts between the Government and business he believed should be removed. Differences betwen capital and labor he wished to see adjusted. There was no room in his broad sympathy for any taint of sectionalism. But chiefly he was determined to use his great office to the full extent of its powers to prevent future wars. He was for good understanding among nations. His vision was broad. His statesmanship was inclusive. It would be difficult to find any peace time period of a little over two years when so much that was beneficial was accomplished as during his administration.

Before he could see the full fruition of his policies fate brought him to a tragic end. As we can now realize the wisdom of the foundation which he laid we are consoled by the thought that for some reason we can not fathom his work was done, his course was finished, he was gathered to his fathers, to rest in the peace which he had desired so fervently to bestow upon all humanity.

Week's Grain Exports Are 1,378,000 Bushels

(Associated Press.)

Exports of grains from the United States, in the week ended June 13, totaled 1,378,000 bushels, as compared with 4,141,000 in the preceding week, and 1,863,000 in the corresponding week of 1930.

Wheat exports reported to the Department of Commerce amounted to 1,327,000 bushels during the week ended June 13, against 4,038,000 in the preceding week; barley, 45,000, against 95,000; corn 1,000, against 9,000; rye, no exports; oats, 5,000, against 4,000. Canadian grains in transit from United States Atlantic ports totaled 1,410,000 bushels against 1,750,000.

CIRCLE ALTERATIONS DEPEND ON EXPERTS

Col. Grant Awaits Survey Report Before Acting on Proposals.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, will not consent to alterations proposed to relieve traffic congestion at Thomas and Logan circles until after a report is made by two experts of the Bureau of Public Roads on the traffic problems of all Washington circles, it was said in his behalf yesterday.

This survey, which will be a part of the regional traffic study to be made after July 1 by the Bureau of Public Roads, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and agencies of nearby Maryland and Virginia, is scheduled to take a year. Whether the study of the circles will require so much time could not be ascertained yesterday.

It appears likely, however, that the circle changes will not be accomplished this year, if at all, despite willingness of District officials to go ahead with the projects. Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, chief engineer of the highway department under whose supervision the plans were designed, said that the money is now available for the work.

As the park plots are under the control of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, the circles can not be cut through, either with street car tracks or a roadway, without permission of Col. Grant, whose first interest is naturally in preserving the beauty of the parks.

The two Bureau of Public Roads experts, who will make the circle study from a traffic point of view, were formerly pupils of Dr. Miller McClintock, of the Erskine Bureau of Traffic Research, Harvard University, who made the traffic survey for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission last year.

They will cooperate with W. A. Van Duzer, newly appointed District traffic director, in the undertaking.

Since the Capital Traction Co. has consented to bear the expense of rerouting its tracks through Thomas Circle, the only obstacle that remains to the proposal to model both Thomas and Logan Circles somewhat after Scott Circle is the refusal of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks to turn over the necessary park property for the tracks at Thomas Circle and the Thirteenth street roadway at Logan Circle.

5-HOUR ARGUMENT MADE IN HOTEL SUIT

Mayflower's Counsel Will Answer Petition for Receiver Today.

Attorneys representing bondholders who are seeking to have the Mayflower Hotel Co. thrown into receivership argued all day yesterday in support of their petition. Attorney Louis Horowitz, who, with Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, represents the five plaintiffs, spoke from 10 a. m. until court recessed at 3 p. m.

At that time he had concluded his case and had submitted to Justice Oscar R. Luhring innumerable authorities supporting the contention that receivers should be appointed for the $9,900,000 hotel property.

William E. Leahy, of counsel for the hotel, will direct his attention to the cases cited by the plaintiffs today. He signified his intention yesterday of attacking these citations as not being pertinent, in most cases. Levi Cooke, Edward F. Colladay and several others either associated with the hotel or representing large bond-owning interests will submit to Justice Luhring arguments opposing the granting of the receivership.

Because of the long list of authorities that have been submitted in the two day hearings, Justice Luhring will take the case under advisement for several days.

Kappa Beta Pis Elect Officers.

Mrs. Edwina Avery has been elected dean of the Eta Alumnae Chapter of Kappa Beta Pi legal sorority for the coming year. Others who have been elected to office are Miss Julia Banks, associate dean; Miss Lulu Praether, registrar; Miss Ruth Tech, chancellor, and Miss Mildred Reeves, marshal. Miss Grace M. Whelan was elected delegate to the international convention of the sorority in Atlantic City in September.

MISS THOM EXPIRES OF SUDDEN ILLNESS

Graduate of G. W. U. Won Attention as Artist While at School.

Miss Beatrice Thom, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Thom, who recently graduated from George Washington University, died Monday night at Garfield Hospital, following a sudden illness. She was 21 years old. A brother, Richard Thom, submitted to a blood transfusion in a futile effort to save her life.

Miss Thom, born in Storrn, Conn., came to this city several years ago with her parents. Her father is a mycologist in the Bureau of Chemistry and Solls at the Department of Agriculture.

A graduate of Western High School, Miss Thom entered George Washington University in 1927, and received her bachelor of arts degree last week. She was a member of the Alpha Delta Theta Sorority. Miss Thom was widely known at the university as an artist, having specialized in that subject while studying for her degree. She was a member of the university orchestra and took an active part in many school sports.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from her home at 1703 Twenty-first street northwest. The body will be taken to Storrn for interment.

Liquor Conspiracy Is Charged to Nine

Woman Under Indictment With 8 Men; Link With Ring Is Seen.

Eight men and a woman were indicted for conspiring to violate the national prohibition laws in two indictments handed down by the District grand jury yesterday.

One of the indictments names men who are allegedly connected with the Mendelson-Lerner-Kushner ring recently convicted before Justice Oscar R. Luhring. They are Jacob Skulsky, alias "Philadelphia Jake," Samuel Glasser, John A. Fentress, alias Jack Gordon, Maurice Glasser, and Nathan Cosman.

For various reasons the Government did not bring these men to trial when the others in the ring were tried. Some had not been taken into custody, one was at liberty in Philadelphia under a United States Commissioner's jurisdiction, and others were not known by name. The other indictment named Michael Tilton, alias Milton Tilton, Julia Tilton, Walter Keener, and David Tavan, alias David Taven.

Judge's Hat Target Of Boy Marksman

Hitt's Straw Is Pierced by Young Neighbor's Air-Rifle Shot.

A William Tell stunt that involved an air rifle and a judge of the Police Court came to light yesterday when Judge Isaac R. Hitt exhibited a new straw hat with a small hole in it. The judge's head also bore a slight abrasion.

While the judge was walking to his garage yesterday morning, one of the neighbor's children took aim at his headgear and, with somewhat too accurate aim, put a BB shot through the judge's hat. When Judge Hitt lifted his hat to examine the damage, the missile dropped to the ground.

The judge took the affair in good spirit. He did not hale the culprit into court. Indeed, he even went so far as to praise the marksmanship of his youthful "gunman" neighbor.

Dog's Owner Pays For Torn Trousers

Court Orders Settlement of $8; Victim Was Not Bitten by Canine.

A ruling affecting the liability of owners of dogs was placed on the records yesterday.

Police Court Judge Robert E. Mattingly directed that Daniel Spriggs, owner of the dog, pay William C. Allen $8 for damages Allen's trousers sustained from the dog. At the same time Spriggs was freed of a charge of keeping an unmuzzled dog because the animal's teeth did not inflict personal damage. The court took Spriggs' personal bond provided he paid over the $8.

It was testified that Allen's trousers had been badly torn by the dog, but that he had not actually been bitten.

ice duty with a $600 annual compensation increase.

The new inspection districts and the territory they will cover are: First Inspection District, headquarters at the present Second Precinct station house on Fifth street northwest, between M and N, taking in the First, Second, Third and Tenth Precincts. The First Precinct is merged with the Sixth Precinct, which is abolished, with headquarters for that precinct at the present Sixth Precinct station house on New Jersey avenue between D and E streets northwest.

Second and Eighth Merged.

The Second and Eighth Precincts also are merged, with headquarters at the present Eighth Precinct, which precinct designation is eliminated.

The Seventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Precincts will comprise the Second Inspection District, with headquarters at the Fourteenth Precinct, while the Third Inspection District will be made up of the Fifth, Ninth, Eleventh, Fourth and Harbor Precincts. Headquarters of the Fourth District will be at the Fourth Precinct station.

Relieved from duty at the Sixth Precinct, Capt. W. G. Stott under the plan is transferred to Administrative Headquarters and assigned to duty as officer in charge of property and uniforms.

Letterman Is Transferred.

Capt. W. E. Holmes leaves the command of the Eleventh Precinct to take over the First, and Capt. Hugh H. Grove, of the Eighth Precinct, succeeds to the command of the Second Precinct. Capt. L. I. H. Edwards, of the Detective Bureau, becomes officer in charge of the Bureau of Personnel, Statistics and Information.

Notable among the transfers are the shift of Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman from the Sixth Precinct to headquarters of the new Third Inspections District; Lieut. John E. Fowler, from the Tenth Precinct to the Detective Bureau; Lieut. Richard H. Mansfield, from the Fifth Precinct to the Detective Bureau, and Lieut. Frank A. Varney from the First to the Third Precinct.

Eleven privates are transferred from various precincts to the special investigation squad, commanded by Inspector Bean. These include H. G. Bauer, Thirteenth Precinct; W. A. Shotter, Traffic Bureau; C. D. Schamp, Tenth Precinct; G. E. Thornton, Ninth Precinct; B. F. Day, Third Precinct; C. P. Flynn, Fourteenth Precinct; E. C. O'Meara, Sixth Precinct; C. H. Warder, Eleventh Precinct; R. A. Williams, Eighth Precinct; C. S. Dwyer, Second Precinct, and W. C. C. Wrenn, Seventh Precinct.

in order to adopt whatever resolution it might believe pertinent, but, having notice that the cardinal, finally dropping his incognito, had convoked a reunion of priests and other ecclesiastical dignitaries at Guadalajara the past Sunday, did not vascillate in asking him anew to abandon Spain, giving him the maximum facilities."

A document signed by a group of prominent Spanish Catholics and protesting against the government's recent attitude toward the Catholic Church was made public earlier.

Vatican City, June 16 (A.P.).—Pope Pius has instructed the papal nuncio at Madrid to file a protest with the Spanish government against the expulsion of Cardinal Segura.

The newspaper Osservatore Romano, which published the protest today, quotes the Pontiff as saying the cardinal was his representative, the representative of Catholic Spain and the Catholic world, and that his expulsion offends all of them.

Change of Bus Stop Suggested to Board

Location at Entrance to Postoffice Department Assailed.

Transfer of the bus stop now situated in front of the Postoffice Department to the east side of Eleventh street, just north of C street, was recommended yesterday to the Public Utilities Commission by Earl V. Fisher, executive secretary, after he had studied the problem upon instruction from the utilities body.

The commission will probably act upon the matter tomorrow and order the stop changed. Monday if the transfer is approved. Undesirable congestion in front of the Postoffice Department is responsible for the move.

The three lines which have terminals at this stop are the Washington, Mariboro & Annapolis, the Peninsula Transit Corporation and the Washington-Luray bus companies.

HOOVER TALK SEEN AS BLOW TO FALL

President Makes Attack on Harding Betrayers; Former Secretary Awaits Orders.

(Associated Press.)

Any hopes that Albert B. Fall might have had of a presidential pardon were apparently ended yesterday by President Hoover's speech at Marion, Ohio. Praise for Warren G. Harding from the President was accompanied by a denunciation of those who had betrayed him.

Fall was Harding's Interior Secretary. His part in leasing naval oil reserves contributed to the scandals which followed Harding's death. It led, too, to a sentence of a year in prison and a $100,000 fine, for accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil operator.

Fall's long fight to have the conviction reversed has failed, and executive clemency was his one remaining chance of having his sentence entirely lifted. He may not go to jail, however, because of ill health.

No Names Mentioned.

No names were mentioned by President Hoover in speaking of "the men who betrayed Harding, but he said it "was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed, not alone the friendship and trust of their stanch and loyal friend, but they had betrayed their country."

At the White House it was said recently that no appeal for clemency had been made on behalf of Fall, and if one were made it would follow the usual course and be sent to the Justice Department for recommendations.

El Paso, Tex., June 16 (A.P.).—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, announced today he had been advised that Government counsel in Washington wanted him to enter a Government hospital in El Paso for a physical examination.

Fall Announces Ready.

"I shall reply that I am ready to go at any time," he said. "I have nothing to conceal from any reputable physicians."

Fall's own physicians have stated that his physical condition is such that it would be dangerous for him to go to Washington to be committed to prison in accordance with a decree affirmed by the United States Supreme Court.

Action in the case has been held up pending a physical examination at the hands of physicians to be designated by the Government. The elderly former Secretary for several years has been suffering from a lung ailment.

In a telegram to Dr. H. T. Safford, Fall's personal physician, Frank Hogan, Fall's attorney in Washington, said the Government sought to ascertain through Army physicians at William Beaumont General Hospital whether the former Secretary was able to go to Washington.

Four physicians recently concurred in a statement that Fall was suffering from chronic pleurisy, with tendencies to contraction of bronchial pneumonia.

Hogan's telegram advised acceptance of the Government's proposition. "I'm ready when the Government is," Fall said. "Anything is better than more delay. If the hospital finds I am able to go to Washington, it will be all right with me."

Fall would be expected to remain at the hospital for several days' observation. The hospital is on the Fort Bliss Army Reservation, near El Paso.

WIFE, 19, PRISONER, YOUNG DEAN CLAIMS

Bride's Parents Are Ordered to Produce Her Today in Courtroom.

At the request of William Harper Dean, jr., son of a prominent officer of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday signed a habeas corpus petition requiring James B. Burnett and his wife, Mrs. Ophelia Burnett, of Sixteenth street near R street northwest, to produce in court at 10 o'clock today Dean's 19-year-old wife.

The husband's petition asserts that his wife is being unlawfully detained and deprived of her liberty by her parents. Dean claims his wife's parents on May 29 went to the home he maintained for his wife and "against her will carried her away." The parents have "confined and detained" Mrs. Dean and have refused to tell her husband where she is.

Through Attorney Aubrey S. Wardwell, the husband also alleges that when he went to see his wife's parents he was ihformed that Mr. Burnett had told Mrs. Dean that her husband's mother had had him placed in a sanitarium. This Dean denies.

The Deans were married at Rockville, Md., December 24, 1930. Mrs. Dean is the granddaughter of William D. Love, of the Board of Tax Appeals. Her husband is 21 years old.

Curtis Notes Progress Politically in Kansas

Topeka, June 16 (A.P.).—Vice President Curtis reported progress today in his survey of political conditions in Kansas, but the question whether he will seek nomination for a second term or his old seat in the Senate remained unanswered.

After spending nearly two weeks in the State which he represented in Congress for a third of a century, Mr. Curtis revealed he had received delegations of one or more from 81 of the 105 Kansas counties. He hopes to hear from most of the others before he returns east next month.

HIT-RUN CAR DEATH TOLD POLICE BY BOY

still at the precinct when the meager description was given police by the Von Garrel boy.

Fender on Car Is Dented.

Examination of the car disclosed that it not only bore yellow wire wheels, but there was a rounded dent in the left fender, which Irving Lumpkin, of Congress Heights, owner of the car, said was not there before he loaned the car to Derby, police said.

The police said that Derby admits passing over Good Hope road, and even seeing two children answering the description of the Settler and Von Garrel boys, but vigorously denied that he struck any one. He said he dented his fender when he struck a fence.

Lumpkin said he loaned his car to Derby presumably "to go on an errand" shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The 8-year-old Settler boy was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Settler, of Silver Hill, Md. Prostrated with grief, they were unable to talk with newspapermen last night.

William Settler was in the fifirst grade at the Stonton School, and every day he trudged the 1-mile stretch between his home in Maryland over the District Line to the District schoolhouse with his 7-year-old companion.

Boys Were Inseparable.

Today would have been their last day at school and they would have traversed the route no more for three months. Yesterday William von Garrel's father, Conrad von Garrel, had set aside a police dog puppy from a litter he had for the Settler child, he told police last night. The two boys had been inseparable, he said, and when he learned through his son that his friend had a great desire for a puppy, he was determined he should have one.

AL CAPONE PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGES

Government's claim of $215,080.48 delinquent taxes. The indictments charged that during the years 1924-1929 his total income was $1,038,654.84, ranging from $103,999 in 1929 to $257,285 in 1925. Until he makes some settlement the interest on this claim grows every day.

The indictment charging liquor conspiracy was voted only last Friday. It charged Capone and 68 others with manufacturing and transporting beer in the Chicago area from 1921 to the present time. Only one other defendant, Jack Heinan, cafe owner and alleged pay-off man, has surrendered on this indictment.

Capone Surrender Gives Impetus to U. S. Drive

(Associated Press.)

The surrender of Al Capone and his pleas of guilty to violating the income tax and prohibition laws, brought definite encouragement yesterday to Federal officials in their widening drive against gangster activities. It was made clear almost immediately through authoritative channels that New York will be the next major objective of the combined Federal forces.

Agents of the Department of Justice already are at work in that city, it was said, while indication was given from a high official source that an augmented force of Internal Revenue agents will join them in an effort to obtain results similar to those in Chicago.

Antigangster warfare also will be carried into other major cities, among them Detroit, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Cleveland, but officials were reticent regarding these moves, contending that results would be small if they announced their actions with a "brass band."

Word that Chicago's "public enemy No. 1" had surrendered to the law without an effort to fight the charges in court was received enthusiastically by officials here as an indication of the strength of their case. Informed of the action, Prohibition Director Woodcock said:

"That's fine! That certainly is fine!"

Wrestlers Are Placed In Actors' Category

Madison, Wis., June 16 (U.P.).—A bill to place wrestling under the supervision of the State Athletic Commissio was before the Wisconsin Senate today.

"We license boxers, why not wrestlers?" argued Senator Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee.

"Well, we don't license other actors, do we?" replied Senator Irving P. Mehigan, Milwaukee.

The bill was killed.

Edwards said Tucker described Starr as "completely dominating the Faithfull family, even to deciding where they should live."

Slapped Parents, Is Claim.

"She evidently was much stronger than the others," the prosecutor related, "for I am told she even used to slap her father at times, and pinched her mother and sister if she did not have her own way.

"Tucker said that if breakfast were not ready soon enough she used to slap her mother and pinch her so the marks would remain for days."

London, June 16 (U.P.).—Bruce Winston, British actor, said tonight he had never heard of Miss Starr Faithfull until he read in the newspapers of her death in New York. He explained it was impossible that he was the "Bruce Winston" sought by New York police as a companion of Miss Faithfull shortly before her death.

"I never met Miss Faithfull and never heard of her name until I read of her death in the newspapers," Winston, who is appearing in Franz Lehar's operetta, "Land of Smiles," said. "I have been in England since March, so it would have been impossible for me to attend any party in New York prior to her disappearance, had I known her."

Winston is noted in Britain for his characterizations of the roles of fat characters on the stage.

Vacationing mothers were advised yesterday by the Children's Bureau to take their babies along in market baskets.

In a series of suggestions for summer vacation care of infants, the bureau suggested that a market basket, arranged like a bed, is more comfortable than a mother's arms. Handles, the bureau said, should be low to keep the child safely inside.

Other suggestions were to avoid overclothing the baby, to let him go barefooted when taken on long journeys, and not to allow strangers to hold him.

FRAZER SENTENCED TO DEATH IN CHAIR

and told his cousin to wait on a nearby road.

"I couldn't get up enough nerve to kill myself," he testified. "After about 15 minutes I tooted the horn for Ira to come back.

"We went home and stayed together in Ira's house that night and the next morning I put a small box in the car and I put her body in the back seat with a blanket over it and I drove south. I went to Philadelphia and then to Baltimore and I stayed in Washington a couple of hours before I drove south."

He said he put the body in a ditch near Bowling Green, Va., where it was found.

Mrs. Hilda Frazer, wife of the condemned man, was not in court when he was sentenced, although she attended the trial.

Mrs. Edna Frazer, the prisoner's mother, screamed as the jury foreman read the verdict and was led into a corridor by a matron.

When arrested in Raleigh, N. C., Frazer told police he had stopped his car in Washington and slept in it with the body of the woman beside him. He did not remember what street he had stopped on, he said.

After leaving Washington he stripped the woman's body of clothing and left it beside the Richmond-Washington highway near the small town of Doswell.

The woman was not identified for some time, and some mistaken identifications were made before her husband viewed the body.

Wanted to Stay With Cops

Seattle, June 16 (U.P.).—Neal Stratis, 3-year-old boy who became lost, liked police officers so well that he cried when his father came to take him home. Candy, cookies and brass buttons combined to make him think the police station was just about the nicest place in the world.

Hoover Orders Fleirs Disciplined by Lamont

En Route With President Hoover to Springfield, Ill., June 16 (A.P.). President Hoover tonight called upon Secretary Lamont to make "an example" of three aviators who flew over the Harding Memorial at Marion while the dedication exercises were in progress today.

The Secretary of Commerce, who boarded the President's train at Columbus, was ordered to proceed under the Federal law which provides that licensed aviators shall not disturb public meetings. If he can not bring to task fliers who disturb such meetings, Mr. Hoover made it plain he would recommend laws to prohibit similar occurrences to the next session of Congress.

Three planes flew over the meeting today. One, an Autogiro, passed over the crowd several times.

German Veteran Enlists

Monitowoc, Wis., June 16 (U.P.).—Trudpert Zaegerle, a veteran of the German army in the World war, celebrated receipt of his citizenship papers here by enlisting in Company E, 127th infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, the same day.

SALE OF ABANDONED SCHOOLS APPROVED

Fairfax County Board Will Ask Court's Sanction for Transfers.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County School Board in special session yesterday approved the sale of several abandoned schoolhouses, which were sold last week at public auction, and voted to ask the circuit court to confirm the sales. The bids on the Franconia and Springfield School buildings were not accepted by the board as the members felt that the property was worth much more than offered.

Joseph A. Wheeler, president of the Colvin Run Community League, appeared at yesterday's meeting and explained the conditions concerning the old Colvin Run schoolhouse, which was sold last week at auction to P. E. Wheeler. He stated that P. E. Wheeler had submitted the highest bid, but had later been prevailed upon to transfer his claim to the building to the community league. The league asked to be substituted for P. E. Wheeler in the transaction, as six of the citizens of the Colvin Run Community had guaranteed the payment of $2,600 as trustees of the league.

The board voted to ask the court's sanction of the sale to the league and to incorporate the terms of the sale in the deed, specifically naming the six trustees—Howard Slack, Howard Cunningham, Girard Brown, Hassel Leigh, James Thompson and Joseph A. Wheeler. It is understood that the old school building will be used as a community hall.

A delegation from Dranesville community appeared before the board to protest the closing of the Dranesville School next year and transporting the school children to the schools at Forestville and Herndon. The board agreed to appoint a committee composed of School Trustees Joseph Murphy and F. Sheild McCandlish and Divisional Supt. W. T. Woodson to meet with the members of the community on June 23 to consider the question.

A delegation from the McLean School and Civic League addressed the board, asking that several repairs be made to the Franklin-Sherman School Building at McLean and that the interior be repainted during the summer vacation. The board informed the committee that the school had been inspected by several persons and that it was planned to improve the building as much as possible and that the work had been scheduled for this summer.

A request from the military authorities at Fort Humphreys asking the appointment of an additional teacher for the next school term was denied. The board reappointed the two teachers who taught in the school last year. They pointed out that while the school was on a military reservation, the county furnished two of the three teachers, which was considered sufficient for the number of county school children who attend the school.

Bids for supplying coal and wood for the county schools for next term were opened yesterday and the contracts will be awarded within the next few days.

Fire said to have been caused by lightning completely destroyed the store, dwelling house and several large outbuildings belonging to Mrs. Phoebe Gillinghan, at Franconia, late Monday night. According to persons living in that community the lightning struck the front door of the store and by some freak, set the store on fire, jumped into the room of the dwelling which adjoins the store, hit the sister of Mrs. Gillinghan, setting her clothing on fire, momentarily stunning her and setting the room on fire.

There were only three occupants of the building at the time and all managed to get out of the burning building with only minor injuries. The flames burned so rapidly that it was impossible to save anything. It was reported that a large sum of money and accounts books were destroyed. The Fairfax Fire Department was summoned from about 10 miles away, but they were unable to fight the fire because of lack of water and the rapid headway the flames had made. The loss was estimated to be approximately $10,000. The building was one of the oldest in that community.

Fairfax County has been selected by the authorities of the State College of Agriculture of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Va., for conducting cooperative demonstrations in the control of fowl pox through vaccination. Approximately 12,000 birds will be vaccinated in Fairfax County this year. The vaccine will be supplied free by the State.

The first of the series of vaccinations will be held today at the poultry plant of Milton Roberts in West Falls Church. The work will be done under the personal supervision of Dr. W. P. Johnson, pathologist from the State college. The Fairfax County Poultrymen's Association, through its president, E. D. Vosbury, and its secretary, H. B. Derr, issued an invitation to all poultry raisers, both professional and private, to attend the demonstration today.

It is stated that fowl pox is the cause of thousands of dollars loss annually to the home and commercial poultrymen, and in view of the heavy losses during the past years the Fairfax County Association has decided to make a determined effort to stamp out the disease in the county. The State authorities have stated that prevention by the means of vaccination is no longer in the experimental stage and that the poultry disease investigation office of the State college has produced a new and very efficient vaccine using pigeons as the source of supply. The new vaccine has given the college excellent results in laborstory practice and in order to give it a commercial test it will be used on all commercial flocks in Fairfax County this summer.

A demonstration on the canning of fruits and vegetables and the making of preserves will be given this morning at a meeting of the Home Demonstration Club at Vienna by Mrs. J. O. Miller and Mrs. H. U. Burke.

The vestry of St. John's Episcopal Church at McLean will hold a dinner meeting tomorrow evening in the church social rooms.

The annual election of officers of the Fairfax Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, will take place this evening at the council's meeting in Robey Hall, Fairfax.

The Sharon Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a strawberry festival and lawn party this evening in the Masonic Hall at McLean. Mrs. Carl Chester Grimes, worthy matron of the chapter, will act as hostess and general chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The Herndon Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, will hold its election of officers this evening at a meeting in Wilkins Hall in Herndon.

The Nazarene Guild of Falls Church will meet this morning at the home of Mrs. W. S. Orr.

The annual picnic supper and election of officers of the Evening Study Club of Falls Church was held at the home of Mrs. Irene Marshall. Henry Bergstadt was elected president, Eugene L. McNair, vice president and Merritt Pope, secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year. Mrs. Samuel H. Styles read a paper on "Modern Poetry." This was the last meeting of the club for the summer months.

Mrs. James Poole has been elected president of the Crossman Aid Society at Falls Church, Mrs. Pansy Crossman, vice president; Mrs. Nellie Crossman, treasurer, and Mrs. F. E. Prior, secretary for the ensuing year.

Funeral of River Victim Will Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Chester Partello, 27 years old, of 1626 G street southeast, who was drowned Saturday afternoon when a sea sled on which he and several friends were riding, capsized near the powder plant at Indianhead, Md., will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D streets southeast. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

The body was found yesterday, floating, near the shore off Indianhead, by D. E. Mason and W. D. Danielson, who had been searching for the drowned man for several days. The body was taken to the naval dispensary nearby. An inquest was held and a coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

Towing by Navy Saves Wilkins $40,000 Charge

(Associated Press.)

Sir Hubert Wilkins and his backers appeared yesterday to have saved several thousand dollars through their good fortune in having two battleships within 80 miles when the Polar submarine Nautilus was disabled Sunday.

A charge estimated conservatively at $40,000 by shipping board salvage experts would have been made by a commercial vessel for towing the Nautilus the 1,000 miles to Queenstown.

When the Navy performs this service, however, it is customary to make no salvage charge.

Sir Hubert and his crew worked busily at repairing engines and charging batteries yesterday as the Wyoming made slightly increased speed toward Queenstown.

Convict Who Fled In 1919 Is Caught

Ohio Man, Now Father of 3, Faces Return to Prison, After 12 Years.

oungstown, Ohio, June 16 (A.P.).—Jesse S. Strauderman, 30 years old, today faced the prospect of leaving his aged mother, his wife and three children to return to a Virginia penitentiary and serve out a sentence imposed twelve years ago for a minor theft committed when he was a boy.

Strauderman was arrested yesterday as a fugitive from justice. He had walked away from a road gang at the Richmond Penitentiary, where he was serving a year and a day for stealing some clothing from a box car with some other boys. Strauderman was 18 at that time.

After his escape Strauderman "went straight," finally married his boyhood sweetheart in Connellsville, Pa., and came here to work as a railroad brakeman. His record here has been clear, police said. His children are two girls, 5 and 4 years old, and a 2-year-old boy. R. M. Yowell, superintendent of the Richmond Prison, has wired local police to hold the prisoner for extradition. Counsel for Strauderman will oppose the move.

Prisoner Spirited Away Believed to Be Lynched

Huntsville, Ala., June 16 (A.P.).—Search continued tonight for Thomas Jasper, 35, Negro, removed from the city jail early today by two unidentified white men following his conviction yesterday on a charge of annoying a young white girl. The authorities expressed fear the Negro had been carried to a lonely spot and lynched.

Chief of Police H. C. Blakemore, who is directing the search, said other prisoners told him two white men entered the jail after an emergency call to "bring all available officers" to a roadhouse near here had been received. Blakemore said he believed the call was placed by the men as investigation revealed there was no disorder at the place.

Tobacco Association Convenes Tomorrow

Ashville, N. C., June 16 (A.P.).—The Tobacco Association of the United States will hold its thirty-first annual convention here Thursday and Friday.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, is on the program as a speaker Friday. The first day of the convention will be spent in the organization of committees. Friday the convention proper will open.

Friday night the opening sales dates of all markets in bright tobacco districts of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, as well as those of the other southeastern market districts will be announced.

Virginia Deputy Sheriff Jailed on Bribery Charge

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 16.—W. S. Duncan, deputy sheriff of Patrick County, has been sentenced to serve eighteen months in jail by Judge Turner Clement in Patrick County Circuit Court for having accepted a bribe of $100 not to make a report on a still he is alleged to have seized in operation. He noted an appeal and is under $2,600 bond until the September term of court.

This was the last of cases involving bribery and corruption which began nearly eighteen months ago, when J. D. Weatherman, a magistrate of the county, was sentenced to serve four years in the penitentiary for receiving a bribe.

Man Who Halted Grant's Smoking on Boat Dies

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.).—William K. Smith, 85-year-old Civil War veteran, who is said to have won fame and a reward of $50 when he refused to allow Gen. U. S. Grant to enter a powder boat while the general was smoking a cigar, is dead at his home here. Mr. Smith enlisted in Dunkirk at the age of 16 under the assumed name of William Croney.

While serving with the Army of the Potomac he was stationed as a guard on a gunpowder boat. The order had been issued that there was to be no smoking aboard. When Gen. Grant walked up the gangplank smoking a large cigar the young guard promptly stopped him and refused to allow him to enter the boat until he had thrown away the cigar. Two months later Mr. Smith was summoned to Gen. Grant's headquarters, commended for his action and was given a reward of $50 by the general.

Lonaconing Glass Plant To Increase Production

Lonaconing, Md., June 16 (A.P.).—Additions to increase the output by approximately 60 per cent have been started at the Sloan Bros. glass plant here, due to increased demand for lead glass stemware and rock crystal stemware which it manufactures.

The plant has been working on a 24-hour schedule for several weeks, and the increase in orders brought about the addition and a consequent increase in workers employed. A number of men formerly employed at the Potomac Glass Co., at Cumberland, have been brought to the Lonaconing plant. The Potomac company, which was owned by the Sloan Bros., was destroyed by fire some time ago.

William Epperson Files For House of Delegates

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 16—William S. Epperson, Republican, has filed his candidacy in Patrick County for the House of Delegates in the November election. The Democratic party will not hold a primary this year and it is indicated by members of the Democratic committee that a convention may not be held but that all candidates will be voted on at the November election.

T. J. George, formerly Democratic representative in the House has stated that he intends to announce his candidacy "at the proper time."

Eight-Pawed Cats Born.

Old Forge, Pa., June 16 (U.P.).—An eight-pawed cat recently presented its owner, Terry Rensa, with a litter of eight-pawed kittens. The mother cat and the two kittens which survived are creating much attention. Rensa said that there had been eight-pawed kittens before but none lived.

TAX-REVISION STEPS MAY FACE CONGRESS

Definite Move, in Line With Hoover's Suggestions, Is Seen as Possible.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's proposals for revision of the Nation's tax and banking systems brought speculation yesterday on whether a definite move toward such legislation would be made at the next Congress.

The Chief Executive's recommendations were voiced at Indianapolis Monday night in an address devoted to the business depression. Previously, Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills had advocated revision of the tax laws.

Approval of the Hoover address was expressed by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, while Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, criticized it for failing to give definite recommendations.

President Hoover said the Federal Reserve System was inadequate to prevent diversion of funds into "wasteful speculation and stock promotion" and that the banking system must "be organized to give greater protection to depositors against failures."

Assails Tax on Capital.

He added "we must determine whether the facilities of our security and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions." Another of his assertions was "that our taxes upon capital gains viciously promote the booms and just as viciously intensify depression." Summing up, Mr. Hoover said the experiences of the depression "demand that the Nation carefully and deliberately reconsider the whole national and local problem of the incidence of taxation."

Senator Bingham said he favored elimination of the capital gains tax on the ground that such action would promote better business conditions and increase the income of the Treasury.

"It (the tax) tends to promote exaggerated values and losses on the stock market," he said. "A rich man is not going to sell out at a large profit if a considerable portion of the money has to go to the Government. Elimination of the tax would tend to prevent skyrocketing." He expressed the hope an increase in taxes would be unnecessary. If that is necessary, he favored spreading out the taxes to include a larger number of persons instead of raising the money from a few.

Favors Legalized Beer Tax.

"The best way to get the required revenue," he added, "would be a tax on legalized 4 per cent beer. I have long advocated this. I think the demand for beer would take care of the Government revenues."

Senator Caraway said he agreed some changes in the banking and tax systems might be advisable.

"But what Mr. Hoover said," he added, "is this: 'There is some way out of the depression, but I don't know what it is. There is some remedy, but I don't know what it is. We'ell just have to wait and in the normal course of events something may happen.'

"His speech reminds me of a man in Arkansas, who said: 'A hog that takes the cholera and lingers always has a better chance to recover than a hog which takes the cholera and dies.'

"His speech is entirely platitudinous. He makes no definite recommendation. If he wants the taxes ...d to those least able to bear ...s I suspect, then I oppose it. ...e administration were sincere in its economy move, it could remedy the situation without any legislation. It could cut administrative expenses one-third without impairing the Government's functions."

AT HARDING'S TOMB.

The two successors to Warren G. Harding as President of the United States joined yesterday in the dedication of the Harding tomb at Marion, Ohio. Both had served with him, one as Vice President and the other as Secretary of Commerce. Both were his confidential friends.

President Hoover and former President Coolidge referred both to the public services of the late President and to his lovable personality. During his brief term in the White House Mr. Harding brought about achievements that are in themselves enduring memorials. For the first time in the history of the world he succeeded in limiting the naval strength of the greatest world powers. All that has been accomplished since, and all that will be accomplished hereafter in the direction of peace by disarmament, must rest upon the foundation established by President Harding. If he had failed the nations would have engaged in dangerous rivalries and alliances, and war might have occurred before this time. He succeeded; and from the hour the Washington Treaty was signed the danger of another world war was rendered more remote.

If President Harding had done nothing else during the busy two and a half years of his administration his place as a statesman would be secure. He loved mankind. His greatest achievement was inspired by this love. He promoted peace among men and nations by a powerful stroke which substituted equality of rights and confidence for rivalry and suspicion. This work was not for a day, but for all time. It is inconceivable that the greatest powers will ever fail to renew the just ties which help to hold them in concord.

Mr. Harding lived long enough to see the first fruits of his world-embracing peace move. He had other plans in mind, which were taken up in due time by President Coolidge. The universal sorrow of the American people at the death of President Harding was not only an expression of affection for him, but a recognition of the debt which the whole world owed him for his achievement in bringing nations into peaceful accord.

President Hoover spoke of the bitterness of soul which wore down the strength of President Harding when he became convinced that trusted friends were unfaithful to him and the country. It was a tragedy whose final chapters unfolded after his death. He was spared much.

Former President Coolidge places his countrymen in his debt by his touching reference to the late Mrs. Harding. Speaking of Mr. Harding's achievements Mr. Coolidge said:

> He had the advantage, too, of the deeply interested and watchful care of a wife who was ever devoted to his welfare and shared with him his burdens. No record of his work would satisfy him which failed to recognize the helpful influence of Mrs. Harding, who sleeps here by his side.

The strange eventful history ends in dreamless sleep. In the bosom of Ohio there is quietness, and peace, and a living truth that twines forever about the tomb of Warren Harding: "Here lies one who loved his fellow man."

THE TARIFF AND CANADA.

A correspondent asks The Post for an explanation as to why trade with Canada has fallen off since the tariff act of 1930 became effective. In the first six months under the Smoot-Hawley bill exports from the United States to Canada declined 31 per cent. To what can this be attributed, this correspondent asks, if not to the tariff?

It should be noted in the first place, that commerce with Canada and all other countries suffered a slump before the tariff act was passed. The new tariff can not be blamed for the decline in trade which took place under the old tariff. Students of the tariff should also note that commodities on the free list (and they amount to 67 per cent of all imports into the United States) are now imported in smaller quantities. In fact, the decline in dutiable goods is only slightly more pronounced than the falling off of free imports. Can it honestly be said that the tariff curtails trade in goods on which no duty is levied?

Caution should be exercised in comparing the value of trade today with that of a year ago. Every figure showing the decrease in dollar value of foreign trade is grossly misleading because of the radical changes in price. For example, the decline in imports during 1930 as compared with 1929 was about 30 per cent in dollar value. But in actual quantity it was only 15 per cent. In recent months prices have been reduced even more drastically than before. A large part of what the propagandists call decline in trade is, therefore, nothing more than an increase in the value of money.

Reports that trade between the United States and Canada has been curtailed to a far greater extent than trade with other countries is not true. The latest report from the Department of Commerce shows that Canada bought goods valued at $155,515,588 from this country during the first four months of this year. This is about 36 per cent lower than the dollar value of exports last year during the same period. American exports to the whole world fell off in almost exactly the same ratio.

It is interesting to note also that domestic business has been sluggish to about the same degree as foreign trade. The decline is variously estimated at from 20 to 35 per cent in the last year. Would any one be so naive as to suggest that the additional protection allowed American enterprise caused the slowing up of domestic business?

One reason why the tariff is sometimes considered drastic in its application to Canada is because of the sharp increases in the agricultural schedule under the Smoot-Hawley act. Many of Canada's exports across the border are farm products. There has been a sharp curtailment of agricultural imports, giving American farmers a favorable balance of trade for the first time in five years. Nearly every one agrees that the farmer is entitled to this protection.

It is obvious that the tariff has become a target for complaints which are really aimed at the depression. When the actual causes of the slump are fully known all economists will probably agree that the tariff was not one of these causes. The simple truth is that the new tariff has prevented the slump from being worse than it would have been if more American workers had been thrown out of jobs by foreign competition.

BABSON'S FORECAST.

Roger W. Babson, the distinguished economist and statistician, who forecast the depression, now sees its end. He is willing to stake his reputation on his statement that business has seen its worst. Confidence arises out of the fact that conditions which pointed to a crisis in the unrestrained activity of 1928 and 1929 have now been altered and indicate a rising trend.

It is significant that Mr. Babson made his forecast to the Advertising Federation of America, assembled in annual convention in New York. The public is not quite ready to accept his forecast at face value. But it will be remembered that the public took no notice of his warning that an economic shake-up was due. Public opinion always lags behind the actual turn of events. For this reason Mr. Babson addressed himself to the advertisers, the molders of public opinion in the commercial world.

A great reservoir of accumulated capital is ready to be tapped. When the public is convinced that the depths of the depression have been passed, savings will be released, thus creating a wave of buying power. The machinery of business will be gradually accelerated. New work will be necessary, giving rise to new demands.

No more potent force can be brought to bear upon this great store of unemployed capital than proper advertising. Buying habits need stimulating. People are becoming accustomed to doing without things which they would purchase in ordinary times. It is the task of the advertiser to point out the advantages of buying at the current low prices. These prices will not continue. There has never been a time in the history of American business when honest, straightforward advertising has such possibilities of far-reaching results as now.

President Hoover considered this convention so important to the welfare of the country that he addressed a message to the delegates, emphasizing the "economic force" of advertising. Stimulation of demand has been an important factor in raising the standard of living in ordinary times, but when buying power is hibernating it becomes doubly valuable. The time is ripe for a Nation-wide campaign of advertising that will express the confidence of business in its own future and inspire confidence in the public.

CAPONE QUITS.

Chicago must be deeply chagrined at the ease with which the Government humbled that king of all gangsters, "Scarface" Al Capone. For years Chicago has pretended to be on the trail of Al and his cohorts. On several occasions Capone has placed himself at the disposal of municipal authorities and courts, only to be gracefully exonerated. He gained the reputation of being above the reach of the law. Now Uncle Sam has stepped in and taken him by the nape of the neck, and the baron of gangland pleads guilty.

Capone knows with whom he is dealing. Apparently he had no fear that Chicago would ever convict him, not even of vagrancy. But when the Government carefully prepared cases against him for evasion of the income tax law and conspiracy to violate the prohibition act, he surrendered without a struggle. The Government prosecutors and investigators would make no compromise. Capone realized for the first time in his life that there was no possibility of escaping the penalty.

The effect of the Government's campaign against gangsters in Chicago will reach throughout the country. Gangsters are put on notice that they can't trifle with Uncle Sam. Local authorities may fail to do their duty, but the Government will not fail. The net result of such a clean-up is to restore confidence of the public in the law, and to put to shame those local officials who wink at the atrocities committed by the underworld. Even Chicago with its blatant egotism should be shamed into overhauling its system for the administration of justice.

WAR ON THE SLUMS.

A number of American cities are considering the plans made by the city affairs committee of New York for the building of modern apartments for the poor. This civic group had been complaining to Mayor Walker for some time that he fulfilled none of his promises for providing better living conditions. He appointed a committee on parks and playgrounds which reported that such space was badly needed, but nothing was done about the matter. The civic group, seeing no signs of progress, took upon itself the responsibility of drawing up plans and recently presented them to the mayor.

The project has been so carefully studied and presented that the committee has had numerous requests for complete reports of the plan from various parts of the country. The scheme calls for the erection of model six-story elevator apartments with garden court space. The rooms are to be of good size and airy, with all modern conveniences, including steam heat. There would be lawns and shrubbery about the buildings, and walks with benches for adults. In the center would be playgrounds large enough for indoor baseball diamonds, basket ball courts, and space for younger children's games.

The rents would be higher in New York than in other cities, due to the high cost of the land, but even counting this item the committee has estimates that rents could be reduced to $9.50 a month per room. Stores on the first floor renting for $100 a month would help to carry the expense.

The splendid work done by the committee in drawing up the plans, as well as its efforts in arousing the public interest, has been widely commended. At present there are no housing facilities for the poor of the great American cities comparable to developments in Vienna and several other European cities, but the new plans indicate that an effort is being made to give this country as good cheap housing as is to be found anywhere in the world.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Marion, Ohio, June 16.—An ambitious proposal is being made for adopting a ten-year plan for operating this country. Suggestions for improvement are always welcome. But we should not let words supplant ideas. We have the most complete plans already that any nation ever possessed. A system of transportation by inland water is constantly under construction. The ablest and most skilled people in the world have extensive plants for furnishing all kinds of raw materials and merchandise. Agriculture is prepared to supply all our food. A multitude of banks are ready to issue money and give credit.

This vast system has been prepared by generations of great business leaders. We need not wait five or ten years for something we already have. Any intelligent discussion then will be directed not at supplying systems of production and distribution, but at the most efficient operation of those in existence. A free people can plan for the future only in a limited way. We do not know the future amount of consumption, wages, prices or production. No hard and fast plan can be successful without establishing these elements in advance. Freedom of action prevents that. But thought, discussion and conference can produce improvement.

EVOLUTION OF A TOY

From the Christian Science Monitor.

How many of those who recall the childish pleasure of decorating all sorts of exposed surfaces in their childhood homes with decalcomania pictures know that a great industry, expending millions annually, has grown out of that infantile fad?

In the Industrial Bulletin, issued by Arthur D. Little, Inc., which frequently tells some story of romance in the development of industry, the progress of decalcomania from a childish delight to an industrial activity is succinctly told. Dating from the days of Louis XVIII, the method of making a lithograph print on paper, and then transferring it to a permanent place on some other substance is now widely employed in the industrial arts. Nearly all the china and crockery made in the United States is thus decorated.

The crest or monogram on automobiles is usually applied by this process. "Inlaid" furniture in seemingly costly drawing rooms has thus been inexpensively enriched. From labels on sausages and cucumbers, to the embellishment of railroad cars, the decalcomania is now widely utilized. It imitates the grain of wood or leather, on cheap building board, and, in more delicate tints and designs, makes milady's compact or handbag look as though fresh from the personal ministrations of some skilled artist.

It used to be offered to children in sheets, or envelopes, for a dime or a quarter; now the yearly volume of sales of American companies exceeds $5,000,000. It was hardly known commercially prior to 1890. Its very name suggests by its derivation the lack of importance ascribed to it by its originators—decalquer, to transfer, and mania, a craze. Even within a year or two it had not sufficient importance to find place in the Encyclopedia Britannica, or the Americana, or the New International Encyclopedia. The name of the inventor has been lost in the misty recesses of time.

How many other useful factors in the industrial life of today have been mere developments of some toy devised for the amusement of children? The autogiro and the gyroscopic compass at once suggest themselves as the evolution of a spinning top. Probably there are many others.

POST HASTE.

With your "Coffee, which makes the politician wise."

Glad to note that Hoover agrees with us that the old U. S. bus will pull out of this mudhole under its own power.

Gov. Roosevelt has declared himself as wet as any of the others, but he is such a nice man Dixie Democrats just don't like to believe it.

Does Chairman Fess consider it a compliment that he has encouraged the candidacy of four Democratic presidential candidates in his home State?

Since his proposed 50-year program didn't force an extra session, young Bob La Follette is in seclusion growing a century plant.

Al Smith is less interested in politics since he has been busy taking in $1,000 a day in the Empire tower from tourists who want to look down on New York.

Gov. Ritchie is a dry wet. The Kentucky colonels can understand a vice versa better.

As our most graceful side-stepper of premature political booms Secretary Hurley makes a clean win of the prize palmolive.

Mr. Raskob in Paris says absinthe makes the heart grow fonder. At this end the party mortgage is just wormwood.

"Much Adoo About McAdoo" has not been a best seller. Remembering California, Producer Shouse buys the movie rights and will call it "Much Adieu About McAdoo."

Robinson crew so loud at the Democratic committee meeting the senatorial throat has been too dry for utterance since.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, says Congress ought to be in session, as there are many things that should be disposed of. What naivete from an old-timer—to think that the 72d will dispose of anything but time!

Speaking of Senator Caraway's "feed them" facetiousness reminds us of the rye face caused by those little things that are used to spoil the flavor of good bread.

Doc. Coolidge has been giving us some strong medicine lately, but will he have the nerve to tackle prohibition before vacation?

The oppressive silence emitted by Senator Norris is explained by his having heard how these things sound coming from Senator Brookhart.

Former Senator France, who unanimously nominated himself to run for the Presidency, says he will decline to have any voice in the national committee. The answer is too easy.

BILL'S GONE BACK TO WORK.

Bill's gone back to work, an' we Are proud of him as we can be.
Taken off his coat, an' rolled
Up his sleeves, like days of old,
Before the crazy years began
When money came to any man.

When the slump came Bill was sad
Coz it took most all he had,
An' he wrote "They've got me down!
Guess my goose is cooked up brown!"
Sat around awhile to learn
If his luck was going to turn.

When his stocks an' bonds were gone
Bill just slapped a mortgage on
That big house of his, and said
"Better times are just ahead."
Bent on dodgin' work till now,
Thinkin' he'd forgotten how.

"Livin' simple," now he writes.
"Workin' days an' sleepin' nights.
Chucked my foolish pride away,
Turned my back on pleasure gay;
Lost a fortune large an' round,
But my self-respect I've found."

Making the Ball and Chain of Gold Doesn't Give the Slave More Freedom.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

BILL SMITH had a job in a machine shop. He worked eight hours a day, with a half-holiday on Saturdays, and made enough money to support a wife and a flivver.

On Saturday afternoons he puttered with fishing tackle, and on Sundays he went fishing.

It was a pleasant existence, but Bill at times resented the hard necessity that made him work and longed to be rich.

One day he saved the life of a seer who was knocked down in traffic, and was offered any reward he might desire.

"Fine," said Bill; "I want to be rich."

"That's easy," said the seer. "There's a bull market at present, and I'll show you how to ride it up."

Bill had but a few hundred dollars, so it was necessary to begin operations in a bucket shop; but he purchased the stocks suggested by the seer, using his little fortune as margin, and soon had won enough money to interest a respectable broker.

"This is great fun," he said to the seer. "I like being a speculator."

"You're not," said the seer. "You're just a common gambler now. Your pile is too small."

So Bill kept on buying stocks and selling at a profit, obeying the seer in all transactions, and his days were filled with pleasant excitement. Soon he was worth millions and clerks lifted their hats to him.

"Your gambling days are over," said the seer. "You are now a power-in-the-street, and your deals are operations. But you must be something more than a financial wizard. You must have control."

So Bill continued to buy and take his profits until he had enough money to grab the majority of stock in several great enterprises and elect himself president.

"Now," said the seer, "you have arrived. I have kept my promise. You are rich beyond your dreams."

"What must I do now?" asked Bill.

"Oh, the usual thing," said the seer. "You sit at a desk among push buttons and work eighteen hours a day while your wife thinks up ways to spend your money."

"And what do I get out of it?" asked Bill.

"Why," said the seer, "you get three meals a day and a place to sleep when you have time. Is there anything else I can do for you?"

"You bet there is," said Bill. "You can give me back my old job at the machine shop. I want to go fishin'."

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

One Hoover "Drive."

New York Times.

It may or may not be true that the President's speechmaking trip in the West this week is to mark the beginning of his campaign for re-election. But something better than that he has set going before leaving Washington. He has given his approval to the plans of his own emergency committee for organizing and coordinating relief agencies in preparation for the needs which will doubtless have to be met next winter. First there is to be a wide and searching inquiry. Conditions, actual and prospective, in all cities above 25,000 population will be determined. Then the aim is to effect a union of community councils and community chests, possibly in conjunction here and there with the Red Cross, and always working together with the local municipal authorities, in order to make sure that the unemployed will be given work when possible and aid when necessary.

Here we have a "drive" by the President which has nothing political about it, strictly speaking, but which is plainly of great national importance. It puts the influence and the weight of the National Government behind the movement.

Good Americanism.

New York Herald-Tribune.

Here is meat for the next Congress of a substantial kind. If it avoids the doles and the bureaucracies and devotes itself to the reforms Mr. Hoover suggests, we shall, as he said, "keep the ship steady in the storm." In the meantime, it is well to realize that "our people are working harder and are resolutely engaged, individually and collectively, in overhauling and improving their methods and services." Beyond that is the reassuring thought that at a time like the present the Chief Executive is a man who sees the function of government in its true light.

The People Will Plan.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Mr. Hoover has presented a strong case against any hard-and-fast "plan." There is no doubt about the advantages that lie in advance planning for industry. But it is highly questionable whether, once the requirements are determined over a period of years and the facts known, development should not be left to individual initiative. Mr. Woll's industrial congress would have to find ways to enforce its decrees—this aspect of his plan sounds rather unconstitutional—and if business pressure were brought to bear for the purpose, business tyranny might easily develop.

There is a fundamental difference between President Hoover's ideas and those of the five and ten year "planners." It is rather more than likely that by the time a "plan" could be put into practice normal times would have returned—and it could be forgotten.

Hoover's Robust Faith.

New York Times.

On the whole, it is an excellent speech, well considered, well timed and precisely on the note which ought to be struck at present. As an offset to the prevailing dejection, the President's robust faith in the assured future of this country comes as a happy reinforcement for all who are struggling with adversity and are determined, as he is, to conquer it. His address so plainly inclines to hope rather than fear that it will tend to quicken the hopes and banish the fears of great numbers of his fellow countrymen.

Good Fishin'?

Indianapolis News.

At the rate of saving $25,000,000 a week-end the President's economy fishing trips may inspire voters all over the country to insist that governors, mayors and other officials take up the gentle sport.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Former Washingtonian Reports Great Improvement in New Orleans, Due to Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the years of my residence in Washington, I became a firm believer in The Post. I am glad to note, on my return, that its conservative and fair policies still continue, extending even—mirabile dictu!—to the prohibition question! In New Orleans, where I have lived the last thirteen years, it is difficult to get anything about this subject in the papers, unless it is unfavorable thereto; a particularly shortsighted policy, in view of the benefits New Orleans has reaped from even a limited enforcement of the eighteenth amendment—benefits evident on all sides and not open to question.

Probably paramount among them has been the clean-up of the renowned French quarter. Before 1920, this section included the segregated district, with the varied vice conditions connected therewith. The once illustrious Rue Royale had degenerated into little better than a dive from one end to the other, reeking with the stench of alcohol.

In 1921 we moved into the famous upper Pontalba Building; other people of standing were also beginning to displace the dope addicts and Italian cutthroats. During the six years following, we saw with great satisfaction the restoration and renaissance of the greater part of the Vieux Carre from the dregs of decay and debauchery to a notable degree of its former dignity, beauty and charm.

Speakeasies? Yes, indeed—probably one to each ten of the old saloons; and that one dispensing a quart or two of liquor as compared to a barrel in former days.

Regarding enforcement conditions generally, Theodore McGlehan, a well-known attorney, who handles liquor cases frequently (and is not a pronounced dry), stated publicly not long since that he was amazed at the improvement which has come about in the last two years, especially, and the definite decrease of bootleggers and speakeasies. He attributes this to a better personnel among enforcement officers and also to Federal Judge Wayne Borah (nephew of the senator and native of New Orleans), who handles liquor law breakers with increasing severity—to such an extent, indeed, that many of them are finding the racket entirely too expensive.

Another (even comparatively) dry decade will mean such progress to the historic and lovely old city as it has not known in its previous 200-odd years. Naturally, therefore, those who hope and are actively working for this long-delayed progress will do all in their power to prevent the return of alcohol, in any form of distribution.

There have been other good results from prohibition: Mardi Gras, for example, while still a season of gayest festivities and pleasure, has lost most of the debauchery once connected therewith.

SYLVIA F. METCALF.

Washingtonian Resents Insinuations From Outsider That Capital City Is Not a Safe Place.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a lifelong resident of the District of Columbia, I resent having an outsider tell us what to do, find fault with the way things are being done and generally try to run the city. No one asked this person to come here, and if he isn't satisfied with our police force as it is, why doesn't he go back to New York and do some of this high-class reforming there. Are we all to sit around and let him run us? Does he think we are a lot of saps?

I have lived in many sections of Washington and I have never gone to bed "scared stiff" in any place. Is he such a timid soul? Why not a watchman for his own place? We pay enough taxes to warrant police protection and have always had it. We are getting sick of this publicity stunt. Too bad he has so much money. I should think he could spend it better than on newspaper publicity. What is he looking for? There are a lot of us who would gladly pay his way back to where he came from and let us rest in peace. We don't need any extra police protection. Too bad our Commissioners and police chief must be subjected to this humiliation by an outsider.

A REAL WASHINGTONIAN.

Crime in Washington by Juveniles Who Never Saw a Saloon.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My recent letter in The Post regarding the evils of prohibition has brought replies from "Ex-Soak," who gets off a few "wise-cracks," and from Mr. J. O. Knott and "C. B.," who seem to doubt my veracity.

The recent report of Capt. Edwards, of the Metropolitan Police, states that in the year 1929, the young people between 17 and 21 years of age committed 702 felonies and 11,393 misdemeanors. In 1930, they committed 909 felonies and 12,053 misdemeanors. And children under 17 years of age were responsible for 530 felonies and 2,525 misdemeanors in 1929, and for 682 felonies and 2,935 misdemeanors in 1930! And all these crimes committed by young folks "who never saw a saloon!" The figures are eloquent, and need no comment.

"Ex-Soak" says, that, according to our calculations, the present governmental deficit, properly apportioned, only amounts to about 2 1-3 cents per person per day. He is about right, and his statement goes to show that, were the lawful liquor-traffic restored, the revenue from it would very soon wipe out the deficit.

HUGH B. ROSSELL.

RITCHIE ASKS TRADE TO REFORM ITSELF

Maryland Governor Tells Advertising Session Idle Must Have Jobs.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie warned American business tonight that if it does not find the remedy for unemployment that government will seek the remedy and find it.

The business that reaps the profits of its labor when times are good must not turn labor over to citizens' relief committees for foods and clothes and the necessities of life when times are hard, the Maryland executive told the convention of the Advertising Federation of America.

"If business does not realize that this problem belongs primarily to it, if business does not have or acquire the statesmanship within itself to find the remedy, then the Government whose ultimate objective is to care for its citizenship will seek the remedy and find it."

Business Freedom Urged.

He advised business that if it wants to be free from governmental interference that it is its duty to develop a high order of self-government and industrial statesmanship.

"If business would complain of too much government in business, then it should cease its own efforts to put government in business through excessive tariffs to the powerful and subsidies to the privileged few. It should stop looking to government to police it and subsidize it and to cure the ills of its own making."

The Federal Government, he said, has erected a tariff wall so high it destroys American export trade at the time when American business needs it most, and has brought reprisals from foreign countries whose trade we need and whose good will and friendship we ought to have.

Americans Are Sound.

"We can not long have disaster and unemployment when we have an excess of production and of real wealth," he said. "The American people are still sound and true, in heart and spirit."

Economists scanning the economic horizon had optimistic views of the future.

Roger Babson, whose prediction of the stock market crash in 1929 aroused widespread interest, asserted he was willing to stake his reputation that business has seen its worst; that although the change will be slow, it will be in the right direction and that "within a reasonable time the country will again enter into a period of marked prosperity."

Dr. Lewis H. Haney, director of the bureau of business research of New York University, said the country "has ceased to listen to bunk about business and is now at last facing the facts."

Encouraging Messages Heard.

The encouraging messages for the future were given to group meetings which occupied the second day of the convention. More than 2,500 men and women of the advertising fraternity are present, approximately 1,500 of them from other cities. The attendance is three times that of last year.

Many speakers, including Sir Charles Higham, of London, official representative of the British advertising fraternity, told the convention that in their opinion newspapers were the best medium and some urged that their use be increased.

Irving M. Teteur, Chicago, president of the Public Utilities Advertising Association, said public utilities will be urged to mantain and, if possible, increase their advertising efforts in daily newspapers.

TARIFF LAW SCORED AS FIRST YEAR ENDS

Shouse Attacks Measure, Charging Hoover Fails to Remedy Ills.

(Associated Press.)

The eve of the anniversary of President Hoover's signing the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill last night brought another Democratic attack on that measure.

A statement by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, said the year had seen "scarcely a dent in the embargo walls, which have resulted in the destruction of our foreign trade, both export and import, and which have had the further effect of establishing a great number of factories abroad which otherwise would have continued full operation in the United States.

"Not only does this process veto the longer and larger pay rolls which, but for it, would be serving to decrease the total of unemployment," it continued, "but affects adversely the business of eevry industry that supplies the necessities and luxuries of life to the employes whose jobs are taken from them.

"There were nearly a thousand increases in tariff rates under the new legislation. The Tariff Commission and the President have considered nineteen of these, mostly of trifling importance."

Saying the Smoot-Hawley increases amounted to $1,000,000,000, Mr. Shouse placed the net changes made to date at $4,000,000. He emphasized that none of "the capital items" has been touched. He named sugar and wool in this connection.

The statement recalled President Hoover's assertion before signing the bill last June that he believed "the flexible provisions can within a reasonable time remedy inequalities."

In conclusion, Mr. Shouse charged the President had "defaulted on his promise to remedy the inequities of the ghastly measure, as he did on his promises in the 1928 campaign to insure continuance of prosperity."

AUTO TAX PLAN HIT BY CALIFORNIA CLUB

Federal Proposal Scored as Intolerable Burden on Motor Owners.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Characterizing such a policy "inequitable and intolerable," the Automobile Club of Southern California yesterday formally protested to the Treasury Department against the proposed imposition of a Federal sales tax upon motor vehicles and the addition of a Federal gasoline tax. A copy of the protest, signed by Harry J. Bauer, president of the club, was sent to President Hoover. It was accompanied by a letter expressing confidence that the President will do everything "humanly possible" to avert an increase in the taxation burden already borne by the Nation's motor car owners.

The club's protest, sponsored by 132,000 motorists of Southern California, represents the first formal opposition registered against the proposed tax program on the part of the Nation's car owners.

Mr. Bauer's letter, addressed to Secretary Mellon, pointed out that the motor vehicle tax bill of the Nation already has reached the amazing proportions of $1,010,000,000 yearly. Motorists of California alone are shown to have carried a burden amounting to $59,000,000 in 1930. This figure, Mr. Bauer wrote, is exclusive of municipal taxes on commercial vehicles.

Of the $59,000,000, a total of $36,000,00 was derived fro mthe State's gasoline tax, one of the lowest levies of its kind in the country. Personal property taxes on motor vehicles cost California car owners another $12,000,000, while registration and license fees accounted for the remaining $11,000,000 paid in 1930.

Pointing out that the burden borne by California motor vehicle owners is typical of conditions the country over, Mr. Bauer declared: "To add two additional taxes to the amount would be inequitable and intolerable, againts which I strongly protest."

The Automobile Club of Southern California, on the authorization of whose members the protest was submitted, is the largest independent motoring organization in the world. Its voice long has been one of the most powerful in national motoring affairs.

Initials on Turtle's Back.

Marietta, Ohio, June 16 (U.P.).—Mrs. Frank Roddy, who lives near here, recently found a turtle on whose shell she had carved her initials in 1911. The initials were still distinguishable after twenty years.

236 GET DIPLOMAS AT 3 JUNIOR HIGHS

Graduation Exercises Held at Hine, Jefferson and Columbia.

With their eyes turned toward high school, 236 boys and girls received diplomas from three junior high schools at exercises yesterday. The largest class, made up of 113 pupils, was graduated from the Hine Junior High School. The class at Jefferson Junior High totaled 88 and the one at Columbia Junior High 35 pupils.

Miss Jesse La Salle, assistant superintendent of schools, presented the diplomas to the graduates at Hine. Daniel Gevinson delivered the valedictory. Mary Eleanor Darling gave the class history. The graduating class presented a placque to the school.

Jere J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, presided at the Jefferson exercises. A portrait of George Washington was given to the school by the graduating class. The diplomas were presented by J. M. Schaffer, president of the Southwest Citizens Association. Delphia Moore was the salutatorian and Catherine Simms the valedictorian. Dr. H. Dennington Hayes, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, made the invocation.

Graduates at the Columbia received their diplomas from the school principal, Mrs. Agnes I. Kinnear, and Miss Rose Lee Hardy, assistant superintendent of schools. The invocation was offered by the Rev. F. A. Parsons, pastor of the Church of the Ascension.

Names of the graduates of these schools appeared in The Post last Sunday. A list follows of honor graduates, in order of their standing, at the Jefferson Junior High:

Ada Catherine Simms, Delphia Louise Moore, William Robert Riedel, Helen Daphne Hutton, Grace Nathanson, Naomi Morgenstein, Ruth Lorraine Alexander, Mary Bisker, Mary Ophelia Beach, Frieda Harriet Brook, Lillian Anita Springman, Doris Margaret Berry, Ashley Lee Bussius, Esther Margaret Kurtz and Lillian Agnes Mayfield.

Coroner's Jury Probes Drug Death Case Today

Testimony regarding the death Sunday of Mrs. Mildred Hall Namey, said to have been caused by taking a large quantity of a sleep-inducing drug, will be heard at a coroner's inquest today. The woman died at George Washington Hospital after having been found unconscious in her room at the Ambassador Hotel Saturday.

Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt refused to issue a certificate in the death until a coroner's jury had considered a report that she might have taken her life because of an alleged infatuation for a Washington policeman and other data which might have a bearing on the case. The woman, who was about 40 years old, is said to have come here originally from Petersburg, Va., where she has a sister. She had been in Washington several years, police say.

MORTGAGE FIRMS TO OPERATE FARMS

Cooperation Is Contemplated in Oklahoma With Tenants; Land Now Deserted.

Oklahoma City, June 16 (U.P.).—Oklahoma investment companies, holding scores of eastern Oklahoma farms surrendered through foreclosure during the acute agricultural depression, have started a program of rehabilitation along cooperative farming methods.

In informal business meetings officials of various investment and mortgage companies have outlined plans and engaged expert supervisors.

The method was described to the United Press by Lester B. Gum, Oklahoma City investment company official.

Farm Supervisors.

"Each farm is being closely supervised. Buildings are being placed in comfortable living condition. Thousands of acres are being terraced and considerable fertilizer being applied to the depleted soil," Gum said.

"The first objective is to attract desirable tenants. These tenants would be placed under a supervisor who will act as the agent of the corporate investor in farming the lands for the greatest profit pending disposition of the lands when real estate prices become normal and the depression is over."

Gum said that tenants would be paid a certain percentage of revenue so that initiative would be challenged.

He distinguished between his proposed plan and that of corporation farming.

Corporation Farming.

"Corporation farming, organized and operated for continual operation and profit, should not be considered in the same light as farming a large number of farms by a corporate investor who has acquired these lands under foreclosure of a mortgage and is desirous only of farming these lands until such time as they may be disposed of to some individual farmer.

"Corporation farming is a bit faddish and has more or less of an antagonistic appeal to the average American. No one, however, familiar with the difficulties encountered by investors in disposing of farm lands acquired under foreclosure will object to an investor's farming such lands until agricultural conditions improve and a definite market is established for land," Gum said.

Urges Chinese to Print Own Stamps

Pieping, China, June 16 (U.P.).—Y. D. Shen, former secretary to Marshal Chang Hseuh-liang, northern war lord, who recently was appointed director of the bureau of engraving and printing, is seeking to cancel a contract with an English firm to print China's stamps.

He argues that the livelihood of 2,000 skilled workmen in the bureau is endangered by the contract. The agreement with the English firm was made during the northern rebellion. Since the rebellion has collapsed and the bureau is capable of printing all the stamps needed by China, Shen says the contract should be canceled.

PARTY IS ORGANIZED BY "COIN" HARVEY

Noted "16 to 1" Advocate Is Busy Writing Platform for Convention.

Monte Ne, Ark., June 16 (U.P.).—A white-haired, medium statured man whose writings a quarter century ago brought him national prominence, may be found busy at work here on the platform and creeds for a new political party he and others are launching.

The party's leader is William H. (Coin) Harvey, lawyer, economist and writer, whose treatises on finances were made a prominent part of the campaign of the late William Jennings Bryan.

Mr. Harvey, who was reported dangerously ill several times this last winter and whose energy has been drained by an arduous career, is chairman of the national committee of the "New Political Party," a task to which he is devoting much time and study.

First Convention.

Representatives of almost every State in the Union are joining with Mr. Harvey in preparation for the party's first national convention to be held early this fall. The convention will be in a Middle Western town.

Leaders of the new party avow that major political parties have neglected to notice the practice of usury as permitted by national and State laws.

"Applicants to the party must qualify themselves by stating they are well informed as to the effect of a financial system which permits usury, a practice which party leaders assert is permitted by statutes which the two major parties have fostered and pushed through Congress.

Harvey, the focal point of the new party, is a dramatic figure whose writings early fell into the category of "best sellers." It has been reported that millions of copies of "Coin's Financial School," published in 1894, "Tale of Two Cities," and other volumes published at the same time, were sold and their author was widely known as an exponent of free silver.

Coin's writings were widely quoted by Bryan in his campaigns that carried him through the Western silver-bearing States.

Harvey is confident that many hundreds will attend the party's convention and is working through organized State committees to swell the membership before the national election. The party, he said, will avoid controversial issues involving the prohibition questions for relief measures, tariff and similar issues, over which each of the two major parties clash.

It is the intention of the party not to link their campaign with that of the progressive group which met recently in Washington and which had the support and leadership of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, and Senator Borah, of Idaho.

Three leaders in the work are John T. Jenkins, sr., editor of the Kansas City Freemason and president of the National Masonic Editorial Association; Judge George W. Armstrong, owner of a large iron works at Fort Worth, Tex., and large land owner in Mississippi, and Henry Scharnhorst, president of the Moody County Farm Union, Egan, S. Dak.

SUMMER RESIDENCE FOR POPE IS SPEEDED

400 Men Busy on Home to Be Completed in Italy Year Hence.

Castel Candolfo, Italy, June 16 (U.P.).—Four hundred workmen, including gardeners, stone-masons and shovelers, to be joined later by another small army of painters, decorators and upholsterers, are busy preparing a summer residence for the Pope here.

When the work is finished more than a year hence, the residence will be something between a princely abode and a rustic mansion, with stateliness and simplicity combined. The residence already was a stately mansion, but it was in such a condition of decay that it had become virtually unhabitable.

The popes used to spend the hot months of the summer in their palace in this small town, which is situated in a beautiful section of the Alban hills, 16 miles from Rome, and overlooking that silvery waterbowl which is the Lake of Albano. Since September, 1870, however, the popes gave up their vacations at Castel Gandolfo, as a result of their self-imposed "imprisonment" inside the Vatican, and since that time the palace, although remaining the property of the Holy See, had been left in a virtual state of abandonment.

Italy Gave More Land.

During the negotiations for the conclusion of the Lateran Pact, the Pope caused the Italian government to be informed of his wish that the palace resume its role as papal summer residence. The government complied with the request readily, purchased the adjoining Villa Barberini with its surrounding park, and donated it to the Pope.

Workers are now engaged in transforming the grounds of the two villas into modern parks.

Roadways and drives are being built, flower beds laid and fountains put up. Fruit trees are being planted, greenhouses constructed, vegetables raised and barns and coops filled with cows and chickens. The fauna already includes twenty milk cows, and two hundred chickens, and many specialized raisers are looking after the improvement of the livestock in both quality and quantity.

Products go to Vatican.

The dairy products are sent to Rome daily for the Pope's table, and also for the prelates and civil officials who live in Vatican City.

It is the intention of the Vatican authorities to see that the farm section of the Castel Gandolfo mansion be run along modern and rational systems, so as to yield sufficient for the needs of all the 520 inhabitants of the Pope's realm, and thus eliminate the necessity of importing from "foreign" markets, which in this case are represented by the dealers and merchants of Rome.

Old Oil Well Still Runs.

San Angelo, Tex., June 16 (U.P.). Though drilled more than eight years ago, the No. 1 Santa Rita oil well, Reagan County discovery well and forerunner of oil development in 18 west Texas counties, is still a producing well, pumping eight barrels per day.

Zog Death Report Laid to Radio Hoax

Amateur Operator Blamed for Rumor of Ruler's Assassination.

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, June 16 (U.P.).—An amateur radio operator, who apparently believed he was playing a practical joke, caused excitement throughout the Balkans tonight by circulating a false report that Zog I, Albanian king and the newest of Europe's monarchs, had been assassinated.

The report that King Zog, whose life has been in danger since the day he transformed Albania from a republic and made himself monarch, had been fatally shot circulated in all of the capitals of Europe, despite the quick denials. The fact that Zog was attacked by would-be assassins in Vienna recently apparently gave credence to the report.

Tirana, Albania, June 16 (U.P.).—King Zog I was resting at a lonely beach two miles from Durazzo tonight, it was announced officially. The king, who is in good health, has been bathing in the sea regularly during his absence from the capital.

Damage Suit Lasts 18 Years.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 16 (U.P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth Gohmann sued the town of St. Bernard, near here, for damages in connection with a street improvement in 1913. Three judgments in her favor have been returned in the 18 years since, but she never has collected a cent because of appeals. The latest judgment in her favor was for $3,030.

Paper Reports Rebel Victory.

Fort Worth, Tex., June 16 (U.P.).—Mrs. W. T. Atkinson, resident here, has a copy of an extra issued July 23, 1861, by the Southern Guardian, of Columbia, S. C., containing an account of the Confederate victory at Bull Run, in which Mrs. Atkinson's father, William L. Moye, was a member of the Southern force.

NATIONALITY ROOMS PLANNED BY SCHOOL

Fifteen Foreign Countries Are Represented in Cathedral of Learning.

Pittsburgh, June 14 (U.P.).—All parts of the world and all eras of educational history will be represented in the national rooms of the Cathedral of Learning, 40-story skyscraper which will house the University of Pittsburgh.

With the outside construction of the cathedral nearing completion, attention is turned to the 15 foreign rooms, each of which will be furnished in a way distinctive and emblematic of a particular nation.

These rooms located on the first floor, will represent England, Scotland, Germany, Scandinavian countries, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Serbia, Croatia, Poland, Russia, Hungary, Roumania, Jugoslavia, China and Greece.

Customs of Countries.

Where possible the rooms will be designed after the customs and art of the countries as depicted before the eighteenth century. The art of the various countries was more distinctively national than at later periods when ease of transportation and communication brought a certain blending of national characteristics.

In addition the seals of the most famous ancient universities of each nation will be placed in the windows of the rooms thus to carry on the tradition of learning as created by the great European universities of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries.

Government Aid.

The rooms are being fitted by funds raised by persons of each nationality represented who are living in the Pittsburgh district. Several governments have cooperated in raising funds and in actual decoration. Some of the rooms are being designed and built in foreign countries.

199 ARE GRADUATED AT M'KINLEY HIGH

William Johnson Gives Salutatory, Miss Brumbaugh the Valedictory.

Diplomas were presented to 199 graduates at McKinley High School last night by Frank C. Daniel, principal of the school, following an address by Henry Gilligan, of the Board of Education. The large auditorium of the school, popularly known as "Tech," was filled with parents, relatives and friends.

The invocation was by the Rev. Dr. Homer J. Councilor, assistant pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, after the graduates had entered and taken their places on the stage. The class salutatory was given by William Johnson. Miss Jessie Coope announced the scholarships and special awards. Evelyn Brumbaugh gave the valedictory.

A feature of the exercises was the presentation of a pageant by members of the class entitled "The Gateway." The characters represented various ideals, such as health, accuracy, understanding, observation and appreciation. Industry, art and law were also portrayed. The story told of the graduate leaving the school and entering the portals of life.

The class was presented by H. Dale Davis, the vice principal.

An award of $20 in gold, presented each year by the American Chemical Society of New York to the student writing the best essay on chemistry, was won by Charles M. Mathews for his competition entitled "Relation of Chemistry to Fruitful Enjoyment of Leisure."

A book, "The Adams Family," presented by the Harvard Club to the most representative student in each high school, was awarded to William H. Stimson.

Following are students who were awarded scholarships: William Dodge, to the University of Pennsylvania; Oliver McDarmon, to George Washington University; Gordon Sievers and Frances Fellows, to American University; Harry Sembekos, to Georgetown University; Ralph Williams, to University of Virginia; Joseph S. Blendheim, to William and Mary College; Helen Stetson, to Strayer College; Eugene Castle, to Benjamin Franklin University; Florence Brill, to Washington College of Law, and Ruth Janice Talbert, to Columbia Business School.

BUSINESS SENIORS TOLD ABOUT REDS

Graduates Must Help to Defend Country Against Menace, Kirkland Says.

Referring to communism as an experiment that may affect the United States within a few years, James R. Kirkland, assistant United States district attorney, told the two-year graduating class of Business High School yesterday morning that it is their duty and the duty of other educated men and women to defend the country against such forces.

Declaring that the United States is on the threshold of a new prosperity, Mr. Kirkland told of forces, internal and external, which are endangering the welfare and progress of the country. On the shoulders of graduates rests the responsibility of protecting the Nation from such dangers and furthering its best interests, he said.

The four-year class was addressed last night by Dean Henry Grattan Doyle, of George Washington University. Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, presided. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, presided at the exercises of the two-year class.

The two-year class was made up of 58 members. There were 99 members in the four-year class.

Four-Year Course.

240 GIVEN DIPLOMAS AT EASTERN SCHOOL

Graduation Exercises Held in Afternoon and at Night to High Classes.

Graduating classes of 240 members received diplomas yesterday afternoon and last night at Eastern High School. Exercises for the three-year business course graduates, of which there were 23, were held yesterday afternoon. The remainder, the regular four-year class was graduated last night.

Diplomas were presented to the three-year graduates by Arthur G. Bishop, president of the District Lawyers Washington Title Insurance Co. Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, made the address and Daniel C. Roper, board member, presided. The Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, offered the benediction.

Daniel Francis Radice addressed the four-year class last night. The class history was presented by Mary Anne Flannagan. Music from the school orchestra completed the program.

Those receiving diplomas at both exercises were:

Woman Wins $10,000 In Auto-Crash Lawsuit

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 16—A jury in corporation court this afternoon awarded Mrs. John G. Vaughan a $10,000 verdict in her $30,000 damage suit against R. M. Chatin and L. C. Moon as a result of an automobile accident last August.

Mrs. Vaughan was on her way to church in a car driven by Chattin. The car was in collision with one driven by L. C. Moon, who died some months go but whose estate was made defendant. The trial lasted three days, the defense seeking to disclaim responsibility for the accident.

Motorcyclist Is Injured.

Isadore Epstein, 19, 124 D street southeast, suffered a possible fractured ankle and severe bruises when the motorcycle he was riding yesterday afternoon skidded as he was making a turn at B street northwest and Delaware avenue. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

E Street Extension Plan to Be Studied

Traffic Count Is Made to Relieve Congestion at Highway Bridge.

The proposed extension of E street northwest, from Fourteenth street eastward to Thirteenth-and-a-half street, will be studied by the coordinating committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Capt. E. N. Chisolm, jr., chairman, said yesterday after the matter had been discussed at a meeting of the committee.

W. A. Van Duzer, who will be District traffic director after July 1, reported on a traffic count made on the Fourteenth street approach to Highway Bridge and on adjacent roadways in Potomac Park recently. These figures will be used as the basis for working out two comprehensive plans for the alleviation of traffic congestion in this area.

Two of the foremost plans proposed by District and Federal engineers are for the construction of an overpass at Fourteenth street and the outlet roadway of the Hains Point drive and for the extension of Fifteenth street to Potomac Park. These reports will probably be ready for submission to the commission at its July meeting.

Baltimore Man Held As Driver of Liquor

Judge John P. McMahon yesterday ordered Sam Jerry Culotta, 20 years old, of Baltimore, Md., held under a $1,500 bond for the action of the grand jury on a charge of transportation of 480 half gallon jars of liquor.

Culotta was stopped by police at Sherman avenue and Georgia avenue northwest. Two large piano crates on his truck were searched and the liquor was alleged to have been discovered in them. The man denied that he knew the liquor was there. He said that he had been hired to drive the truck to Washington and that he really thought his cargo consisted of pianos.

The COLUMBIAN

to PHILADELPHIA and NEW YORK

WHEN you're bound for Philadelphia or New York in midsummer, it's now the thing to do to go via the COLUMBIAN. Why? Because it's the one and only completely air-conditioned train in existence. Which means it's always comfortably cool, always clean and always quiet on every single car on the train. Dust, soot, cinders, smoke and excessive humidity removed; air that's fresher and purer than most people have in their own homes; windows closed; and all metal contact-points on trucks cushioned in rubber to reduce noise. That's why! Motor coach transportation direct from trainside at Jersey City to four convenient stations and nine route stops in New York and Brooklyn.

The Columbian carries Club Lounge, Sun-room Observation, latest-type Parlor Cars, Colonial Diner, Individual Seat Coach—but no extra fare.

Wife of Senator to Search for Literary Matter in Her Travels.

PLANNING to write another travel book, Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes (Frances Parkinson Keyes), who first won national recognition as an author with her "Letters of a Senator's Wife," has mapped out an extensive trip abroad, where she plans to remain until late in the fall.

She went to New York yesterday, accompanied by her youngest son, Francis Keyes, and Miss Molly Gray, of Boston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Gray, who have been close friends of Senator and Mrs. Keyes for many years. The little party will sail Friday for Paris, on the first lap of a trip which should prove altogether glamorous. Mrs. Keyes will be joined in Paris by another son, John Keyes, who has been taking a postgraduate course in economics at London University and will return to this country in the early fall to study for the foreign service.

They will linger in the French capital for American week at the colonial exposition, June 28 to July 4, going then to Norway, where they will embark on the North Cape cruise, returning through Germany and the Scandinavian countries. They will motor through France and northern Italy, then Mrs. Keyes plans to continue the trip alone, going to the Near East before returning to this country. She will send her sons and Miss Gray home before starting on the last part of the tour.

Senator Keyes will go to New York from Pine Grove Farm, their home in New Hampshire to see his wife sail. Having been in New Hampshire for about a month while Mrs. Keyes has been closing their Georgetown residence, he will spend most of the summer there and will be joined later in the season by their eldest son, Mr. Henry Wilder Keyes, jr., who is practicing law in Boston.

Stimsons to Give Party For State Personnel.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson will entertain at a garden party this afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock at Woodley for the personnel of the State Department.

The Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de Sacasa will entertain at dinner on Friday evening in honor of the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Davila, who will sail early in July for Chile to pass the summer.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland have arrived in England, and will motor in the British Isles for several weeks, later going to the continent for the remainder of the summer. Gen. Ireland, who retired on May 31, was formerly surgeon general of the Army.

The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, will leave today for Boston to attend the graduation exercises at Harvard University tomorrow. Mr. Charles Francis Adams, jr., attends the university, and Mrs. Adams joined their son on Friday. She will return to Washington the first of the week.

Mrs. Roland K. Smith, who has been in New York for a brief visit, has gone to Waterbury, Conn.

The Alien Property Custodian, Mr. Howard Sutherland, is in New York.

where he is staying at the Ambassador preparatory to sailing for Europe to join his daughter, Mrs. Paul Mayo, who is spending the summer abroad.

Mrs. Lewis Stewart and her daughter, Miss Francesca Stewart, are at the Gramercy Park Hotel, in New York, preparatory to sailing Friday to spend the summer in England.

Although no notice has been given of the fact, it is highly probable that Mrs. Stewart and her daughter are going to England to make final plans for Miss Stewart's marriage to Lieut. Victor Mansell, British royal navy. The engagement was announced last fall from London, where the Stewarts had been spending the summer, and no date has yet been set for the wedding. Lieut. Mansell is the son of Admiral Robert Mansell and Lady Mansell, of London.

Gerrys Entertain In Providence Home.

Former Senator and Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry entertained at dinner Sunday night at their home in Providence, R. I., when the guests were Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, the President of Brown University and Mrs. Clarence A. Barbour and Gov. Wilbur L. Cross of Connecticut. The Chief Justice attended the graduation exercises at Brown University, his alma mater.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes have been in New York for several days prior to sailing tomorrow for a stay in Europe.

Mrs. E. H. G. Slater is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. Shaw Safe, at her villa, Ocean Lawn, in Newport. Mrs. Slater went to the resort to inspect her own villa, Hopedene, which she has leased to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham. Mr. and Mrs. Bingham have just returned from Europe and will go to Newport in a few days.

The director general of the Pan-American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, has gone to Quantico, Va., where he will deliver an address before the Marine Corps School. Dr. Rowe will return to Washington later today.

Mrs. Tillman B. Parks, wife of Representative Parks, has as her guest Mrs. Jesse Smith, of Garland City, Ark., who accompanied Mrs. Park to the Capital two weeks ago from Arkansas. Mrs. Parks returned in time to attend the graduation of her son, Mr. John Bishoff, from the University of Maryland.

Mrs. Ernest H. Daniels entertained at luncheon yesterday at the National Women's Country Club in honor of Mrs. Parks and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. David E. Bolton, sister of Mrs. Daniels, of Fort Worth, Tex. The other guests were Mrs. William S. Parks, Mrs. Eric Scott Carroll, Mrs. Wilmer Musgrave, of Laurel, Md., and her guest, Mrs. Daniel Clifford Smith, of Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison and Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt.

Miss Elizabeth Mills, daughter of Mrs. Florence B. Mills, has as her guest Miss Nan Allen, of Atlanta, Ga.

Vaughans Give Dance For Granddaughters.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tully Vaughan entertained at the dinner dance at the Shoreham last evening for their granddaughters, Miss Neville Crute and Miss May Crute.

Mrs. George Corbin Perine, with Mr. Washington Perine, Miss Anne Washington Perine and Miss Mary Ball Perine, of Baltimore, who have been in Paris for some time, left yesterday for Biarritz, where they will spend their eleventh summer in their home there.

Miss Anne Madison Washington, hostess at the American exhibit, Mount Vernon, at the French Colonial Exposition, is a cousin of the Perines, all being descendants of the first president of the United States.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Willard H. Brownson, of Washington, are at the Weylin Hotel in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Perot, jr., are also at the Weylin.

Maj. Thomas J. Frailey, national vice president of the Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity, has returned from Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., where he attended the commencement banquet of Phi Gamma Chapter and participated in the debilerations of the National Council.

Maj. John P. Dinsmore, U. S. A., has returned to Washington from his station in China, and is living at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Reeves, of Memphis, Tenn., are guests at the Mayflower, while the former is in Washington for the railroad hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Reeves is associated with the Illinois Central Railroad. They will go to New York before returning South.

Tennis Popular Summer Sport In Social Whirl

Many Americans in Paris Are Playing Game Diplomats Like.

The sporting world turns to tennis in the summer time, and with the victorious American Davis Cup team in Paris to gain further laurels, amateur players of less ability take up their racquets. Play for the tennis Coupe des Diplomates is now under way in Paris with sixteen members of various diplomatic staffs taking part. Five Americans are entered in the singles tournament. Mr. Norman Armour, retiring Counselor of the American Embassy; Mr. Robert T. Pell, special attache; Mr. J. H. Williamson, second secretary, Mr. J. H. MacVeigh, second secretary and Mr. W. L. Finger, trade commissioner.

The newly appointed counselor of the embassy, Mr. Theodore Marriner, who recently sailed for Europe to assume his new post, will fit in well with the players, and will even be able to take his predecessor's place. While in Washington Mr. Marriner was among the members of the State Department who frequently played on the courts at Evermay, the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lammot Belin.

Tennis seems to be a diplomat's game, for almost every member of the corps, young and old plays during the summer. The Swedish Minister, Mr. W. Bostrom, and the Minister of Czechoslovakia Dr. Ferdinand Veverka, are among the outstanding players. The former Spanish Ambassador, Senor Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell, was often on the courts, with his sons or daughters, and innumerable other members of the younger set avail themselves of the many attractive courts of Washington clubs and residences.

Harriet D. Carter to Wed Lomax Twathmey.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Henley Carter, of Sudley, The Plains, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Harriot Downman Carter, to Mr. Lomax Twathmey, son of Mrs. Tayloe Twathmey and the late Mr. Tayloe Twathmey, of Norfolk, Va. No date has been set for the wedding.

Drama Guild's Play To Be Given Tonight.

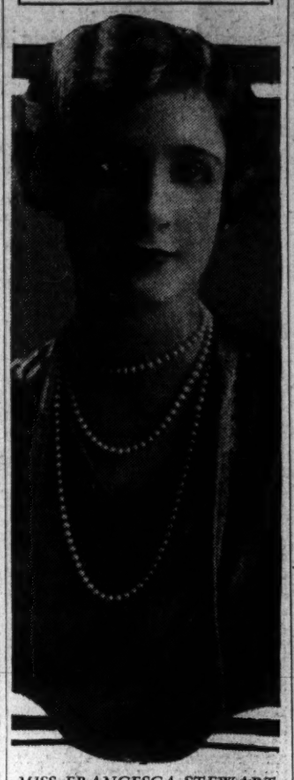
The Drama Guild of Washington will present its third annual outdoor play, "The Piper," tonight and tomorrow night at the Sylvan Theater on the slopes of the Monument Grounds.

Among the boxholders for this play will be Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. James Carroll Frazer, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Mrs. Delos Blodgett, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Col. and Mrs. John Otto Johnson, Dr. De Witt C. Croissant, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. Thomas W. Sidwell, Mrs. George F. Bowerman, Miss Helen Colhoun, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Dr. H. Barret Learned, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest and Miss Sibyl Baker.

New sponsors are still being added to the list of those interested in the al fresco performance by the guild, and a large number of the sponsors will attend the play. Included among the recent sponsors are the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, Mrs. Robert E. Lee and Mrs. Virginia White Speel.

Mr. Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C., is at the Willard for an indefinite stay. Mr. Daniels is a former Secretary of the Navy.

Will Sail for Europe



MISS FRANCESCA STEWART, with her mother, Mrs. Lewis Stewart, is in New York preparatory to sailing Friday for England.

Magruders Go To The Hague From Capital

Robert LeG. Walshes to Return to U. S. From Post in Paris.

With "shake-ups" in the personnel of embassy and legation staffs abroad the order of the day, comes the news of two transfers, which will bring Maj. and Mrs. Robert LeG. Walsh from Paris to Washington, but will mean the departure of a popular Navy couple, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. John H. Magruder for The Hague.

Maj. Walsh has been serving at the American Embassy in Paris as Assistant Military Attache for Air and he and his attractive wife, formerly Miss Caroline Thom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom, of Washington, have been closely identified with smart young groups of Americans residing in the French capital.

Maj. Walsh has ben stationed in Paris for about two years, having been ordered there from Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where he was assigned for duty after his marriage to Miss Thom. Maj. and Mrs. Walsh will return to Washington some time this summer, the date of their departure from Paris having not as yet been chosen. They will go to Squam Lake, N. H., where Mr. and Mrs. Thom are planning to spend the summer.

The Magruders will sail next week for Europe, where Commander Magruder will assume his duties as naval attache at The Hague. They have lived in Washington for about three years.

Senor Enrique Coronado, of the editorial division of the Pan-American Union, is at the Shoreham Hotel, where he has leased an apartment for the season. Senor Coronado is the brother of Senor Don Jose M.

A clever innovation in a foundation garment of peach batiste and airolastic that lets every pore breathe. The light, airy uplift bandeau snaps to the full-length, lightly-boned panel of the girdle that controls the front waistline—yet allows perfect freedom and is delightfully cool. With the light treco pantie, the garment becomes all the necessary underthings one needs for Summer. Easy to wear—easy to launder.

INCREASING YOUR STOCK.

WOULD you like to increase your stock of Oriental poppies, of which you are so proud? I am sure you would. So let me tell you how. Directly after your plant has ceased blooming in July, lift it carefully. I emphasize the "carefully," because when it is brought to the surface all the roots must be intact. These roots may surprise you. They are unlike many roots in that they are quite fleshy, not unlike young horse radish.

Cut these roots into lengths of about two inches, up to within an inch of the heavy, carrotlike root, and place these directly in spots where you wish the poppies to grow, about two inches below the surface. By September you will enjoy a healthy plant above the ground wherever you have planted a piece of the root, and the following spring you will have a fine crop of flowers. And you will not have sacrificed the old plant, for, set back into the ground after the thin roots have been removed, it will live on and replenish the parts you have removed.

Hardy phloxes can be easily increased. Lift the clump with the sharp blade of the spade; cut the plant into three pieces; plant each piece by itself, and you will be surprised to see how in a single season each piece has developed into a clump the size of the original or parent plant.

Iris and peonies can be increased in the same manner.

It is well, when replanting the divided parts, to set them in rather rich soil. You must also be sure to select a well-drained, sunny location for the peonies and phlox. The iris will grow in a partly shaded location as they will usually tolerate some shade.

Should you have a clump of Michaelmas daisies in your garden, just lift it next April and you will find that, instead of possessing one plant, you will have twenty-five perfect little ones, each with a perfect set of roots. And if you plant each one of those young plants, allowing them a liberal space—at least two feet apart each way—they will give you a veritable mass of perfectly formed flowers in the fall as a reward for your care.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

AN interesting group of Scottish names is made up of "MacDowell," "MacDugal," "MacDougald," "MacDole," "MacDool" and "MacDowall." These names all have the same Celtic source, and mean "the son of the black stranger." "The black stranger" was a name given in the early days to the Danes. The MacDugalds were Lords of Lorne in Scotland. Some of them went to Ireland in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, where they settled in County Roscommon and other parts of the west and north of Ireland.

The family name "Granville" (also spelled "Granvill") is found in the earliest English documents, but it is ultimately of French origin. Its source is the French place-name "Granville," which means "the large town." In some medieval records it was Latinized "De Granda Villa." Some families who bear this name can trace their ancestry back to Richard de Grenville, who went to England with William the Conqueror. This name occurs many time in the Hundred Rolls. Two instances in that famous document are Thomas de Grenwille and Adam de Greynevile.

The family name "Greenlaw" is of English origin. Its source is the Old English "grene-hloew," meaning "the green hill," and it points out an original place of residence.

The family name "Darcy" is of French origin, and is a shortened form of the old "D'Arcey" and "D'Arcay." This name is derived from the Latin "de" and "arx," and its full significance is "he who comes from the stronghold or fortress." In certain cases, however, it has been found that "Darcy" has been used as a substitute for the Irish name "Dorchaidhe," which means "the dark person."

Dare Interprets the Mode

A youthful and cool afternoon frock of pale green crepe georgette. (A Dah-ray design.)

New York, June 16.

THERE'S variety, capriciousness and delicious contradictions in this season's arm coverings and uncoverings—and the dressmaker who was wont to boast about the cut of her sleeves has a chance to show her individuality as well as skill, in adding smart variations to the already infinite variety.

To begin with, I must tell you that the distinctive mark of the newest long sleeves (and many chic sleeves are long) is the way in which they are set into the dress. The idea is to have the mounting inconspicuous or even invisible. Many are the ingenious methods of incrusting the sleeves or cutting the sleeves in one with the dress—and all the incrustations are not of the raglan type and all the sleeves cut in one with the dress are decidedly not of the kimono variety. I'd have to be a couturier myself, honestly, to be able to tell you exactly how this tricky sleeve mounting is achieved—but all the newest kinds, particularly on coats, in all the recent collections use it.

Sometimes you can see a seam somewhere in the middle of the back and by following the line carefully you can deduce the fact that the sleeve must have been mounted from that place. But more often than not it would have been necessary to actually have held the coat in my hand in order to figure out exactly how the smooth, slim line was achieved without the customary joining at the shoulder.

But to return to my "delicious contradiction," I must tell you that many summer evening gowns continue to have sleeves, afternoon dresses have long sleeves—while the majority of daytime, informal attire have no sleeves or else tiny extensions of the shoulders which form the merest excuse for top-of-the-arm coverings.

One of the favorite kinds of afternoon sleeve—usually in a contrasting color to the dress—is of the peasant blouse variety. Agnes Drecoll, Martial et Armand and many others, including Worth, showed this type.

Cool enough for any summer afternon—lovely enough for the inspection of one's most critical friends—is the frock I sketch for you today, proudly! Don't you think I should be proud, not so much for the sketch as because I designed the frock? It's of pale green crepe georgette with little split short sleeves, a bolero effect and bands of self material run through eyelets around one side of the neck, and molding the hips. 'N' with it, the perfect hat for summer resort afternoon would be a large one of maline, with a twist of ribbon the same color as the frock, and a soft black bow at the side for a color note!

• • • •

Don't have too many vivid frocks in your summer wardrobe, will you? They are charming, and all that, but for real, reposeful chic, some neutral pastel shade will be ever so much smarter!

• • • •

And for a change of hat, why not one of floppy picot straw, like the one sketched in the corner, with insets of tulle to show your smooth and gleaming tresses?

• • • •

Combinations seem to be the smart idea this season—little jackets with different skirts and blouses, for instance, for endless variety and undeniable chic! 'N' the latest in this combination family, is the smart summer hat with brims and crowns that may be changed about, as they simply snap together, in any number of smart and attractive ways! This was the latest clever hat idea in Paris before I left, and I just had to make you up a leaflet about it. You can use dozens of these pretty little hats, so better rush that stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, telling you how to make them, or it. Even if you have several hats, you'll want some of these, for they are as adorable as they are economical!

• • • •

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

APPROACH—NOT DRIVE.

III.

OF all the various Bridge diseases the most destructive is perhaps the "Notrump Complex" in opening bids. This disease is especially prevalent with advanced players, for beginners still conserve the natural freshness of their subconscious "card sense," which many advanced players lose after wading through a half dozen text books.

Any beginner knows that his opening bid is a leap in the dark and that the location of honor cards as well as distribution of low cards in the remaining hands is still unknown. What is more natural than to start out slowly by feeling one's way in the dark and to throw out a network of approach suit bids of one until the positions of the enemy and ally are known? No good general would choose a definite line of attack or defense without reconnoitering his territory.

Wrong Emphasis.

In fact even very advanced players give too much weight to the scoring value of bids and not enough to their distributional aspect. Cheapness recommends itself and they blindly strive to gain a trick in the bid of a notrump at the price of losing two or more tricks by failing to fit in distributions for a favorable trump bid.

The logical place for notrump is toward the end of the bidding, not at the beginning. The reason is that notrump crowds the bidding too quickly and eliminates many valuable suit bids, while a suit bid leaves the alternative of notrump without increasing the contract. Hence the approach principle which requires that when holding any biddable suit (be it even a four-card minor) one should start with a suit regardless of the strength of the hand.

A switch to notrump is always available but only after exhausting all possibilities in suit bids. In golf one drives first and then putts. In Bridge there are no "drives," except shut-out game overbids, but there are a series of approach shots and putts.

With this hand only beginners and a handful of superexperts will make the correct natural bid. The situation is further aggravated through the fact that so many suffer from the "Four Aces Complex," a disease which is not fatal only because the combination of four Aces in a single hand is relatively rare.

In South's position a sanguine player will open the bidding with a dashing two notrumps, in which case North should raise the bid to three notrump. Result—down one trick. West opens heart 5. South, after winning the heart lead, is eventually forced to make a losing finesse against the spade King which will give to West four heart tricks and one spade trick. A more advanced group of players will modestly open with one notrump, and North will then pass. In either case the notrump disastrously shuts out the game bid in spades. Experts will bid "one (not two) spades." North will raise to "two spades." South now bids "three notrump" to indicate a very strong hand and at the same time a possible four-card spade suit. North's distribution is more favorable to spades than notrump. Hence "Four spades" by him. A game is laid down against any defense.

In Some Cases.

In certain situations (opening suit two-bids and jump responses) an approach suit bid becomes forcing, that is, both partners are barred from passing until the game is reached. South's hand in the example given is not strong enough for a forcing two-bid. If North's hand is blank the loss will be severe; if he has anything at all he should not pass even after a "one spade" bid. Two bids are superfluous with any but very powerful hands. To have a justifiable two-bid, South needs say, a heart King in lieu of heart 8 which will give him the required 5½ honor-tricks in three suits.

With proper use of approach—forcing methods Contract ceases to be a crude affair of "quick tricks" but reaches much deeper into the real structure of cards and acquires a strategical character in which the factor of "mass organization" (distributional values) is on a par with the factor of "leadership" (honors).

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A TIMID KNIGHT.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I have been reading your columns on "Wives of Tomorrow" for some time in hopes of finding a case similar to mine, but I do not often see a letter from a man in your columns. However, I am going to make it one more by coming to you for advice. I surely need it.

I am a young man, I have traveled quite a bit, and at present I have a good job, and I am quite successful, but there is a girl that I can't forget.

I attended school with this girl from the time that I was in the sixth grade until I finished high school, and I have always adored and loved her. I think of her every day, every hour in the day and have for the last four years. She is forever on my mind. Several times I thought that it was just fascination and tried to forget her by seing some other girl, but these attempts at forgetting her have been unsuccessful for the whole time that I am in company of some other girl my heart and mind is with the one girl that I love.

This girl is very charming, and I love to be in her company. She is everything that a man would want a woman to be. She is about 20 years of age. She gives me dates and I take her to parties, dances, movies and do everything that I think will make her happy, but don't seem to get very far with her. She just takes me as a friend and nothing more. Yet I have told her how much I adore her and what she means to me, but it seems useless.

Several nights ago I was invited to a party by some of her friends and shortly after my arrival she came in escorted by a young gentleman that I have seen several times but don't know very well, and she gave him most of her time. It seemed for a while that she didn't know me, and I was awfully hurt. Had it not been for the fact that I would have broken up the party I would have left.

She is attending a university now and so is the fellow that gets most of her time and sometimes I think that the reason that I am not succesful in winning her is that I didn't continue to college. But I couldn't. I wish she would understand.

I am not saying anything against her. I wouldn't, for I love her too well, but I would like to be noticed.

AN UNSUCCESSFUL LOVER.

Well, now, just a minute! Did you greet her and ask for a dance when she arrived at the party? Or did you curl up in your shell and wait for her to coax you out into the open? Women admire men who know what they want and go after it. It is the exceptional woman who will understand the man who can not make himself understood. With practiced love-makers all about it is not wondered at that a woman wastes little time on the man in the shell. Such a man may be and often is worth all the love-makers the world has ever seen, but woman, poor soul, is still leaning from her balcony in search of something on a white horse, booted and spurred, and on the job. She does not fancy the role of rescuer to a dumb soul bursting with unspoken love. And so when your lady fair arrived on the scene—perchance even hoping to see you—it must have been a bit peeving if after sitting around for some time she discerned you observing her from a distance, as if she were some strange animal, or as if you were a timid squirrel up in a tree hoping nobody would discover your hiding place.

Just how did your behavior strike her? Had you given that a thought? Your feeling for this girl sounds to me like the sort of devotion that makes its goal. I believe you will get her yet. I would like to help. But you must meet her expectations. Even outstrip them. Watch for her at parties. Never mind who takes her. Be there to make him worry. By the way, did you suggest taking her? Never let any chance get by. Make the girl your business. And forget your quaint ideas about not having a degree tacked on your name. The woods are full of college boys crying for their mamas. You be yourself and you will get anything you want in life. But step on the gas. Pining lovers are left to their pining. What a woman wants is action. And what she simply never will be able to understand is the poor oaf who swears to her on Monday that he loves her, and on Wednesday sees her at a party and bows from across the room.

On to victory! Let the college men play their mandolins, you get the girl.

Madelon Contrasts White With Brown For Misses

Madelon presents the season's smartest in color contrast in this two-piece frock of white and brown flat crepe. The sleeveless blouse is appliqued in brown, the skirt is cleverly seamed to look pleated . . . and there are practically no end of ways to wear the brown and white scarf. For a Miss, $25.

The New JELLEFF'S

Helping the Homemaker

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER.

The Dinner Menu.

Chicken Legs Creole
Escalloped Potatoes
Buttered Green Beans
Bread Butter
Head Lettuce and French Dressing
Peach Cake Crumb Pudding
Cream
Coffee

"Chicken Legs" Creole.

1 pound veal steak
1 pound pork steak (lean)
6 wooden skewers
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
5 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons finely chopped onions
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped green peppers
1 cup water

Cut meat into 1-inch squares. Alternate pork and veal and place on skewers. There should be six squares of meat on each skewer. Roll in flour and sprinkle with salt and paprika. Heat fat in frying pan and add and brown onions, celery and green pepper. Add meat and brown well. Remove meat to small baking pan. Pour water in frying pan and boil one minute. Pour over meat. Cover and bake one hour. Inspect frequently and add more water if needed. Serve on platter and garnish with parsley.

French Dressing.

1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon finely chopped onions
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup salad oil

Mix ingredients in bottle. Cork and shake two minutes. Chill thoroughly. When ready to serve, shake well and serve on lettuce, vegetable or fruit salads.

Peach Cake Crumb Pudding.

½ cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
2 egg yolks
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups peaches
2 egg whites, beaten
1 cup cake crumbs

Line sherbet cups with cake crumbs. Blend sugar, flour and salt. Add yolks and milk. Cook until creamy in double boiler. Stir frequently. Add vanilla, peaches and egg whites. Blend and pour into cups. Chill and serve plain or topped with whipped cream.

Pineapple, cherries or apricots can be used in place of the peaches.

Does Your Wife Lead a Double Life?

Manhattan can free her from such embarrassing drudgery and save you money. Net Bag Washing is the secret!

REMEMBER Dr. Jekyll's terrible double life as Mr. Hyde? He had nothing on the wife who every seventh day changes into a washwoman! He couldn't help it . . . but she can! Talk about truth being stranger than fiction.

The strangest thing is she thinks she is saving money! So she turns home into a wash-house and tries to put up with the work and worry . . . the embarrassment . . . the wasted vitality . . . the lost beauty!

If she would just stop and figure it out! How she'd really save more money at Manhattan—where net bag washing makes clothes wear months longer (by actual test). Where pure palm oil soap protects even the most delicate fabrics . . . and floods of soft filtered water rinse them clean without scrubbing.

Manhattan does all this in only three short days instead of four or five!

If any of your friends are still playing Jekyll and Hyde with washday tell them about Manhattan. Our representative will call and explain the many money-saving services. And they'll thank you for every carefree washday.

Laundry Expert Advises Careful "Net Bag" Washing

Explains Why Manhattan's Modern System Saves You Money By Saving Your Clothes

Present day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System.

Manhattan's famous Net Bag System of washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material and placed in individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subjected to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrate each garment and loosen every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every trace of dirt. This thorough care in washing is one reason why Manhattan laundered clothes stay new-looking so much longer.

Pleased By Long Wear

In a recent letter to the Manhattan Laundry, Mrs. E. R. D. writes:

". . . But the one actual fact that pleases me most is that the clothes do not show as much wear as they did when I had my laundry done at home . . . It is indeed a pleasure to recommend you . . ."

This letter is typical of the many received by Manhattan from satisfied customers throughout the District of Columbia and Virginia.

Everything Delivered in Three Days

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

Many Money-Saving Services

Manhattan offers the housewife a wide selection of economical services — from Complete Finished Family to individual piece work. There is a service to fit every need and purse, and every service receives Net Bag Care—which saves you money by saving your clothes.

BUILDING ADVANCING AT WOODLAND BEACH

South River Development of The Post Solves Summer Home Problem.

Would you like to become a member of a delightful summer colony near Washington where you might have a pleasant place to take your friends and to spend the hot summer days and nights in comfort and peace? If that appeals to you, The Washington Post offers a solution to your problem through the Woodland Beach development on the South River in Maryland.

Several hundred other residents of the Capital already have visualized such a community and some of them are at work making their plans come true. Within a very short time there will arise on the Woodland Beach site, a good-sized, well-ordered community situated right in the center of the beauties of nature. On every hand there will be advantages which are always sought when a summer home is planned.

Bathing, Fishing and Boating.

The South River offers bathing for adults and children alike. There is the opportunity for fishing and boating. Close by the site of the community is wooded territory with shade trees that appeal during the heat of midday. And for the association of lot owners which will be formed; there is a community clubhouse on the grounds, ready to be deeded over to the members of the summer colony.

Grading and street construction are progressing rapidly at Woodland Beach and numerous summer cottages are springing up as lot owners take advantage of the present season. If you have not learned all the details of the Woodland Beach proposition, now is the time to do it.

You need pay only the price of a subscription to The Washington Post and $9 in cash before becoming one of the group of satisfied lot owners. While the lots are priced at $93, the remainder of that sum may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50.

Beach Ideally Located.

Woodland Beach is ideally located for the convenience of Capital residents. It is far enough away, 32 miles, to lend itself to the rural atmosphere so necessary in a successful summer colony, yet close enough to Washington to be easily accessible. It is reached by motor over good roads via Defense highway to Camp Parole; south on Maryland State highway No. 2, across South River and then onto Mayo road to the beach.

Drop in at The Post today and learn all about Woodland Beach before it is too late. There are still many good lots available but they are being sold on the basis of "first come, first served."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THIS fellow Earl Carroll is carrying things just a little too far in laying the plans for the conduct of his new Earl Carroll Theater, to open in late August in New York. The abolition of the box office in favor of a handsome open counter at which tickets are to be bought was revolutionary enough, goodness knows, but the idea that every one will be given a cooling libation between the acts is simply too preposterous!

Under the caption of "Thirst Quenchers for Everybody," the latest emanation from the Carroll publicity department states that "During the intermissions at the new Earl Carroll Theater a wagon loaded with chromium thermos bottles will descend each aisle. Three attendants will accompany each wagon to distribute individual sanitary cups of purified water, cooled by scientific refrigeration."

A good cup of ordinary ice water wouldn't hurt anybody, but "purified water, cooled by scientific refrigeration," as like as not, will give you the gout!

And to seat the customers at this new temple of Thespis there will be 84 attaches, trained in military fashion. As thick as Earl is laying it on lately, I wouldn't be surprised any minute to receive formal announcement that these lads will be under the personal command of Gen. Pershing!

In the cool—not so very, the humidity being what it is—retrospect of the afternoon after, I am still of the opinion that the National Theater Players gave an extraordinarily fine account of themselves in their first performance of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude." Nancy Sheridan's portrayal of the prodigious character of Nina Leeds would have been a great piece of work on any man's stage at any juncture of any season, and by this time I imagine the tempo of the entire nine acts has been whipped up to a point that will compare favorably with any production of the play.

By the very nature of things the first performance was a bit retarded. Instead of arriving at 7:40, the dinner intermission came Monday night at 8:10, and the balance of the evening was, of course, proportionately delayed.

Only to the late hour of the final curtain can another of those fantastic typographical errors in Monday's review be attributed. A line that was written, "All these things and many more stamp the role as a fair test of brilliance—one is tempted to say genius——" came out in print "one is tempted to say genuine!"

By the regularity of the occurrence, I am reluctantly constrained to believe that some one on the second floor is the possessor of a positive "genuine" for this sort of thing, no fooling!

But to revert to the excellence of the performance, it seems to me that no finer tribute could have been paid the Players than that the large audience remained seated following the final curtain at 11:35—six hours after the rise of the first—to accord the cast four spontaneous and from-the-heart curtain calls.

For the next few weeks Washington stage favorites are booked into Loew's Palace in an unbroken succession. Following Teddy Joyce and the current "Crazy Ryhthms" revue will come Wesley Eddy, who holds the record for length of service as a master of ceremonies on a local stage. Following Wes, Fred Waring will move in with his Pennsylvanians, the Capital's pet band, and following Fred will come Dave Schooler, who ranks with Teddy Joyce and Wesley Eddy in local popularity. That gets you over the Fourth of July, right there.

And at the Fox, beginning Friday, Washington's famous boy pianist, Glenn Carow, will be featured on the stage bill. Glenn, who is 16 and recently scored a personal triumph as soloist with the Christiani Orchestra when that organiaztion won a silver cup during the Music Week observance, is a student at Macfarland Junior High School.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Carow, 4000 New Hampshire avenue, the boy has been a student of the pianoforte since the age of 6. When only 12, his playing won first award among students ranging up to 23 years of age representing Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia at the Sesquicentennial Exposition at Philadelphia.

Another notable feature of next week's bill at the Fox will be a special Fox Movietone News release of the graduating classes of the various Washington high schools, filmed and recorded especially for this theater. Each class is shown in its entirety, according to Manager Harry W. Crull, who engineered the coup, in addition to which the class presidents or other officers deliver excerpts from their farewell messages. Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer also will be seen in this exclusive reel.

I hope you haven't already become apprised of this formula for putting a director in his place that comes to me in a handful of galley proofs from Arch Reeves, West Coast director of publicity for Paramount.

It seems that Mitzi Green, Jackie Searl and others of the cast recently attended a preview of "Forbidden Adventure" at Glendale, Calif., the champion tryout town of the Pacific slope.

Afterward, Director Norman Taurog, who also directed "Skippy," was talking to Jackie and his mother.

"And what is your ambition when you grow up, Jackie?" he asked.

"Oh, I haven't any ambition," replied Master Jackie, "I just want to be a director!"

Apparently a great many Jackies have got their wish since the fillum business got going!

Paul Lukas, coming to the Palace Saturday in "The Vice Squad," was born on a railroad train.

COCHRAN ADDRESSES HOME CIRCLE GROUP

Pennsylvania Representative Chief Speaker at Supreme Council Meeting.

Representative Thomas C. Cochran, of Pennsylvania, was the principal speaker at yesterday's session of the eighteenth biennial session of the Supreme Council of the Protected Home Circle now meeting at the Willard Hotel.

Other speakers yesterday included Judge James A. McLaughry, of Mercer County, Pa.; the Rev. Albert Joseph MacCartney, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, and Fred A. Service, of Sharon, Pa., solicitor for the circle.

Marked progress in the growth of the organization was noted in a report made yesterday by S. H. Hadley, president of the fraternity, which showed that although the group had to contend with a very serious period of depression the progress has been steadily forward.

The total assets, the report revealed, had increased in two years from $2,100,000 to $4,300,000, besides distributing over $400,000 to members. The major accomplishment during 1930, it was said, was the formation of the juvenile department, in which 8,000 have been insured and formed into 70 junior circles.

Michigan Bank Closes To Conserve Assets

Birmingham, Mich., June 16 (A.P.).—The First State Savings Bank, oldest financial institution in Birmingham, a suburb of Detroit, closed today to conserve its assets. The decision was made by the directors after a conference with the State banking department.

A statement issued by the directors stated that the bank was the victim of "a panicky public frame of mind" as a result of recent bank closings in the vicinity. The First State Savings Bank lists resources at more than $3,000,000.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI"

IF JUNE 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:50 a. m. to 1:10 p. m., from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 9:15 p. m to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 6:10 p. m. to 8:15 p. m.

The morning hours of June 17 will be, acording to the signs, best, especially for business enterprises, and will present a possibility of extending the scope of operations. Prospects of travel are in evidence. In the evening, the influences of Venus will be very strong, and attachments may be safely formed.

The child born on this June 17 will, as it matures, develop good executive ability, vigor and perspicacity. It promises, unless environed in childhood by wrangling parents, to be whole-souled, spontaneous and optimistic. Culture and refinement will mean much to it—it will not have much use for frivolity.

Your horoscope, if you were born on June 17, is easy to read. You are open and above board, and there are no hidden skeletons in your cupboard. You never dissemble. When you like a person, you show it; you also show it when you dislike a person. When you are in a good temper every one knows it, and every one knows it when you have a grouch. You are not much of a listener, but you are a voluble talker of your own and family affairs. Your circle of friends is a wide one, and every one finds you interesting, even if you are not instructive.

Idleness is not one of your weaknesses. You are a hard worker, but not, at all times, an intelligent one. You often waste your energies on things that are both unproductive and unremunerative. Your ambitions are not high, not as high as your ideals. You possess grit in a marked degree. You may be down, but you will never be out. Environment is largely a matter of indifference in your case. Your nature never changes.

No matter what your material fate may be, you are assured of a happy family life, as your leading characteristics, freedom from pretense and absence of subterfuge, are the principal ingredients of domestic harmony.

Successful people born June 17: John Wesley, Methodist clergyman. Samuel Williston, philanthropist. Charles Frohman, theatrical manager. Edward J. Berwind, financier. John Robert Gregg, educator. Charles F. Gounod, French composer.

Arkansas Divorce Law Referendum Is Refused

Little Rock, Ark., June 16 (A.P.).—Attorney General Hal Norwood announced today that petitions for a referendum on Arkansas' 90-day divorce laws were insufficient in number to justify a popular vote on the issue.

He advised Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald of his findings and the secretary of state said he would disregard the petitions filed with him last week. Filing of the petitions prevented the law becoming effective June 11. Attorney General Norwood would not say whether his and the secretary of state's action today made the law effective, pending a court decision.

The most serviceable gift for the June Bride

In picking her wedding gift, there is naturally a score of things that you could choose; gifts that would last and serve their purpose as contributing factors in the success of her home. But the most SERVICEABLE gift . . . and one by the way which will form the foundation of her future home life . . . is a modern gas range with Insulation and Oven Heat Control

Remember when you were married?—the first meal—the dinner you cooked yourself—how you had hoped that it would turn out well.

The success of HER first meal and thousands afterward will be assured—if she has a modern gas range.

Modern ranges are built for style and efficiency, regulating the heat automatically by the use of a tiny control dial. Insulation keeps the heat where it belongs—in the oven.

Why not drop in at any of our display rooms before deciding on the gift to give HER on her wedding day? A small down payment (the balance on liberal terms) is all that is needed for the delivery of any range now on display. There are colors—delicate green and ivory pastel shades—that will fit in with the scheme of any modern kitchen.

4-H CLUBS GATHER FOR ANNUAL CAMP

Delegates From 40 States Arrive for Educational Convention Here.

Delegates from 40 States began arriving in Washington yesterday for the fifth national 4-H Club camp, which will open this morning on the Agricultural Department Grounds near the Smithsonian Institution.

The camp will be in session until next Tuesday. Many prominent leaders in agriculture and farming practices will address the delegates, headed by Renick W. Dunlap, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and including Lieut. Comdr. C. E. Rosendahl, U. S. N.; Sam H. Thompson, of the Federal Farm Board, and Dr. C. B. Smith, chief of the cooperative extension work of the department.

Last night there was an assembly for those who have already arrived, with "taps" and a strict bedtime regulation for "all lights out at 10 o'clock." This morning the delegates will crawl out at 6 o'clock for a flag-raising ceremony, which will be held daily at 6:30 o'clock.

Following breakfast the first regular meeting will be held in the auditorium of the new National Museum, when Dr. Smith will make an address of welcome. There will be conferences of State leaders and a photograph will be taken of the group. This afternoon the delegates will be taken for a tour of the Agricultural Experiment Farm at Beltsville, Md., and as a climax for the day there will be folk dances on the grounds tonight under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Burchenal.

Tonight will be music night, and the Central States' delegates will be in charge. This will inaugurate a nightly custom at the camp, a group from each section of the country in charge of the day's entertainment by drama and music.

Laborer Fatally Shocked.

Stumbling against an underground trolley third rail yesterday afternoon while working in an excavation at Nineteenth and F streets northwest, Floyd Hills, 23, colored, a laborer, was fatally shocked by the high voltage in the rail. He was rushed to Emergency Hospital where he died shortly after arrival. The man lived at 1625 Kramer street northeast.

—Pulitzer Prize Novel—
YEARS OF GRACE
By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

Jane celebrates her fiftieth birthday placidly, and receives the congratulations of her friends and relatives. Muriel Lancaster, who is also 50 and a widow now, comes to announce her engagement to Ed Brown, the "billboard king." Her son, Albert, and his wife, Belle, will come home from England for the wedding ceremony and the bridal couple will travel around the world on their honeymoon. Isabel is sarcastic over this belated romance, but Jane defends her friend. Cicily is cynical and airs a few views of her own on love, marriage and divorce.

CICILY, JENNY AND STEVE

CHAPTER VI

"I GET awfully fed up with it," said Cicily.

"With what?" asked Jane.

"With this," said Cicily.

Jane's eyes followed her daughter's around the drawing-room of the little French farmhouse. It was a charming room. It was in perfect order. The May sunshine was streaming in over the yellow jonquils and white narcissus of the window-boxes. Streaming in over the pale, plain rug, lighting the ivory walls, glinting here and there on the gold frame of an antique mirror, the rim of a clear bowl, the smooth, polished surfaces of the few old pieces of French furniture with which the room was sparsely furnished. The abrupt dark eyes of a Marie Laurencin over the fireplace met Jane's enigmatically. That opal-tinted canvas was Cicily's most cherished possession. Jane, herself, thought it very queer. The enigma of those chocolate eyes set in that pale blank face always made her feel a trifle uncomfortable. The lips were cruel, she thought. Nevertheless, the room was charming.

Nothing Ever Happens in It.

"I don't know why you should," she said slowly. "It's all so nice."

"It's nice enough," said Cicily vaguely. Then added honestly, after a brief pause, "It's just the way I like it, really. Only——"

"Only what?" said Jane gently.

"Only nothing ever happens in it," said Cicily with sudden emphasis. "Do you know what I mean, Mumsy? Nothing ever happens to me. I sometimes feel as if these walls were just waiting to see something happen. Something ought to happen in a room as charming as this. I feel just that way about everything. Mumsy—— about my clothes and the way I look and all the trouble I take about the maids and the meals and the children. I'm everlastingly setting the stage, but the drama never transpires. I'd like a little drama, Mumsy. Something nice and unexpected and exciting. Something different. Before I'm too old to enjoy it."

The last sentence dispelled Jane's sense of rising uneasiness with its touch of comic relief.

"You're 28, Cicily," she said, smiling.

"I know," said Cicily, "but I've been married for nine years. I may be married for 40 more. Am I just going to keep house in Lakewood for 40 years? Keep house and play bridge and go in town to dinner and have people out for Sunday luncheon—the same people, Mumsy—until I grow old and gray-headed—too old even to want anything different——" She broke off abruptly.

Life's Like That Jane Says

Jane considered her rather solemnly for a moment in silence. Then, "Life's like that, Cicily," she said.

"Not all lives," said Cicily. "There's Jenny—Jenny's only three years younger than I am. She isn't really happy, I think, Mumsy, but at least she's free. She could light out if she wanted to—she will some day, if she doesn't marry—and do almost anything. Make the world her oyster. But my life's set. I signed on the dotted line before I was old enuogh to know what I was doing. I don't mean that I really regret it, Mumsy—Jack's always been sweet to me and I love my children—I want to have more children—but just the same——" Cicily rose uneasily from her little French armchair and stood staring out into the afternoon sunshine over the white and yellow heads of the jonquils and narcissus. "Oh, I don't know what I want! Just girlhood over again, I guess. Just something else than this little front yard with the road to the station going by beyond the privet hedge, and Jack coming home from the 50-50 with a quart of gin in his pocket for a dinner-party full of people I wouldn't care if I never saw again——" She broke off once more and continued to stare moodily out into the pleasant May sunshine.

No Kick for Jack, Either.

Jane watched the aureole of her dandelion hair a moment in silence. Then, "Well, Jack brings home the gin—that's something," she ventured. She felt her attempt at the light touch was a trifle strained, however.

Cicily turned to face her.

"Yes," she said. "He brings home the gin and he brings home the bacon, and he brings home a toy for the children he bought in the Northwestern Station. He adores the children and he loves me, but honestly, Mumsy, it's years since he got any kick out of marriage. He takes it as a matter of course. He takes me as a matter of course. He never complains, but he hates Dad's bank, and he's just as bored with suburban gin as I am. I tell you, Mumsy, the excitement has gone out of things for Jack, too. But he signed on the dotted line and he sticks by his bargain. And he's only 31—with 40 years ahead of him! That's rather grim, isn't it? I don't know, of course, if he's ever realized just how grim it is——" Again Cicily lapsed into silence. She threw herself despondently back in her armchair. "Don't you think it's funny, Mumsy, the things you never discuss with your own husband?" Then, as Jane did not reply, "Perhaps you did, though. I can't imagine any one having any inhibitions with Dad."

Love Creates Inhibitions.

Jane met her daughter's eyes for a moment in silence. She hoped her own were as enigmatic as those of the Marie Laurencin over the fireplace. She could not bring herself to discuss Stephen, even with Cicily.

"Don't worry about those inhibitions," she said presently, "for love creates them. Love and fear, which always go hand in hand. When you love people, you are always really afraid—afraid of hurting them, afraid of disillusioning them, afraid of the spoken word which may upset the apple cart. Respect for the spoken word, Cicily, is the greatest safeguard in life against catastrophe."

Cicily's wide blue eyes were rather uncomprehending.

"Just the same, I'd like to break down the barriers. I'd like to be with Jack the way I used to be—happy and free and wild. Not thinking, not considering. But I guess you can never feel that way twice—about the same person that is——"

The sound of the front door closing broke in on Cicily's last perilous words. They were still trembling on the circumambient air when Jack, hat in hand, stood on the threshold.

"Hello, Aunt Jane!" he said. His friendly, pale blue eyes were twinkling cheerfully. "I stopped at the garage in the village, Cicily, to see what was wrong with the Chrysler. They say you stripped those gears again. I wish——"

Colloquy Depresses Jane.

A faint frown of irritation deepened on Cicily's white brow. "Did you call up Field's about that bill?" she said. Then to Jane, "Aunt Isabel always gets her account mixed up with ours."

"I did," said Jack. "But it wasn't mother this time. It was your return credits. On the last day of every month, Aunt Jane, Cicily has half the merchandise in the store waiting in our front hall to be called for."

He advanced to the armchair as he spoke and kissed Cicily's pink cheek, a trifle absent-mindedly.

"Where are the kids?"

"Eating supper," said Cicily. "We're dining out."

Jane rose. She felt incredibly depressed by this little conjugal colloquy. As she walked slowly home over the suburban sidewalks, past rows and rows of little brick and wood and stucco houses, temples of domesticity enshrined, this loveliest, leafy season of the year, in flowering lilacs and apple trees in bloom, she reflected stoically that marriage was, of course, like that. The first fine careless rapture was bound to go. Something else came—something else took its place—something you held as your most priceless possession by the time you were 50. Nevertheless, it was disconcerting to have seen it so clearly happening to the next generation. It was disconcerting to know,—without peradventure of a doubt, that, to cheerfully smiling, subconsciously philosophic Jack, Cicily had come to look only like Cicily.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sercombe

BLIND AS A BAT

DAYLIGHT SLEEP PARALYZES BATS, AND IF DISTURBED THEY MAKE LITTLE EFFORT TO SPREAD THEIR WINGS AND FLY. THIS GAVE OUR ANCESTORS THE IMPRESSION THAT BATS WERE BLIND. THAT'S WHY THEY STARTED THE EXPRESSION "BLIND AS A BAT."

TO TAKE DOWN A PEG

SHIPS COLORS WERE FORMERLY FASTENED TO MASTS BY PEGS. THE HIGHER THE COLORS WERE RAISED, THE GREATER THE HONOR, AND TO TAKE DOWN A PEG WOULD BE TO AWARD LESS HONOR.

YOU CAN'T EAT YOUR CAKE AND HAVE IT

A POPULAR POEM IN THE 1600'S WAS ONE WRITTEN BY GEORGE HERBERT AND CONTAINED THE LINE "WOULDS'T THOU BOTH EAT THY CAKE AND HAVE IT?" THE EXPRESSION WAS WIDELY QUOTED.

A CYCLIC PERSONALITY.

A FEW weeks ago Ralph Barton, an artist, committed suicide. He wrote a story of farewell to the world and that story has in it something worth while for a large group of people. The following statements carry the point: "I have always had excellent health, but since my early childhood I have suffered from a melancholia which, in the last five years, has begun to show definite signs of manic-depressive insanity. It has prevented me from getting anything like the full value out of my talent. It has made it impossible for me to enjoy the simple pleasures of life. I have run from wife to wife, from house to house, and from country to country in a ridiculous effort to escape from myself."

This gentleman had a cyclical personality. He was born that way, or with the fundamentals of the type, and probably some close analyst could show how he inherited his peculiarities. Probably his parents did not know the significance of it all, or, if they knew, they did not know how to train a personality of the kind.

Abraham Lincoln was of this type and some one, probably Menninger, has said that he is an illustration of what training can do to make such personalities into persons capable of rendering great service to the world. If Abraham Lincoln is an instance of success through such a personality, this artist regarded himself as an illustration of defeat by reason of it.

Perhaps he states the reason for that defeat. He says that he was always making "a ridiculous effort to escape from myself." Running away from the problems of life is suicidal to character. Even a person of the most normal of personalities must train himself to accept defeats and disappointments; to meet the problems of life face to face; to endure with equanimity those that can not be overcome.

This is doubly true of persons with abnormal or unusual types of personality. Those with cyclic personality have periods when they "sit on top of the world." They are warmed by that altitude. Then follows the valley of depression. It is not easy to reconcile things as they are, or appear to be, in the valley with the "hangover" or the "top of the mountain" psychology. The fatal policy is to turn tail and run when this valley phase is reached. "I have run from . . ." said the man we quote. In "running from" he finally ran into the corner from which he chose suicide as the way out.

Of all types of insanity none other is so curable as manic-depressive, the end product of this personality. Of all types of personality none other is so readily overcome by training.

SPEEDING THE INEVITABLE.

J. S. J. writes: Before prohibition I used to drink a few glasses of beer after work and before dinner. Now I meet a few friends privately every day at 5 p. m. and spend an hour in social intercourse, and we drink about two or three highballs. I am 45 years old, work in an office. I do not become intoxicated, never use moonshine but only good whisky and never drink it straight. I have been told that the way I am drinking is the worst possible way; that I am heading for the grave; that my liver will be cooked and my heart ulcerated. My health is good. What is your opinion?

REPLY.

We are all headed for the grave and taxes. Your policy is merely stepping on the gas. There is no reason for thinking you will not be here to celebrate next Fourth of July. Since you are certain of the quality of your whisky and are not disposed to listen to advice you might increase your insurance and step on her as you please. Maybe this was not exactly the advice you wanted, but I have gone as far as I could to please you.

HARRIS' TRIPLE, 3 ON IN NINTH, DEFEATS BROWNS, 11-10; NAVY LEAVES FAVORITES IN WAKE TO WIN CREW CROWN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

ON that day when some prize-fight fan is of a mind to quit this vale of tears and dedicate his remains to medical research there may be revealed the source of the machinations peculiar to his ilk which impels him to step up to the box office with alacrity and invest in a ticket that entitles him to watch two parties like Primo Carnera and Pat Redmond commit travesty in the name of boxing.

When the medical men take the prize-fight fan apart to learn what makes him tick they may discover the motivating innate force that directed 20,000 cash customers to Ebbets Field the other night in the very face of the fact that a strictly tailor-made, publicity-fashioned freak from Venice was to meet a tyro from the Ould Sod, so consecrated and so dedicated that there was no chance that the deep-laid title aspirations of Carnera would be interrupted.

The Carnera-Redmond thing set a new all-time, free-style record for gullibility of the cash customers inasmuch as it bore semiofficial earmarks of a roast. A few weeks before, during the court harangue between the Carnera interests and Madison Square Garden, the judge sanctioned the participation of the Primo in any match so long as there was no possibility that Carnera's record would be marred or his drawing power diminished to the detriment of the Garden, which claimed a contract on his services.

No Contempt of Court

So they went out and unearthed Redmond as Carnera's opponent in an honest effort to avoid contempt of court. Into the record books as the first fighter matched to please the court goes the name of Pat Redmond with the notation of his one-round knockout at the hands of the Primo listed under a minor caption.

Thus we have the complete metamorphosis of the prize ring industry since that afternoon of July 8 back in 1898, when John L. Sullivan was forced to take Jake Kilrain out onto a barge off Richburg, Miss., to escape the wrath of the sheriff and the court on the occasion of the last bare-knuckle fight in which the Boston Strongboy licked Kilrain in 75 rounds.

But to return to the prize fight fan of modern vintage, there are past performances enough in his record to make a study of his strange psychology.

Intrigued by Hints

For the past two years they have been complaining of the fouls and the "dives" but the slightest hint that a fight is "in the bag" intrigues them. They want to be in at the kill. They want to boo and rant. They want to draw themselves up to their fullest importance when they tell the boys on the corner how Joe Dokes went into the tank without being hit. That's their reward for long hours and much money spent at the ringside.

They want a hero, too. They forget about the brazen build-ups. You can warn them and warn them but the genus sucker doesn't want to be told. He dreams of a new champion, a new "killer" and he wants to be on the scene. He might stay away from a fight between a couple of palookas, but tell him that one of the two fellows in the ring can't possibly win, that it's in the book for him to take the count, and the prize-fight fan delivers himself unto the promoter in increasing numbers.

There was no indication that the Carnera-Redmond thing was in the bag. The match justified the result. The Carnera interests merely took care that nothing untoward would happen when they procured the incompetent Redmond as the party of the second part. Carnera figured to win in one round—or less. Redmond couldn't win. Ah! That was it. Redmond couldn't win. And so 20,000 prize-fight fans treked to Ebbetts Field to see the fight that couldn't be won by Redmond.

Fitzsimmons Holds Reds as Giants Score

Cincinnati, June 16 (A.P.).—Behind the good pitching of Fred Fitzsimmons, the Giants today defeated the lowly Cincinnati Reds, 6-1.

With the score tied at 1-1, the Giants staged a 5-run rally in the sixth to take the decision. Hogan led both teams at bat with three hits.

Attorney Sues Carnera For $2,500 Legal Fee

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—A suit for $2,500 against Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, was filed in the Supreme Court today on behalf of Harry S. Hechheimer, an attorney who alleges that sum is due for legal services.

Hechheimer charges that he was retained to assist in the preparation of a contract for the world's heavyweight championship and in the efforts of the Italian fighter to reinstate himself in good standing with the State Athletic Commission. The services were rendered between December 8, 1930, and March 15, this year, the complaint alleges.

Middies First In Regatta Upset

Spurt in Last Mile Beats Cornell for 1931 Crown.

Washington Is Third After Setting Pace; Syracuse Fourth.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.).—Just when it was supposed their guns had been spiked, the United States Naval Academy's crew fired a sudden broadside into the ranks of their college rivals today and raced through a rainstorm of triumph over eight of the country's best crews in the four-mile varsity championship battle down the Hudson.

Old Man River has become hardened to sensations in this classic of college rowing but "Old Dick" Glendon sprang one of the biggest upsets in years when he sent a stalwart eight to the line that outrowed Cornell's mighty champions, and turned back the challenge of Washington's gallant huskies.

Rank outsiders in the fleet of nine varsity contenders, beaten in every short distance race they had rowed earlier in the season, the Navy came back to the heights with a smashing and decisive victory. With a new stroke, R. P. Hunter setting the pace, the Midshipmen beat Cornell's heavy favorites by nearly a length and a half and Washington by close to two lengths in a spectacular three-cornered struggle for the blue ribbon prize of the regatta.

Three Leaders Battle In Driving Rain.

These three fought it out through the driving rain and mist over the last mile, with the rest of the fleet scattered and badly beaten. To the consternation of the critics, who had not figured the Navy as having more than a slight outside chance, the sailors stood off their foremost two rivals with a smashing finish after taking full command of the race in the last mile.

It took a remarkable performance to win and the Navy was equal to it, in winning for the first time since 1925 and for the fourth time since the war. The Sailors swept across the finish of the four miles on an ebb tide in 18 minutes 54 1-5 seconds, the third fastest time recorded since the regatta was begun on the Hudson 36 years ago.

Only Cornell's champions of 1901, who rowed the course in 18:53 1-5, and California's record-smashers of 1928, who set the course mark of 18:35 4-5, turned in faster time than old Dick Glendon's boys did as they once again dominated the intercollegiate seas.

Columbia Greatest Disappointment.

Trailing the three crews which made the first division fight were California, Syracuse, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wisconsin and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in that order. The biggest surprise, in the posting of this finish was the disappointing showing of the Columbia eight, previously unbeaten and a hot favorite to fight Cornell for the regatta's chief honors.

The division of the other honors saw Washington's fine freshmen eight sweep to triumph over six Eastern rivals to beat Cornell handily by slightly more than a length, at two miles, after which the powerful Syracuse junior varsity proved much the best of six crews over the three-mile route, with California second and Cornell, the defending champions, third.

Cornell's naval forces thus yielded all of the honors they had won last June in the closest approach to a sweep that the regatta has known in years, but the biggest blow to the Ithacans was the defeat of their crack varsity combination, which had been figured to repeat its sensational triumph of last year.

Navy Underestimated By Cornell.

Jim Wray's Cornellians gave every victor of the day a fight but that was the best they could do. They beat off all of the varsity crews that had been picked to give them the most contention but the Ithacans did not quite have the stuff to overhaul Navy when it came to the day's surprising climax.

Cornell, it appeared, underestimated the Navy in the earlier stages of the race and again in the third mile, when the sailors made the move that soon put them in command. To observers following the race from the observation train, it seemed that Cornell watched Syracuse, rowing alongside, too closely, only to discover upon shaking off the Orange and then overhauling California, that the Navy was the crew to beat.

These four crews all followed the pace that Washington's Huskies set throughout the first three miles. Washington, in fact, held as much as a full length's advantage over the entire fleet, for the first half of the race, and it wasn't until a half mile from the finish that they yielded completely to the Navy's spurt and also fell behind Cornell.

"Waiting Game" Fatal To Cornell.

Cornell played the "waiting game" too long, especially in the third mile. Content to keep an edge over the feared Syracuse combination, Cornell was nearly two lengths behind the Navy as the contenders neared the spidery railroad bridge that splits the course at the 3-mile mark.

Here it was that Navy shoved up the beat a few strokes and quickly overhauled Washington. Cornell realized then it had to chase the Sailors. Coxswain Jimmy Burke's yells could be heard from halfway out the river as he called on a spurt by Stroke Bob Wilson and the rest of the champions who saw their crown

MD. U. PLANT WILL SEAT 6,000

Men's Field House to Be Finished in November.

AMONG five new buildings under construction at the University of Maryland at College Park are field houses for both the men and women.

The men's field house, of course, will be bigger and more pretentious than the one for the coeds, as the male students greatly outnumber the girls and all of the indoor varsity events will be staged there. It also may be used for auditorium purposes from time to time.

The men's field house, which will be situated just north of Byrd Stadium and just west of the new baseball diamond, will be 173 feet long and 136 feet wide, with the front of the building facing the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

Plant Will Seat 6,000 for Boxing.

It will have a seating capacity of 4,200 for basket ball games and will be able to seat 6,000 when used for boxing matches or as an auditorium.

The structure will be nearly 40 feet high and, although actually only two stories above the ground, will have rooms on three floors. It will have two offices, a conference room, a gallery trophy room, a public rest room, a rest room for women, dressing rooms with separate showers for visiting teams, dressing rooms with showers for each varsity squad, a faculty exercise room with showers, and quarters for visiting athletes that will sleep upward of 40, with separate showers and a dressing room.

The women's field house, a one-story structure, is being built at the western end of the campus. It will contain one large room for basket ball games and mass exercise work, and there also will be a smaller room for corrective gymnastics and dancing classes.

The athletic field for women will be built adjacent to the field house.

The women's field house is due to be ready by fall and the men's is to be finished early in November.

St. John's Lacrossemen To Hold Cup Two Years

Baltimore, June 16 (A.P.).—St. John's College, Annapolis, victors over an all-star Canadian lacrosse team, will retain the Lally Cup, emblematic of the international championship, for two years at least.

An agreement has been reached, it was announced today, not to play next year as lacrosse twelves of both Canada and the United States will be engaged in tryouts for the Olympic games.

CUBS RALLY TO DOWN BRAVES

Walkers Aid Chicago Drive for Verdict in 7th, 8 to 7.

CHICAGO, June 16 (A.P.).—Trailing by seven runs in the fourth inning, the Chicago Cubs came from behind today to nip the Boston Braves, 8-7, in the final game of the series. It was the only Chicago victory of the series.

Shaky Boston pitching, an infield error, and a disputed decision by Umpire Clark gave the Cubs victory in the seventh inning when they scored four runs off Moss, Zachary and Selbold. Dreesen started it all by dropping Grimm's pop fly and three walks followed, one of which was so strenuously protested by Catcher Cronin that he was ejected from the game. Stephenson then singled and Hemsley doubled to give Chicago a lead which Root protected. Wilson hit his sixth home run of the year in the sixth inning.

Each team made ten hits, Boston getting six in the first inning off Bush and Baecht, and scoring six runs. Umpire Clark was continually in trouble with both teams. The Cubs ended their home stay with a record of nine wins and six defeats against the Eastern clubs.

Buell on Fort Card With Landers Is Plan

Eddie Buell, popular local featherweight, will appear on the Fort Washington fight card next Monday night if present plans of the management materialize.

Efforts are being made to match Buell with Sailor Landers, Virginia National Guard featherweight champion, for a 10 round bout. Landers hails from Norfolk and is under the same management as Jack Denning. All-Navy heavyweight titleholder, who is to meet Arthur Huttick, of Brooklyn, in the 10 round feature.

The Buell-Landers affair, if arranged, will replace one of the six-round preliminaries of the original program whichc was postponed last Monday night on account of rain. Tickets purchased for the original date will be good next Monday.

16-Year-Old Golfer Dixie Title Medalist

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 16 (A.P.). Scudday Horner, Nashville's 16-year-old interscholastic champion, today forced favorites and veterans into the background by winning medal honors in the Southern Amateur Golf Association's eighteen-hole qualifying round with a 71.

Playing over the Riverview course at the Golf and Country Club, where par is a difficult 70, young Horner made the turn in 35, 1 under perfect figures, and then approached the eighteenth tee needing a par 3 on the last hole for a 69.

His tee shot was unplayable and he was forced to take the stroke penalty, finally scoring a 5 after two putts. His score was one stroke lower than that turned in by Jack Toomer, Jacksonville, Fla.

HOMERS WIN FOR CARDS IN 9TH

Watkins, Frisch Hit for Circuit to Beat Phillies, 2-1.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 16 (A.P.).—In a combination home run slugging-pitching duel, the St. Louis Cardinals nosed out the Phillies, 2 to 1, here today when George Watkins and Frankie Frisch hit for the circuit in the ninth inning.

The Phils nabbed the lead in the initial frame when Chuck Klein hit his seventeenth home run of the season and breezed along under the masterful control of Ray Benge until the last inning.

Stout Gets Credit For Game.

Benge allowed but five hits, while Grimes, who hurled for eight innings, permitted only three. Allyn Stout, who was hit for a single in the ninth, got credit for winning the game.

By winning, the Cardinals, who end their long stay here, swept the three-game series with the Phillies.

John Goodman Wins "Trans-Miss." Medal

Minneapolis, Minn., June 16 (A.P.).—Johnny Goodman, conqueror of Bobby Jones in the national amateur tournament two years ago at Pebble Beach, today won medalist honors of the Transmississippi golf tournament over the Golden Valley course. Bettering his Monday score by one stroke, Goodman finished medal play with a 149 total, a one-stroke lead over Billy Sixty, of Milwaukee, and L. B. Maytag, of Des Moines, who tied for runner-up with 150.

Sixty's Monday score showed only ordinary golf, but today he set a new official course record with a brilliant 70, 3 under par. The previous record was 71. Sixty clipped three strokes from par on the outgoing nine and played it even coming in.

Goodman started the day's round with 75 and a pair of 37s today placed him on top. His wood shots were powerful, and he seldom was off line.

COLLEGE ACE IS SIGNED BY NATS

Masters Won 24 of 26 Games in Box for Penn.

A COLLEGE prodigy, whom President Clark Griffith believes may ultimately prove a winner in the big leagues, was signed by the Nationals yesterday when Walter Masters, right-handed pitching star of the University of Pennsylvania nine for the past three years, accepted terms. In landing Masters, the Nat club-owner outbid the Athletics and Red Sox, each of whom had made bonus offers to the collegian. He will join the team today and accompany it on its Western trip, which opens in Cleveland Friday.

Masters, who graduated from Penn last week, is 24 years old, nearly 6 feet tall, and weighs 182 pounds. His home is in Philadelphia. He has hung up a fine record, having pitched 26 games for Pennsylvania and won all but 2, losing to North Carolina in his sophomore year and to Columbia in a 10-inning game last season.

Masters came here for a secret trial several days ago and showed a good fast ball, a fair curve, and a great knuckle ball. The latter, according to Patsy Gharrity, who caught the youngster, is even better than that of Eddie Rommel, of the Mackmen, but Masters must develop control of it.

Gharrity Has Trouble Holding Pitches.

"If Masters can control his knuckler," said President Griffith, "I believe he will make a winning pitcher for us. It's break is so puzzling that even Gharrity had trouble holding it and Masters says he had to quit using it with the college team because none of his catchers

Harris, Hero, Scores Winning Run After Levey's Error.

Fischer and Hadley Pounded Out in 7-Run Rally in 3d.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANY more finishes like the Nationals staged yesterday, when they scored four runs in the ninth to beat the Browns, 11 to 10, to extend their winning streak to 11 in a row, and the scribes will be digging up that "team of destiny" phrase, which was almost worn ragged back in 1924 when Bucky Harris led an aggregation to Washington's first league pennant and only world's championship.

For eight innings, the 5,000 faithful on hand suffered plenty and were willing to concede defeat. Then, with no warning, the Johnsons struck and, quicker than it takes to tell it, they came from three down to become one up and the game was over still with nobody out in this ninth frame.

Dave Harris Game's Big Hero.

Outfielder Dave Harris was the "fair-haired boy" yesterday and it was his slashing triple with the bases loaded, and an error by Jim Levey on the same blow, that sent the cash customers almost into ecstasies and willing to make him Mayor of Washington if he wants the job. Myer opened this round by coaxing a pass, and then Manush's scratch single and Cronin's Texas League one filled the bases and set the stage for Harris.

He finally found one to his liking, there was the loud crack of his bat meeting the ball, and a liner directly between Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte followed. This blow knotted the string and Harris was content to stop at third. However, Levey took the return throw and pegged into the St. Louis dugout in an effort to catch him at the cot corner and Dave, still on his knees from his slide, was told by Umpire Dineen to go on home—and the ball game was over.

Only a superoptimist would have given a nickel for the Nats' chances of winning out after the third frame, when the Browns scored seven runs to break a 2-all tie. The Nats kept on trying, though, whittling down the lead two runs each in the fifth and sixth, with each team scoring once in the seventh.

Hebert Knocked Out In Seventh.

"Preacher" Wallace Hebert, the southpaw phenom who beat the Mackmen last week in his major league debut, started on the hill for St. Louis and, for the fact that his mates gave him such a commanding early lead, he would have heard the shower calling earlier than he did. He was finally yanked in the seventh, with George Blaeholder, his relief, being charged with the loss. Carl Fischer, seeking his eighth victory, also needed help, Irving Hadley and Bobby Burke furnishing it, with the latter, who toiled but a frame, grabbing the victory for his record.

The Browns started right to work on Fischer, coining two runs in the first on two triples, a useful out and a walk, and then pounded him off the hill in the third. Five hits, including two doubles and Schulte's triple with the bases full, and two bases on balls, were used in this seven-run rally. Besides, there was an error by Cronin and one by Umpire Guthrie. One was just as costly to the Nats as was the other, and fans can take their choice in naming the "goat." The fact remains that but for both coming in the round, due to what followed, the aliens would have scored but three runs.

West's triple, Bluege's single and

CHICAGO DERBY TRIAL IS WON BY BOYS HOWDY IN UPSET

Boys Howdy Wins Derby Trial

Morpheus, Long-Shot, Second and Spanish Play Third.

Sweep All, Favorite, Eighth in Wash. Park Feature.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Boys Howdy, the bay colt raced by the Canadian turfman, H. C. Hatch, upset calculations as to the identity of next Saturday's $50,000 American Derby winner by capturing the mile and an eighth Trial Purse that drew a field of nine of the most prominent derby eligibles at Washington Park today.

Morpheus, a bay gelding from the San Mateo Stable that had been regarded as little more than a plater, ran Boys Howdy to a nose to finish second. Spanish Play, regarded as a standout, was a length and a half back of Morpheus for third, closing next to the rail and having little chance to get through in the stretch.

Sweep All, Choice, Eighth.

Sweep All, the favorite, and a potential derby favorite as a result of finishing second to Twenty Grand in the Kentucky Derby, finished eighth after never having been a contender and pulled up lame. Pittsburgher ran last.

The race was run in 1:52 2-5, two seconds off the track record, over a fast track.

Boys Howdy held the lead after the first sixteenth. Breaking from an inside post position, Jockey Gil Riley hustled the colt to the front at once and Boys Howdy kept close to the rail to pull ahead. Rounding the first turn, Walter J. Salmon's Ladder kept close up as Boys Howdy led down the back stretch, but dropped back as they came into the stretch turn and Spanish Play and Morpheus moved up.

Morpheus closed strong on the outside and fought the winner head and head through the last hundred yards. The field, in the order of its finish behind the leaders, was Oswego, Sunny Lassie, Ladder, Knight's Call, Sweep All and Pittsburgher.

Boys Howdy returned $19.90 to win, $11.42 to place and $8.24 to show on a $2 mutuel ticket. Morpheus paid $55.98 to place and $29.68 to show, while Spanish Play paid $5.62 to show.

The result duplicated the upset of the 1-mile trial for the Kentucky Derby on May 8, in which most of the same thoroughbreds raced. Boys Howdy won, beating Pittsburgher, Sweep All and Spanish Play, only to run fifth in the Kentucky Derby a week later behind both Sweep All and Spanish Play.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

A PITCHER doesn't necessarily have to pitch his game in order to win, for he can stand in the pitcher's box and watch 27 players be put out without any help from him or his teammates. It is possible for three batters to be retired each inning without the pitcher throwing a ball. If a pitcher is on the mound ready to make a pitch, and the batter steps from one batter's box to the other, he is automatically "out." If three men do this for nine innings, the pitcher wins his game without once throwing the ball, that is, if his teammates come across with at least one run.

Young boys between the ages of 10 and 12, trained to be human bloodhounds are used by the natives of Abyssinia to track down thieves and criminals. Instead of appealing to the police, many Abyssinians rent a thief catcher. These native youngsters go to the spot where the crime was committed, drink a secret potion, then start out to track the criminal, sometimes following his trail for as far as 20 or 25 miles. They usually "get their man."

Mount de Agua, in Guatemala, Central America, is known as the "water volcano," as its name signifies. At intervals, torrents of cold water spout from its northern side.

—Washington Park Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, June 16.—The East End Park Hotel Handicap is the outstanding event on the well-arranged mid-week program which will be served the patrons of the Washington Park course tomorrow afternoon. Supporting the main event, the Southside Purse, an allowance affair, attracted a select field of nine of the leading 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares, to contest the $1,400 purse over the 6 furlongs sprint distance.

In the remaining races, which attracted large fields, the cheaper grade thoroughbreds will perform. With the track in good condition, the various events should produce some spirited contests.

Although only four were named to match strides in the feature event, all appear evenly matched and under the weight assignments, it should be a better battle over the one-mile course. The Audley Farm's leading handicap performer, GALLANT KNIGHT, carrying top impost of 123 pounds, should show the way to this small field. The son of Bright Night —Ethel Gray was practically left at the post in his recent invasion of the New York circuit, and with better handling here, should annex the feature. MIKE HALL, from the R. M. Eastman string, nicely weighted with 114 pounds, should furnish the opposition, with LADY BROADCAST, favored over SATIN SPAR for the short end of the purse.

The second feature brings together nine speedy sprinters, with COUSIN JO, fleet filly from the C. Nuckols stable, selected to lead this band of fillies and mares to the wire. The daughter of Stimulus—Gentle Julia, was beaten a nose last start over a muddy track, but under favorable conditions should redeem herself. LADY FINGERS, owned by Gallaher and Coombs, finished second to COUSIN JO in their last meeting and figures to go as well here. SUPREME SWEET displayed brilliant form in her last winning effort and should hold the others safe.

FIRST RACE—PRINCESS A O has shown the most consistent form of the maiden 2-year-old fillies which will face the barrier in the opening dash, and is favored to graduate. CHICAGO BELLE did not race to her works last outing and may surprise. STELLA F appears best of the remaining juveniles.

SECOND RACE—In the second event, a limited field of 3-year-olds and upward will contset the issue over the seven-furlong distance under claiming conditions. FOXBOLT, from the Peterson and Jeffter barn, has trained briskly since his arrival and should outfoot his rivals. GOLD BET has disappointed in recent efforts and on his best form would prove dangerous. HOST has been freshened up by a brief rest and is selected for the minor award.

THIRD RACE—Sixteen juveniles will parade to the post in the five and a half furlongs of the third number, with TELLICO favored to lead from flag fall to finish. This clever youngster has raced with better company than he meets here and figures to romp to an easy victory. SIBERIA turned in a splendid trial the other day and should force the pace. ETCTERA, from the J. Schorr Stable, is given the show call.

SIXTH RACE—In the sixth race, which will be contested over the mile and one-eighth route, nine high-class platers will contest the purse. KNIGHT COMMANDER has displayed real courage over a route and under the conditious should take down the first money. LAHOR, winner of his last start at this track, should finish in the runner-up position, with GALAHAD favored over the others for the show end of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—The final event on the card brings together a list of 20 of the older platers to contest the purse. PLAY BALL, in the Mrs. R. Rogers string, was beaten a head by Royal Charge last outing and off that effort should lead his field to the wire. GRIFF W is very consistent and should extend the top one. The show award is reserved for DEVON. This plater raced far below his best form last start and is capable of a better showing.

THE POST'S CONSENSUS AT WASHINGTON PARK

The following consensus has been compiled by The Post from the selections of the leading handicappers of the turf. The figures show how the selections were rated.

MIDDIES WIN REGATTA IN UPSET

Confound Critics by Spurt Near End to Beat Cornell.

this took all they had and the Navy was a length and a quarter in front and going away when they crossed the finish line.

California Boat Fourth Over Line.

So Cornell was second, Washington third, California fourth and Syracuse fifth, with Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wisconsin and Massachusetts Tech flogging the water with tired sweeps way back yonder in the annual pathetic competition of the also rans to avoid the ignomy of closing the parade.

The party who had drawn the Navy in the $5 hat pool on the observation train known as the Bolivian Hospital Sweep, now held up the contemptible slip of paper, accepted a fair sized sheaf of $5 bills and announced that he would still be Bill to his old friends. Most of the rowing coaches were sliding up and down the river bank on the observation train, among them old Dick Glendon, the coach of Navy crew. Of course people turned to old Mr. Glendon for his remarks on the surprising turn events had taken, but Mr. Glendon seemed less surprised than most.

"Did you know how good that crew was?" Mr. Glendon was asked.

"I knew how good my boys were," said Mr. Glendon, "but I didn't know how good the others were. Now we all know. We live and learn."

Young Glendon's Crew Far Back.

An odd family situation arises here, for old Dick Glendon's son, young Rich Glendon, is the coach of the Columbia outfit, which had beaten Navy some time ago, and there was young Rich Glendon's boatload a long way back with the other members of the fishing fleet at the finish of the championship race.

Another passenger on one of the cars was Mr. Rusty Callow, the coach of the Penn crew. Several regrettable social errors had been made during the course of the dismal afternoon in the rain, for these coaches don't wear labels on their hats and people are likely to blurt their opinions of this crew or that one in the unconventional give-and-take of idle conversation during the long pauses between races. One of these passengers had drawn the Penn crew in not only one hat pool, but two, and when his second ticket read "Penn" this party quite naturally made several humorous remarks about the rotten state of his luck.

Penn's Showing Not Great Success.

Mr. Callow made no remonstrance, although it seems probable that a coach who has been striving and living with a lot of earnest young athletes engaged in a heart-breaking sport, felt some counter-remarks leaping to his tongue. He might have felt that a few $5 bets were insufficient cause for ridicule of his young men, remembering how hard they had worked and how hopelessly and all that. You couldn't call this evening's performance of the Penn crew a complete success but it must have been a matter of some slight pride to the young men and their Mr. Callow that they also beat Columbia in the big race. Columbia had beaten them twice.

They were rowing on a fast tide today and the Navy's time of 18 minutes 54 1-5 seconds, was only a few winks off the record for the 4-mile Poughkeepsie course achieved by California in 1928. That time was 18:35 4-5. Only one other winning crew, Cornell in 1901, has done better than the Navy did today. Statistics say, and rowing, next to horse racing, is the most statistical sport there is, that two crews which finished second in those bygone years also rowed faster than the Navy, '31.

Pegler Doubts Box Car Estimates.

The crowd will be estimated in the traditional boxcar figures of 50,000, and there is no way of disproving these guesses, nor anything to gain by doing so, but actually there weren't very many people along the river today. There were about 3,000 on the train of awninged flat-cars and certainly not more than that and apparently a lot fewer watching the race from the yachts anchored in the stream. On the Poughkeepsie side, which is the far side of the river, a spyglass could pick out clusters of six or fifteen or so on the palisades but no masses of people.

By an interesting coincidence, the Syracuse Freshmen and junior varsity crews contrived to retard the starting of the big race almost an hour under 7 o'clock. The Syracuse Frosh were almost ready to go when they slipped away from their stake-boat, a little skiff anchored on the starting line, where a fellow hired by the regatta committee is supposed to hold them fast until the gun. Their coxswain then found it necessary to go way upstream and come about to reach the stake-boat again, consuming almost half an hour.

Then, when the junior varsity were starting for the line, a regrettable accident broke something in their shell, which needed half an hour to repair, while the other crews sat in their shells beaten by a driving rain.

Syracuse Frosh, Juniors Delay Varsity.

The coincidence is that for two days prior to the race, persons attached to the Syracuse crew had been saying that old Mr. Tenyck, their coach, did not wish to start until 7 o'clock as he thought the tide wouldn't be just right till then. The intervention of the two accidents adjusted the schedule very nicely.

The Syracuse junior varsity won by a length and one half from the boys who had sat through the rain, with California second and Cornell third.

NAVY CREW CAPTURES TITLE IN FAST TIME

slipping away from them in the Navy's rush.

Cornell closed part of the gap and passed Washington, with a half mile to go, but the Navy still had something in reserve. The Sailors yielded scarcely more than a dozen feet of their margin as they rowed triumantly across the finish, a half-length of open water between their stern and Cornell's bow.

Washington was a bare half-length behind Cornell at the end and a good three and a half lengths in front of their Coast rivals. California's Golden Bears, who gave a good account of themselves all the way. The Bears were two and a half lengths ahead of Syracuse, which finished a disappointing fifth.

Pennsylvania also upset the dope by finishing sixth and rowing a better race than they had shown at any previous time this year. The Quakers trailed Syracuse by three lengths but led Columbia by a length, thereby turning the tables on the New Yorkers who had mopped everything in their early season campaign, only apparently to bear out the belief they had gone stale. Wisconsin and Massachusetts Tech, eighth and ninth, never were contenders, finishing within a length back of Columbia.

U. S. Horse Scores at Ascot As Queen Sets Fashion Pace

Woodward's Sir Andrew Wins Prince of Wales Purse as Meet Opens; Blue Prevails in Style Parade of Women.

ASCOT, England, June 16 (A.P.).—Dame Fashion led by a short nose at the close of the first day of the fashionable Ascot race meeting today, but King Thoroughbred pressed hard for recognition as William Woodward's American-owned Sir Andrew atoned for his defeat in the English Derby by winning the coveted Prince of Wales Purse.

One hundred thousand Britons—nobility, society and commoners—were on hand to help make the opening one of the most brilliant in recent years. The royal family, led by King George and Queen Mary, participated in the dignified pageant, riding in gayly decorated landaus down the track to the royal box.

As far as the racing was concerned, the honors were well divided. Sir Andrew earned the major share of the 1,000 pounds added purse by his victory in the Prince of Wales Purse; J. A. Dewar's Cameronian duplicated his Derby victory in the St. James Palace Stakes; the Aga Khan's Pomme D'Api accounted for the celebrated Gold Vase, and Lord Astor, husband of the vivacious Virginian, Lady Nancy, collected two seconds.

Sir Andrew staged a brilliant reversal of form to take the mile and 5 furlong Prince of Wales Purse by three-quarters of a length from Lord Astor's Cremebrulee, with Anthony Rothschild's Armagnac another length back in third place. The American horse was given little chance of winning, being quoted at 10 to 1, while Armagnac was made the 7-to-1 favorite. Fifteen started.

The races were listed as the main attraction of the day, but it was the world of fashion which attracted the greatest attention.

Queen Mary set the pace for the fashion parade, wearing a brocaded cloak of pink, blue and cream, a silver and blue toque and a white fox fur. The dresses of the women in the boxes tiered along the stand were as beautifully varied as the season's range of fashions permitted, blue prevailing.

D. C. Red Sox Break Frederick's Streak

PITT LEADING MANOR CLUB TOURNEY QUALIFIERS WITH 72

Card Studded By 2 Birdies And 13 Pars

Evans, 5 Strokes Behind, in First Day of Medal Play.

Field of 220 Completes Qualifynig Play Today.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

HARRY G. PITT, of the home club, yesterday led a field of morethan 260 golfers who competed in the first day's qualifying round of the Manor Club's second annual invitation tournament. Pitt spred-eagled the field with a fine card of 38—34—72, one stroke over par, and five strokes better than the 77 turned in by Charles Evans, jr., one of the younger members of the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Pitt's score was remarkable in the fact that of the eighteen holes in the round no less than thirteen were played in par figures. On three holes he was one over par and on two holes he captured birdies. The only two holes in the first nine which cost him an extra stroke were the fourth, when he adventured into the woods, and the fifth, when he over-approached and missed his putt after reaching the green in three.

Scores Birdies on 11th And 15th Holes.

On the sixteenth a par 3, he drove into a trap, pitching out to the green and taking two putts. His birdies were scored on the short eleventh hole, when he ran down a 12-foot putt for a 2, and on the fifteenth, where he sank a 3-foot putt for a birdie 4.

The cards of the two leaders:

Out—
Pitt..... 5 3 4 5 5 4 4 3 5—38
Evans..... 4 4 4 5 4 5 4 3 6—37
In—
Pitt..... 4 2 4 4 4 4 4 4 4—34—72
Evans..... 5 4 4 5 5 4 4 4 5—40—77

When all the cards had been turned in, and the sun was low in the West when the ten-hour procession of golfers came to an end, there were 8 cards of 80 and under, and 43 of 88 and under, with 5 sixteens to qualify.

In the field today there will be 220 additional players and their scores probably will limit the first sixteen to 79s and under, while cards of 87 may possibly qualify in the fifth and last sixteen. Today, as on yesterday, there will be seventeen forecaddies stationed on the course in order to expedite play.

Their presence on the first nine, where the fairways are lined with woods, is especially essential, for these nine holes yesterday were exceedingly troublesome to a vast majority of the players. D. L. Thomson, of the Manor Club, had the worst experience, however, for it took him ten strokes to negotiate the first hole.

Richardson Follows 38 With a 49.

The score cards were an interesting study. William E. Richardson, of the Manor Club, was out in 38, even figures with Pitt, and then took 49 more strokes for the incoming nine. William E. Foster, an unattached player, needed a par 5 for the last hole of the first nine for a total of 39 and scored 8. Even under this handicap he reached the eighteenth hole needing only a par 4 for an 85, which would have landed him safely in the qualified list, but unfortunately he had to place a 7 on his card and thus, with 88, is left on the ragged edge.

Among the low handicap players who are listed for today are John C. Shorey, Kenwood; M. Parker Nolan, Congressional; J. William Harvey, Indian Spring; W. R. McCallum, Washington; H. L. Lacey, Manor; Maurice Nee, Manor; Donald McPhail, Baltimore Country Club; Robert Bowen, Argyle, District junior champion, and many others, although Pitt's 72 will not be easily dislodged from its present position at the head of the field. The players who turned in cards yesterday under 100 were as follows:

72—Harry G. Pitt, Manor.
77—Charles D. Evans, jr., Washington.
78—Royce Hough, Beaver Dam; B. H. Burrows, unattached.

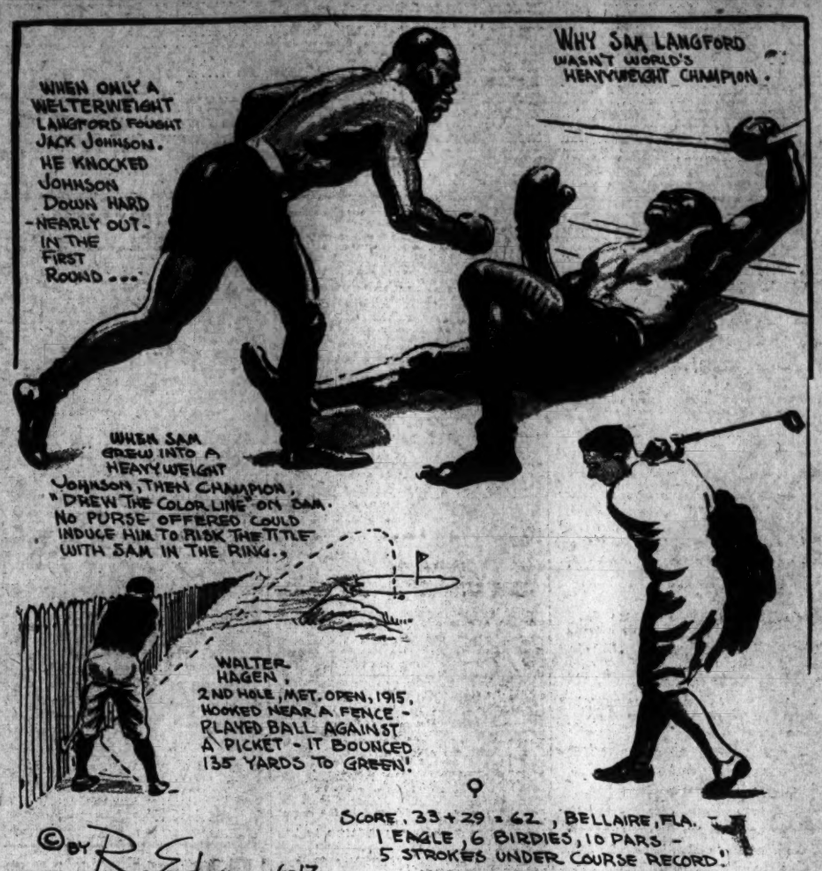
MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren



Nolan, Fitzgerald Making Good Early Sport Promise

Youngsters, Grads of Plaza Playground, Stars in Three Sports at Gonzaga and Are Heading for Holy Cross.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

WHEN the Plaza Playground, that barren tract of parched, dry clay, encircled by a cinder running path, was at the zenith of its glory a few years ago, it numbered among its numerous patrons a couple of curly-haired young urchins, as Irish as Paddy's well-known pig, who were just entering in upon their athletic careers, careers which are just beginning to blossom and which give promise of equaling the deeds of many famous athletes.

The scholastic term just ended saw this pair, Tommy Nolan and Dicky Fitzgerald, live up to their reputations as good players in three branches of sport which they had so painstakingly established among the young sporting gentry who frequented the playground. Nolan received three letters for his work on the football, basket ball and baseball teams of Gonzaga High, while Fitzgerald was recipient of two, these coming as rewards for his endeavor in basket ball and baseball. Injuries prevented him from competing in football.

Mitchell Spotted This Pair On Playground.

Orrel Mitchell, now head coach at the I street institution, first noticed the youngsters when he himself was playing on the Plaza diamond. Orrel always entertained somewhat of a fatherly attitude toward the boys who visited the field, so it was not odd that he should take these two under his wing and instruct them in the rudiments of the various games.

Mitchell stressed their work in basket ball. He worked untiringly with them on the outdoor court, teaching them the tricks of the game, demonstrating different ways of dodging guards and of blocking opposing players and improving their footwork. His pupils were quick to learn and, before that first summer season had run its course, they were ready for a crack at the indoor sport. The Boys Club furnished them the opportunity.

They played together on the Boys' Club Optimists, a 100-pound aggregation, for two seasons before they were advanced to the 115-pound team. This afforded them their first opportunity of breaking into the public print for the Optimists entered the A. A. U. basket ball championship sponsored by The Post, and won it. And not content with this, the Optimists took the measure of the 115-pound contingent from Baltimore.

The entire team felt pretty swanky over the victory. Stars in their own right. Ah, it made their manly chests swell with pride. No more 115-pound class competition for them. They were big shots now and wanted to meet the larger teams.

Came Back After Failure To Win Title.

The following year, 1930, they were again entered in the A. A. U. tourney, this time as 130-pounders. It was a sad awakening, for the team proved to be just another starter, and was eliminated in the early rounds of play. The lesson was effective, however, for the gallant little band went back to work and this last season they copped the 130-pound honors.

In the meantime, Messrs. Nolan and Fitzgerald had enrolled as students at Gonzaga. Once again they came under the hard-working Mitchell, and this time older, wiser and larger. Mitchell is making finished athletes of the duo.

During the last basket ball season Dicky made a hero of himself in the Gonzaga-Eastern High game played at Eastern. The public school champs were leading by a slim two-point margin with only a few seconds to go when the midget guard heaved one from the center of the court that went swishing through for the necessary points sending the game into an extra period. He pulled the same stunt at the close of the first extra period, and at the conclusion of the second he bagged the contest for the Purple with another long shot from midcourt.

His chum, Tom, ranked as one of the leading scorers for the team in basket ball, but his greatest contribution to Gonzaga prestige was in football. Against the St. John's eleven, Gonzaga's dearest rival, Nolan was the only consistent ground-gainer. His twisting, turning, broken field runs featured the game.

Nolan Is Hero Against C. U. Frosh.

Against the Catholic University Frosh, Tom shared a pass from Capt. Danny Dunan and raced 40 yards through the Cubs' secondary defense for the only Gonzaga score of the day. Next year Mitchell looks for him to play even better football.

On the diamond Dick held down the regular shortstop berth, while Tommy played center field. Their work was of the highest order and played an important part in the Jesuits' success. Since the close of school Tom has signed with the Stewart Pharmacy nine, entered in the junior section in the Capital City League, and Dickey has cast his lot with the C. A. O'Briens, of the senior section of the league, and both are making good.

The boys entertain hopes of following in the footsteps of the Gonzaga graduates who have matriculated at Holy Cross College after finishing their four years of high school. It will take a strange quirk of fate to keep them out of this institution, for they are leaders in the classroom as well as on the athletic field. They still have two years of high school work before them, and by then they will be ripe for collegiate competition.

Inseparable pals, it is a rare sight to see one strolling down the street without the other. Tommy is a typical example of a keen-witted Irishman. Always poking fun at his associates, his face one broad grin, he presents a strong contrast to quiet spoken, sober-minded Dickey. The only characteristics common to both is their desire to make good in the sports world and their willingness to admit it. Gonzaga will rue the day when this pair turns its backs on it to seek greater glory and fame in the collegiate world.

GOLF MEDAL TO DISTRICT WOMAN

Mrs. Meckley's 87 Is High in Gibson Island Tourney.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 16.—Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Indian Spring, scored an 87 for the medal honors in the fifth annual Gibson Island golf tournament today. Fifty women participated in the qualifying round in the event for the Dr. Hugh Young Cup, which was presented for the first time last year.

Another Washingtonian, Mrs. Stephen Colladay, of Columbia, scored next to the medalist with an 89. Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson, Green Spring Valley Hunt Club, the defending champion, turned in a 95.

Fifteen Golfers Break 100-Mark.

Fifteen golfers shot on the sunny side of 100 in spite of a cloudburst, which broke about 1 o'clock. After the rain a fair breeze arose which some found hindered their drives.

Mrs. Alma Von Steiner, of Beaver Dam, shot 45—46—91, and Mrs. Ora Emge, of same club, had 47 each way. Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Chevy Chase, turned in a 54—47 card for a total of 101.

Coiner Track Star In Virginia School Meet

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., June 16.—Versatile performances by R. Coiner, one-man track and field team of Fishersville, carried his school into a tie with Mica for the lead in the annual track championships of Virginia's vocational high schools at Virginia Polytechnic Institute today.

Preliminaries in eight events named men for the finals to be run Thursday as part of the annual rally of several hundred boys from the vocational high schools of the State.

Coiner, versatile star of the Fishersville team, shared a record-breaking performance in the broad jump with Johnson, of Mount Jackson; qualified also in the century and 220-yard dashes and the shot put, and ran well to lift his school into the running for half-mile relay honors.

Consistent work by three men put Mica in position for the title with places in the 220, half-mile, discus, shot and relay. Wallo Varina, veteran, shattered the 12-pound shot put record with a heave of 44 feet 1¾ inches.

Mount Jackson, Smithfield and Attee each qualified men in four preliminary events; Holland Boyce, Herndon, and Varina in the three; Achilles, Cope, Handley, Strasburg, and South Hill in two, and Elkcreek, Turbeville, Stephens City and Gloucester in one.

NAVY ELATED OVER CREW VICTORY

Six of Winning Boat Not Available Next Season.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 16.—Nothing in years, save a victory over the rival West Point Cadets, could have caused such genuine pleasure and enthusiasm among the Naval Academy contingent than the splendid victory of the Midshipmen's varsity crew in the intercollegiate rowing classic at Poughkeepsie today. It is a crowning triumph to an otherwise inglorious season, for the Middies had bowed in defeat in dual contests to Columbia, Syracuse and Harvard, their lone victory being over Massachusetts Tech.

Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent, and a member of leading athletic and administration officials of the Academy were at today's regatta. The stay-at-homes included Capt. Henry D. Cooke, commandant of midshipmen, and acting athletic director, his former post, until the arrival of his successor, Capt. John W. Wilcox, jr. Capt. Cooke was overjoyed at news of Navy's great victory.

"I could scarcely believe it," he said, "and all of us are happy that the Midshipmen have regained their former supremacy in college rowing circles."

While the Middies passed through a poor preliminary season, there were those in close touch with the rowing situation here who maintained that the huskies who manned the sweeps in the Navy varsity boat possessed great possibilities, and that it would take a longer pull, such as the 4 miles brush of today, to demonstrate their real strength. And that is just what happened.

Six of the men who rowed in the crew graduated from the Academy early this month and will not, therefore, be available next season.

The rest of the squad of undergraduate oarsmen, including the men who composed the junior varsity and plebe eights, will take passage on the steamship Leviathan sailing from New York tomorrow to join their comrades now in foreign waters on their annual summer practice cruise.

Navy Crew Names Shelton 1932 Leader

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.).—H. E. Shelton, husky junior from Paducah, Ky., tonight was elected to captain next year's Navy crew. Shelton was at No. 3 in the Middie shell that swept to victory in today's varsity race.

Child, Ex-Nat, Named New Boys Club Coach

Harry Child, the former Nationals' rookie pitcher, who won his baseball chevrons in the Pacific Coast League, became an official of the Boys Club yesterday and will serve as an instructor at Camp Reeder, West Hatton Farm, Md., summer camp of the club.

Child, who was released to Chattanooga last spring and subsequently released by the Southern Association team, is a former South Atlantic boxing champion and half-mile swimmer. He was coach of the Catonsville, Md., semiprofessional football team last fall and has two years of professional football behind him.

The Olmsted Grill will play the Marion A. C. tonight at 5 o'clock on diamond No. 3 in the Monument Grounds. The game was arranged in a hurry last night by Manager "Snitz" Nau, who requests all his charges to report on time.

The Woodmen of the World unlimited team want a Sunday game with a local or out-of-town team. Call Manager Armstrong, apartment No. 1, Atlantic 0214.

The Blue Coals are practicing this evening on Phoenix Field. Manager Glascoe practically demands that his boys show up by 5:30 o'clock.

California Tennis Star Expected for D. C. Meets

DOLF MUEHLEISEN, the young Californian who wrought havoc in the intercollegiate championship last year until he was removed in the semifinal round in a pulsating four-set match by the defending champion, Julius Seligson, will arrive soon in Washington to participate in the Army championship, the Leech Cup matches, and probably the District championship.

Recent installation as a flying cadet at the Army Air Training School in San Diego makes Muehleisen eligible for the service tournament play. His presence in the Leech Cup matches, between the Army and Navy, will more than enhance the chances of the Army of making a better showing than last year, when Navy won by the margin of eight matches to one.

Muhleisen rates as an odds-on favorite to win the Army singles and has more than an even chance of copping the doubles, since he will pair with Lieut. Stan Robinson, one of the best of the younger Army players.

Muehleisen ranks eighth in the southern California ratings, which is headed by Ellsworth Vines. With Bob Muquch he ranks fourth in doubles.

Name and Fame of Doyles In Tennis Rest on Bob, 14

Scion of Noted D. C. Net Family Has Talent of Forbears.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

ALMOST like some young tyro who goes to the defense of some story book cause, young Bob Doyle has taken up his racquet in the name of tennis in general and the propagation of the name of Doyle in tennis in particular. Standing only a foot or so taller than his racquet, Bob tips the weighing in scales at a nifty 89 and has been reckoned with by the Census Bureau for all of 14 years. He'll be a junior at Western High next September.

Bob is the last of the Doyles, the last of a line of netmen and netwomen which found its source in the eighties on a vacant lot in what is now LeDroit Park. Drawing the picture a bit finer we find three youths, one H. R. Doyle, now a staid vice president of Thomas H. Fisher, Inc.; Louis I. Doyle, now with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Conrad B. Doyle, now chief clerk of the Agriculture Department, all gathered around a long box, in which reposed a net, two posts, two racquets, two balls, and a lime solution for marking a court.

Net Strung Across Cow Pasture.

Tennis equipment came in sets, like ping pong, then. Next to the Doyle home was a vacant field, on which the Doyle cow did her moanin' lowing. The net was strung up by these precocious youths, and they promptly began to ape the manner in which Abner Leech, a boy across the street, and Franklin Gohegan, the kid down the street, played on their courts.

This they found difficult to do. In the first place the lay of the land on the Doyle court did not make for true bounds. What few backcourt rallies were staged were in constant danger of extinction because of irregular bounds, and perhaps the entrance of Bossie into the picture.

So the Doyles went to the net. They began to hit the ball before it had a chance to bounce cockeyed, and out of that bumpy court came the redoubtable Connie Doyle, one of the few tennis players who ever lived who was unbeaten in his home town for year in and year out. He won every District championship he ever played in and beat the imported stars en route. His 1916 ranking of twelfth in the United States is the highest honor ever bestowed on a local player by the U. S. L. T. A. rating board.

Came a new generation. Connie's son Fred found tennis only a recreation, and was backed up in his treatment of the game by his father, upon whose orders Freddy was never to let the game interfere with the course of business. Notwithstanding, Fred has made a name for himself and carried the name almost singlehandedly for five years. His only aid has been Louis I. Doyle, who still performs regularly each week with the Bureau of Standards Team in the Suburban League.

Has Father's Grips And Determination.

But now this new Doyle. He is the son of Louis I.—in more ways than one. He has those same bright, clear eyes which go far to make good tennis players. There is no excess weight within a mile of him. He has his father's grips and willingness to take the net and volley for his right to the point in play. He already has one of the smoothest serves in the local business.

His father, District champion in 1927, has taught him well, and the apprenticeship has lasted nearly four years. Last year, when he was smaller, was to have been his first local effort, but his entry was mysteriously lost when the draw for the boys' singles was being made.

He made his debut—for it amounts to that when a new Doyle first plays—in the boys' tournament last week. He was put out in the quarter-final round by the eventual runner-up in one of the prettiest matches of the tournament. He showed that he had everything, perhaps a few strokes even his father and uncles never dreamed of using.

Best of all, he gives promise of using his head for more than a supporter of his pert little red, white and blue sport cap. He mixes his shots, and knows when to hit out and pull in and when to race for the net.

He seems well fitted to carry on a tradition which is unique in the annals of local sport.

Women's Net Doubles Title Round Today

The final round of the doubles championship of the Women's District Tennis League, postponed yesterday because of the condition of the courts at Columbia Country Club, will be waged this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the same club between the team of Mrs. Ruth Martinez and Frances Walker and combination of Dorothy Kingsbury and Cecyle Raver.

The postponement has done nothing to lessen the odds-on favoritism of the Martinez-Walker combination. Seeded No. 1 in the draw, they have entertained little difficulty in reaching the final bracket. As singles players they fought it out for the league title Sunday, with Mrs. Martinez winning handily.

DIAMOND DUST FROM THE SANDLOTS

THE Washington Red Sox, strong unlimited team, have their choicest trip of the year in view Sunday when they travel to Martinsburg, W. Va., there to engage the unlimited team of that hamlet in a double-header.

A covey of sixteen players will be carried. Autos will be used and the starting time has been placed at 9 o'clock. Frank Chase will hurl the first game and "Lefty" Jewett the second.

The only comparison which can be drawn from the two teams is that both have defeated Frederick handily.

Thus, contrary to the general impression in sandlot circles, the Red Sox will not meet the Del Ray A. C. Sunday.

Faced with an open date in the Capital City League schedule, the Saks Clothiers are on the lookout for a game Sunday with a team having a diamond. Call Manager Mothershead at District 3050.

The Linworth A. C. will tackle the Lionel Seniors tomorrow at 5 p. m. on diamond No. 7 of the Monument Grounds. The latter nine downed their opponents in a Capital City League game Sunday and the Southwest aggregation will be out for revenge.

The Kanawha A. C., winner in twelve of its fourteen starts, issues a challenge to all of the leading teams in the District. Manager Sam Jeweler can be reached at the Decatur 1982.

The "Y" Flashes are on the lookout for games for Wednesdays and Fridays, with strong junior teams. Manager De Gast can be reached at the "Y," National 8250, boys' department, between 3 and 5 p. m.

The manager of the St. Paul, Linworth, DeMolay, Congress Heights, C. A. O'Briens and Miller-Roamer baseball teams are requested to call Manager De Vaughan, of the Cardinal A. C. of Alexandria, at Alexandria 707-J between 5:30 and 6:30 p. m. this week in reference to scheduling games with the latter nine.

The Fairlawn Midgets would like to obtain the services of a competent coach for the remainder of the season. Manager White, at Atlantic 1581-W, would also like to schedule games with leading clubs in the midget class.

The Indianhead Cardinals are angling for a game to be played at Indianhead Saturday. Manager Sprague can be reached at Indianhead 101-K-3. Uniforms will be distributed to members of the team at a meeting to be held Friday night.

Considerable mystery surrounds the playing of a game Sunday between the Nation-Wide Grocers, of this city, and the Rover A. C. Both teams claimed the game, the Rovers by an 8-7 margin, and the Grocers by a 9-8 score. It appears to be one for King Solomon.

The Palisade A. C. is in need of two good unlimited outfielders. The team has a game scheduled for this evening at 5 o'clock on the Monument Grounds against the Kanawha A. C., and one Sunday at Landover, Md. Outfielders interested either call Manager Hager at Cleveland 2133-J or present themselves at this afternoon's game.

West Washington Baptists, of the Georgetown Church League, want a game for Saturday, June 27. Also they would like to arrange out-of-town games for July 4. Write or phone Manager Sabean, 4203 Ingomar street, Cleveland 7662.

A practice game is desired by the Fussell-Young Juniors for Friday afternoon at Rosedale. Call J. L. Carter, Lincoln 2901.

Nearby teams are challenged to a game this Sunday by the Ballston A. C. to be played at Ballston. Teams are invited to communicate with Manager McQuinn, Clarendon 1263.

The Holy Rosary Seniors will practice this evening at 5 o'clock on Dismond No. 1, at the Monument, in preparation for a Sunday game against a yet unknown opponent. Call Manager Leone at Atlantic 2437-J for bookings.

The Burroughs Insects have a field and no opponents. Call Potomac 2963.

Park Lane Midgets will tangle with Columbia Midgets Saturday at 1 p. m. on the South Ellipse diamond.

NATS RALLY TO WIN OUT IN NINTH

Fischer's double gave the Nats two runs to tie the score in the third, but it took them the rest of the game to get back the others, plus an unearned marker which the Browns scored in the seventh, the result of an error by Kuhel.

There were only ripples of excitement when singles by Hadley and Myer, Manush's useful out, and Harris' one-baser netted two runs in the fifth and the Nats were still three runs behind after Bluege's single, Kuhel's triple and Hadley's out had netted another pair in the sixth.

Kuhel's error on Burns' tap, his theft, and Hebert's single gave the visitors another in the seventh and the Nats managed to match this when Harris tripled and West doubled after two were gone in the home half. It was here that Hebert was excused and Blae

STOCK PRICES REACT IN SLUGGISH DEALING

Gains and Losses Are Mixed in Small Groups; Bears Become Cautious.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The stock market dropped anchor today to await a lifting of the latest fog of uncertainty to descend upon Wall street.

Prices receded in extremely sluggish trading during the greater part of the day, but stiffened in the final dealings, to close with a steady tone. Net gains and losses were mixed and largely inconsequential. Sales of 1,100,000 shares were the smallest reported for a five-hour session since last August.

Bears have lost courage since the stock exchange ordered a daily report on the extent and identity of the short interests last month, and were not encouraged by the remarks of President Hoover in Indianapolis, where he stated "we must determine whether the facilities of our securities and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions."

Visit to Hoover.

It was recalled that the president and vice president of the stock exchange visited President Hoover a few months ago, and that it was widely rumored that short selling was discussed. On the other hand, bulls were no more courageous than their antagonists.

Wall street was particularly interested in the huge releases of gold held by the Federal Reserve Bank to foreign account, and the continued improvement in German exchange and German bonds. Wall street hears unofficially that the $41,680,000 released from foreign account yesterday was largely released by the Bank of France through an arrangement with the Reichsbank, which in turn shipped a like amount to Paris, thus enabling the Reichsbank to deliver the metal to its correspondents here without the expense and time required to ship it across the Atlantic.

In addition, it was learned that $10,000,000 more was released from foreign account yesterday, and $13,000,000 today. Considerable speculation has developed as to what action, if any, the Federal Reserve will take to check this continued accretion of yellow metal at this center, already oversupplied.

German Mark Higher.

The German mark ruled a point higher at 23.73½ for cables and exchanges generally showed a firm tone, with the Brazilian milreis recovering further. The Canadian dollar, however, continued to slump, despite more than $4,000,000 of additional gold shipments from Montreal. The discount on the Canadian dollar was increased by 1-16 of a cent, making it 11-32.

In stocks, attention converged on the rails, upon the eve of the expected filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission of the petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. The recent profit taking which has come into this group after the upturn of a few days ago was continued until the last hour, when rail shares rallied. Atchison and Union Pacific closed about 2 or 3 points higher, after showing losses of 2 points. New York Central gained a point. Canadian Pacific and Northern Pacific were sold, however, in response to reports of drought in the Northwest and Canada, although the situation is not yet regarded in Wall Street as particularly alarming.

Among important industrials and utilities, U. S. Steel and General Electric closed fractionally higher, while American Telephone, American Can, Lambert, International Telephone and Eastman gained a point or two. U. S. Steel was helped by indications that the seasonal slump in production was diminishing.

U. S. Gold Stocks Largest in History

Monetary Supply on Hand Is $4,878,978,000; Amount Grows.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Stocks of gold held in the United States increased further today. The daily report of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York showed the receipt of $4,818,300 from Canada and a further decrease of $13,336,700 in stocks held for foreign account. This latter item signifies that although the gold was physically in the United States, its title had been held abroad until today.

An increase in the earmarked foreign account of $10,000,000 which was made yesterday, but not reported until today, thus reducing the net gain in the country's gold stock on Monday through changes in foreign accounts to $31,680,000.

The latest Federal Reserve statement on total gold stocks in the United States showed $4,803,000,000 as of June 10. With the various additions yesterday and last week the aggregate stock of monetary gold in this country, as accurately as it can be calculated, is $4,878,978,000, which constitutes another new high record for all time.

Week's Loadings Show 49,956 Cars Increase

(Associated Press.)

Revenue freight loadings for the week ended June 6 were announced yesterday by the American Railway Association as totaling 760,890 cars. This was an increase of 49,956 over the preceding week, but a decrease of 176,692 from the corresponding week last year.

Miscellaneous freight loadings totaled 306,824 cars, a decrease of 62,492 below the corresponding week of 1930; merchandise, 223,967, decrease, 19,786; coal, 107,698, decrease, 28,189; forest products, 33,231, decrease, 17,744; ore, 30,746, decrease, 32,704; coke, 5,959, decrease, 3,786; grain and grain products, 34,397, decrease, 4,160; live stock, 18,068, decrease, 5,831.

GERMAN BONDS LEAD IN GAINS ON SALES

Certain Rail Issues Record Small Losses; Industrials Close Steady.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Bond prices moved back and forth today with considerable irregularity, although the volume of trading was of moderate proportions.

Possibly the most encouraging development was the group strength of German obligations. Dollar loans of that nation are so numerous that the strength in them coupled with irregular gains among other foreign issues was sufficient to give the foreign group an upward trend. Activity was greatest in the 5½s and 7s of the National Government and the 6s of October 1960 of the German Central Agricultural Bank, but gains were the rule among all German loans. This strength was hailed as evidence that the concern over the outlook for Germany had decreased substantially. Chilean bonds receded sharply.

The action of certain railroad issues contrasted sharply with the foreign group. Railroad issues were lowest most of the time, although a number of them rallied during the last hour to close fractionally higher. Losses of 1 point or more were recorded by such loans as Central of Georgia consolidated 5s, Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, Rock Island Pacific debenture 4s, Rock Island series A 4½s and convertible 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern series C 4½s, Nickle Plate series C 4½s, Missouri Pacific series G 5s, and St. Louis San Francisco general 6s. Most of these issues were active. Net fractional losses were numerous also but the late rising trend wiped out many of the early declines.

Industrial and public utility bonds wavered until the late trading when they turned firm to close steady.

The new Treasury 3½s were the most active of United States Government issues, which held close to yesterday's final levels.

Curb Review

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The Curb Market was rather soft during much of today's session, but stiffened in the final dealings.

Trading was still at a low ebb, with speculative interest dormant, and net changes at the finish were mixed and largely narrow. The day's transfers aggregated 210,000 shares, duplicating yesterday's.

Oils gave a better account of themselves in the late trading. Vacuum sold up 2 points, on denial that a new exchange offer would be made to effect the merger with Standard of New York. It has recently been selling considerably out of line with Standard of New York., on the basis of the proposed exchange, which is equivalent to three shares of Standard for one of Vacuum. Vacuum closed at 40 7-8, and Standard of New York, on the big board, at 16.

Standard of Indiana was uninfluenced by omission of the $3 quarterly dividend of Mexican Petroleum, which it controls through Pan American Petroleum & Transport. In fact Indiana closed ¼ higher. Cities Service eased, then recovered.

Utilities in the main moved narrowly. Northern States Power A, one of the more erratic issues, lost 2 points. American Gas & Electric sagged a point, then recovered. Electric Bond & Share finished a shade higher.

Among the few coppers left in this market, Newmont dropped more than 2 points on omission of its $1 quarterly dividend. In motors, Stutz was a heavy spot, losing as much. Industrials generally were all but neglected. Such as Aluminum Co., Parker Rust and Pan American Airways lost a point, while Pilot Radio rallied 1. In the investment trusts, the selected industries preferred issues rallied 2 to 3 points.

ADS IN NEWSPAPERS BRING BEST RESULTS

Capital Store Increases Sales 39 Per Cent Since Early in June.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Newspaper advertising again proves it is the most powerful and effective advertising medium, according to Charles B. Dulcan, vice president and general merchandise manager of the Hecht Co. In a statement issued yesterday, Mr. Dulcan declares the results of newspaper advertising are direct and instantaneous, illustrating his belief by those of an advertising campaign begun June 8.

He first calls attention to the fact that for the past week thousands of stores throughout America have conducted drives for increased business because they seemed, in some way, to have reached the conclusion that prices were at low ebb, whereas savings accounts indicated there was money to spend for goods that had dropped way below normal.

While reminding that this city has not been so badly affected by depression as others, he said, "We decided, however, that we, too, in Washington, would join this great movement to help bring back the prosperity this country has known. So, we went into this intensive campaign."

Results of Campaign.

Enumerating its results, Mr. Dulcan's statement reads:

"We sold more goods every single day last week than in our best previous year. Specifically, since June 8, we have increased our business 39 per cent in dollars and cents; we sold 44 per cent more items that week than in the corresponding week of 1930. We have given employment to 10 per cent more people. We showed a tenfold increase in our long distance wires and buyers' trips to New York. We placed more orders and shipments arriving at the store were increased 20 per cent.

Owing to unforeseen circumstances, it was announced yesterday that President Rome C. Stephenson, American Bankers Association, will be unable to address the convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association at its opening session tomorrow morning at Hot Springs, Va. Instead, local bankers will hear an address by W. Espey Albig, deputy manager of the savings bank division of the national association and widely known in banking circles throughout the United States.

All officers and directors of the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co. were reelected at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. They are John L. Newbold, jr., president; William J. Eynon, chairman of the board; Ben L. Prince, first vice president; C. B. Buck, second vice president and secretary; David P. Smith, third vice president; F. G. MacAloon, treasurer; L. B. Doggett, assistant secretary. Directors are G. Thomas Dunlop, William J. Eynon, William F. Ham, Fleming Newbold, John L. Newbold, jr., Ben L. Prince, David P. Smith, Leon Tobriner, Donald Woodward and C. B. Buck.

Regular Dividend Declared.

The directorate declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock and the semiannual dividend of $3.50 on the common, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 22. Books are to be closed from June 22 to July 1, both dates inclusive. President Newbold said in view of business conditions, the board was pleased at the substantial increase in earnings for the first five months of 1931 as compared with that period in 1930.

A. Pierce & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, with offices in the Transportation Building in this city, are distributing a special analysis of sales of 51 chain store and mail order companies. Included in the figures are sales for the first five months of this year.

Directors of the American Security & Trust Co. yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent and an extra dividend of 1 per cent, payable July 10 to stockholders of record June 30.

Additional Delegates.

Additional delegates to and guests at the thirteenth annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association were announced yesterday as follows:

C. F. Burton, Washington Mechanics Savings Bank; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. M. Bowie, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; E. S. Burgess, North Capitol Savings Bank; R. A. Brodesser, Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Clark, Riggs National Bank; John A. Eckert, North Capitol Savings Bank; W. W. Georges, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Graham, E. L. Huffman, Robert E. Mann, Park Savings Bank; Mrs. John H. Newbold, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Shannon, Carter E. Talman, American Bank & Trust Co., Richmond, Va.; Samuel M. Thrift, Franklin National Bank; Mrs. George O. Vass, Riggs National Bank; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar A. Thorup, F. P. Williams, North Capitol Savings Bank.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

TABLET IS UNVEILED ON GADSBY'S TAVERN

Commemorates Restoration of Historic Spot by Alexandria Women.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
307 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Mrs. Leslie H. Gray, of Orange, president of the Garden Club of Virginia, drew the curtain yesterday afternoon to unveil the tablet in the wall around Gadsby's Tavern, placed there to commemorate the restoration of that yard by the Garden Club of Alexandria. In her brief talk she stated that garden clubs may come and go, but the Alexandria club will go down in history for the work it has done in taking over the restoration of the courtyard at this historic tavern, which is now the home of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion.

Mrs. Frank M. Dillard, president of the Alexandria club, presided at the ceremonies, and the invocation was delivered by the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of historic Christ Episcopal Church. Mrs. Dillard then introduced William Buckner McGroarty, who made the principal address.

Mr. McGroarty spoke of the splendor of history, and referred to the countries across the seas as being old in years, and America an infant in comparison, and yet sufficient time has elapsed to endow this country with landmarks, that while not lordly castles and moated towers are equally emblematic, equally appealing to national pride, and equally worthy of veneration and preservation.

He spoke of the old City Tavern later known as Gadsby's Tavern, and said that history records that Washington came to it when a young gallant, as a youthful surveyor, as a major of militia; also to Gadsby's came Washington the general, the statesman and later the President, a record not to be forgotten.

He said that what the Gargen Club of Alexandria has done is an earnest effort of what will be done to make this courtyard a fitting monument to a day that has gone forever. In the enclosing wall are the rescued brick from the ruins of Abingdon, a place of history, he said. Under foot are the cobblestones over which have ridden the great and the mighty, the cobblestones over which have ridden the great and the mighty, the cobblestones that were set in Alexandria's streets two centuries ago, and topping the terrace is used the curbing from the original streets of Alexandria, cobblestone and curbing cast aside in the press of modern requirements, he continued.

Mr. McGoarty introduced Mrs. Gray, who unveiled the tablet, and Mrs. Dillard then said it was the privilege of her office to turn over the representative of the citizens' committee that is engineering the restoration of the tavern for the American Legion Post, F. Clinton Knight accepted the gift, in the name of the committee and the American Legion.

The tablet, set in the brick wall at the west end of the yard, bears the following inscription:

"Gadsby's Tavern Courtyard, restored with brick from the ruins of Abingdon, flagging and cobblestones from the streets of Alexandria. By the Garden Club of Alexandria, 1930."

A conference between the city council and members of the local zoning and planning commission will be held in the city council chamber at 8 o'clock tonight, the meeting having been called by Mayor Edmund F. Ticer so that members of the council may familiarize themselves with the tentative ordinance prepared by the commission, preparatory to a public meeting to be held Monday night to discuss the features of the ordinance.

The ordinance was recently published in full, and many citizens have since expressed a desire to appear before the council and advocate changes which they believe will be beneficial. Several of the sections of the city which have been classed as strictly residential will, it is understood, be protested.

Property owners and real estate dealers are deeply interested in the proposed ordinance, and the council has resolved to give all an opportunity to be heard and to suggest changes deemed advisable. After the hearing it is understood the council will take the whole matter under consideration before making a final decision.

The suit of Waller & Davis, of Warrenton, against Charles D. Welch and C. C. Batcheller to recover $7,500 damages claimed in a real estate transaction June 27, 1926, when Messrs. Welch and Batcheller were operating a real estat ebusiness, was heard in the Corporation Court yesterday, Judge William P. Woolls presiding.

Among the witnesses summoned to testify for the plaintiffs was Clay T. Brittle, former cashier of the Del Ray Bank, who is now serving a sentence of six years in the penitentiary in connection with the closing of the bank, January 21, 1930, Brittle pleading guilty to misappropriation of funds. The case had not been completed when court adjourned yesterday.

The retail merchants of Alexandria will soon determine whether they will close their places of business on the Fourth of July. The Fourth this year falls on Saturday, as did Memorial Day, and the merchants, by agreement, kept their establishments open all day May 30.

A number of patriotic organizations are already making their plans for outings on the Fourth.

Charlottesville Girl Wed To Edwin Burton Kyle

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 16—Edwin Burton Kyle, of Huntington, W. Va., and Miss Marion Coleman Ewing, formerly of this city, were married today at the ancestral home of the bride, Elk Hill, in Nelson County, the officiating clergyman being the Rev. D. S. McCarty.

The bride is the daughter of Arthur Coleman Ewing and the late N. Coleman Ewing, of Nelson County. She was educated at Chatham Hall and Virginia College. She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the United States Daughters of 1812. Mr. Kyle is the son of the late James Henry and Elizabeth Cox Kyle, of Galax, Va. He is manager of the real estate department of the Fidelity Bond & Mortgage Corporation, in Huntington, W. Va.

OLD JAIL TO BE USED IN PRINCE GEORGES

Board Decides to Assume Risks to Prisoners Until New One Is Built.

Depsite the report of the Prince Georges County health officer that the Bladensburg Jail is unfit for prisoners, the board of county commissioners yesterday decided to continue its use until the new jail in the Hyattsville police station is ready.

The report of the health officer, Dr. A. B. Hooton, was given to the board yesterday. At the same time Sheriff W. C. Hopkins declined to take the responsibility for detaining more than six prisoners in the old structure. The board agreed to assume the liability for the results of keeping more than this number.

Dr. Hooton was asked by the sheriff to examine the jail after Dr. Hooton had pointed out the fact that the sheriff in a western county had been held responsible for the health of the prisoners kept in jail. In the western county, a former prisoner who contracted a disease in jail sued the sheriff for damages and won.

The commissioners yesterday also decided to install the Marlboro office of the police force in the witness room on the second floor of the courthouse just back of the courtroom. This was said to be only a temporary arrangement.

The town elections will be held on July 6, unless threats of contesting the election are carried out. The town voted to incorporate by a majority of only three votes, and it is said that opponents of the incorporation will not accept the vote as recorded. Twice before the referendum Monday the town had turned down a charter.

The final payment on the Oxon Hill Volunteer Fire Department's apparatus was made at the June meeting, and the insurance and dues in the county association were also paid. Funds came partly from donations of $135 and the proceeds of a dance given by the firemen.

Don Gibson, of Shady Oak, on the Baltimore boulevard, was arrested yesterday and charged with possession and manufacture, after a raid on his home by county policemen. The policemen said they found 580 bottles of alleged beer in the place.

Those who raided the place, which is near Beltsville, were Sergts. A. W. Hepburn and H. G. Machen, and Privates Claude Reese and Ralph Brown.

Persons arrested in two other raids in southern Maryland, both made by dry agents, were brought before U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Parran yesterday. The two were Gorman Davis, who was arrested near Oraville, in St. Marys County, and Louis Fine, arrested in a raid on his home near La Plata. Both men were charged with possession and held in bond of $500.

A delegation composed of S. Marvin Peach and Robert Hickey appeared before the board to ask that a road in Dupont Heights be taken over by the county. The commissioners will inspect the road before passing on the request.

The first death from Rocky Mountain spotted fever has occurred in the county, and a third case has been reported to the health officer. The first cases were reported only ten days ago.

The death is that of a woman of Accokeek, who died in a Washington hospital after being brought from her home. The other two cases are a 14-year-old boy and a woman, both living near Laurel. The boy is also in a hospital here.

Dr. A. B. Hooton, the health officer, says that a vaccine similar to that used against typhus fever can be used against the spotted fever. The diseases are similar, and several cases of typhus reported in the county last year may have been spotted fever. The precautions used in avoiding typhoid fever are also of use to guard against the present prevailing ailment.

Three men of Seat Pleasant have announced themselves as candidates for positions on the newly authorized council of the town, which was only incorporated by a referendum held Monday night. The three candidates are Edward D. Fugitt, Edwin M. Fisher, and E. E. Pickett. Mr. Fugitt is secretary to Congressman Stephen W. Gambrill.

Railway Head Seeks Divorce.

MONTGOMERY PLANS WIDENING OF STREET

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Revised plans for the widening and improvement of Montgomery avenue, in front of the new county courthouse at Rockville, were discussed yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners at their meeting in Rockville. It was voted to permit the mayor and council of Rockville to peruse the plans before formally approving them.

The revised plans follow more closely the desires of the town fathers, and it is now expected that there will be any friction regarding their adoption. The street will be widened so that it will run parallel with the new courthouse as far as the Frederick road intersection. The county commissioners expect to approve the plans at the Thursday meeting this week.

Following approval by the town council and the county commissioners, copies of the plans will be submitted to the State road commission for study and approval, and copies also will be sent the utilities companies which will be effected.

The commissioners passed most of the day in studying items of the budget, which is expected to be compiled by next week. Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners, and his office force have been working late in the night preparing the budget for the approval of the commissioners.

Specifications and a schedule of taxes for street improvements in Section 4, Chevy Chase, were presented to the county commissioners by the citizens' committee. The plans are for the construction of cement curbs and gutters on both sides of Leland street from Connecticut avenue west to Oak lane. The approximate cost of the work is to be $5,500. The commissioners referred the plans to the firm of Whiteford & Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners, for study and recommendation.

A group of residents from Bethesda appeared to complain about the operation of a loudspeaker on a miniature golf course in Bethesda. The commissioners voted to advise the owner, Harry Hiser, to operate the loudspeaker in such a manner as to avoid annoying the neighbors.

The Union Paving Co., of Washington, was low bidder for the construction of concrete roads and gutters in Section 2, Sligo Park Hills, which were opened yesterday, it was announced by Ward W. Caddington, deputy clerk to the county commissioners for Silver Spring.

The bid was approximately $13,600, and was for the laying of approximately 7,000 yards of concrete. The work is to be paid for by front foot benefit. The bid was referred to County Engineer Harry Shaw for study and recommendation. Eight firms offered bids.

Conversion of the present Montgomery County Building at Silver Spring into a public library when the proposed new county building is constructed, is asked in a resolution adopted last night by the Silver Spring Lions' Club at its weekly dinner meeting. Other local civic organizations will be asked to cooperate in the campaign.

The last session of the Maryland General Assembly voted authorization for a larger county building for the eastern suburban district at Silver Spring and authorized the sale of the present building. According to Capt. Frank L. Hewitt, president of the club, a large number of books has been gathered for the library whenever it is established.

Gaithersburg - Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department will hold its annual supper tonight and tomorrow night in the Gaithersburg High School, beginning at 5 o'clock. Proceeds of the supper will be devoted to the fire department fund.

Cabin John Park Volunteer Fire Department will hold a carnival at the Glen Echo-Cabin John School grounds in Cabin John Park the week of June 29 to July 4. The feature of the closing day on the Fourth of July will be a parade starting from the school grounds at 10 a. m.

The parade will be participated in by civic and business organizations and by other fire companies of the county. The line of march will be from the school to Brookmont at the District Line and return to Cabin John Park, to Great Falls, to Potomac and back to Cabin John Park. Fire department officials say the parade will be much larger this year than ever before.

Dinner will be served at the school cafeteria from noon until evening. Athletic events will include a horse show tournament. The carnival will close with Fourth of July fireworks.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of Warner Memorial Presbyterian Church at Kensington, is planning a style show and lawn party at the church grounds, Saturday. The proceeds of the affair will be devoted to paying the expenses of the society's delegates to the annual Christian Endeavor Conference at Hood College, Frederick, Md.

3 Danville Churches Struck by Lightning

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 16—Examination today of three churches which were struck by lightning in a vicious thunderstorm last night showed that none was seriously impaired.

Part of the weather-boarding was ripped from Grace Methodist Church. Mount Olive Baptist Church, colored, and the First Baptist, colored, were slightly damaged by fire which attacked the roof and steeples. Wire services were damaged by the lightning. Part of the town was dark during the night due to the burning out of transformers.

Textile Mill in Virginia Will Add Many to Force

Lynchburg, Va., June 16—The Virginia Textile Corporation here, subsidiary of Dundee Textile Corporation, Passaic, N. J., announced today that it will increase its force to 200 as soon as qualified hands are found.

The plant has been operating here since 1927 with a small force. Night and day shifts are to be used. The 100 looms have daily capacity of 2,500 yards of silk.

GRADUATION DAYS.

IN CAPS and gowns the students come
So all can tell this summer
The ones quite full of learning from
The students who are dummer.

They March about the sidewalks of
Their academic havens
And look from any point above
Just like a flock of ravens.

They sit in rows of wooden chairs
And try to pay attention
To pedagogues too full of cares
For any one to mention.

They hear the president proclaim
The problems in the offing—
And show their interest in same
By most excessive coughing.

THEY listen to the speaker dwell
Upon the ties they sever
And all the time they wish to h—
He wouldn't spout forever.

The prexy tells them of "the call"
And of their obligation,
While one by one the students fall
From gas asphyxiation.

"Strive onward, upward through the night——
Give little thought to playing."
He tells 'em, but he knows it's slight Attention they are paying.

"Be faithful! Ever keep the trust!"
He cries with accents soaring,
But he can tell his talk's a bust
The way the boys are snoring.

AT last the speeches slowly fade,
And, coming out of comas,
The students who have made the grade
Are given their diplomas.

The loving parents view the scene,
In silence deep and formal;
This gives them hope that Junior's bean
May possibly be normal.

The college flags at dusk are furl'd—
Gone is the day's enjoyment;
Our hero's out to face the world—

BALTIMORE SYNOD CONFERENCE BEGUN

300 Delegates Expected to Attend Sessions of Presbyterian Church.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., June 16.—The annual conference of the Baltimore Synod and the Women's Synodical Society for Missions of the Presbyterian Church, embracing Maryland, the District of Columbia and Delaware, began at Hood College today and will continue four days. About 200 delegates are registered and 100 more are expected tomorrow and Thursday.

The Rev. A. Brown Caldwell, of Baltimore, is chairman of the synod, and Mrs. P. Rolph, Wilmington, is president of the synodical society. Both groups met at the opening session this morning. The synodical held its first business session this afternoon, at which reports were made by the treasurer and presbyterial president, followed by discussions.

The docket of the synod will be taken up tomorrow morning with the enrollment of ministers, election of corresponding members and reports. On Thursday a moderator, stated clerk and two temporary clerks will be elected and a number of standing committees appointed.

A report on the synodical council will be submitted by the stated clerk and reports made on program and field activities, vacancy and supply, Christian education and pensions. Dr. Silas Evans, president of Ripon College, Ripon, Wis.; Miss Mary E. Moore, of New York, Young People's secretary of the board of foreign missions, and the Rev. Herman N. Morse, New York, of the council of home missions, will address both bodies tomorrow, Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. Hugh Lenox Hodge, of Washington, vice president, will preside at the synodical conference Thursday, at which the annual report of the Washington presbyterial president will be made, followed by the report of the secretary for intermediates and seniors and a discussion of women's federation and the woman's auxiliary. Various committee reports will be made on Friday, the final day. The business of the synod will be occupied largely on Friday, with reports on mission, educational institutions and memorials and special committees.

1931 CLASS AWARDED DEGREES AT VIRGINIA

Diplomas Are Presented to 368 Graduates; Tribute Paid to Alderman.

Charlottesville, Va., June 16.—The University of Virginia today closed the 105th year of its uninterrupted work. Climaxing the three-day commencement program was the award of 368 degrees to students from 30 States and three foreign countries.

The diplomas were presented by Dr. John Lloyd Newcomb, acting president, and the address to the graduates was delivered by Judge John W. Fishburne, of this city, member of Congress from the Seventh Virginia District.

A reception to the graduates, their relatives and guests was held at 7 o'clock in Madison Hall, Y. M. C. A. Building, and at 11 o'clock the final ball, crowning social event of the festivities, got under way in Memorial Gymnasium, the music being furnished by Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians.

At the class exercises, held on the lawn at 10 o'clock this morning, four boxwood bushes, each 7 feet high, were given to the university as a memorial to President Edwin A. Alderman, late president of the institution, who died suddenly April 29.

Planted Around Jefferson Statue.

The boxwood bushes, planted on the plaza before the north front of the rotunda, at the four corners of the statue of Thomas Jefferson by Sir Moses Ezekiel, were selected by Dr. William A. Lambeth, former superintendent of grounds and buildings; Edmund G. Campbell, professor of architecture, and Frederic H. Hobbs, jr., of Norfolk, Va., representing the class. A marble memorial tablet was set in the rotunda steps.

Presentation of the class gift was by Charles G. Daugherty, or Norfolk, vice president of the class.

From 4 to 5 o'clock this afternoon an open air concert was given on the lawn by the Charlottesville Municipal Band.

The class of 1931 contains 219 Virginia students. New York is second with 29. Maryland has 17 listed among the graduates; West Virginia, 15, and New Jersey, 10.
